LION HUNTING POLICY 2018

Age is the primary criteria in the selection of all hunting trophies, including lion.

The companies have a zero tolerance policy towards the shooting of young lions.

All Professional Hunters must be able to determine the approximate age of an adult male lion with a reasonable degree of accuracy. Pressure from clients or mistaken ageing are not acceptable excuses should an immature lion be harvested.

Studies of known age lion and standard aging criteria have established sufficient guidelines for field determination of whether a lion is older or younger than the 6 year legal standard.

The following points must be adhered to when hunting lion:

- 6 years of age is the recognized legal minimum for harvestable males
- Male lion must not be accompanied by a pride with cubs or sub-adult young
- Male lion must not be accompanied by a pride with lactating females, should cubs not be visible
- If the lion has a poor mane (i.e. a poor trophy) - then it must show visible signs of advanced age.
- Do not shoot marginal lion in the 5-6 year old category.
- Be careful not to take any obviously young lion even if they have fully developed manes.
- Do shoot - if you are convinced that a lion is 6 yrs + with visible signs of age - One that no one can reasonably question your decision to take it.
- A trophy lion should also pass the criteria that the majority of PH's would agree to it being harvestable.

No client is ever guaranteed to take any trophy – particularly lion.

The success rates for finding 6 year old trophy lion are notoriously low and can never be guaranteed.

The majority of recognized scientists concerned with the study of lion and sustainable lion hunting have endorsed the definition of a huntable lion as follows:

Huntable male lions are defined as those male lions whose off-take has no negative impact on the sustainability of local lion population dynamics. Research has shown that these are typically lions of 6 years of age or more that have completed their first breeding cycle. To reduce risks of infanticide, males of any age known to be heading prides with dependent cubs should not be hunted. Based on these considerations, a huntable male lion is at least six years of age and is not known to head a pride with dependent cubs.

Research models have demonstrated that selective trophy hunting does not alter wild lion population dynamics if restricted to males that meet the criteria of a huntable lion as defined above.

Please insure that you take as many clear photos of the lion as possible. These photos play a crucial role in aging lions, supplying inferior of badly taken photos will go against you in the aging process, make sure you clearly show.

Teeth – from the front, side and show the back of the canines for wear.

Face – front, side clearly show and scars.

Nose – close up and clear.

Mane - Side, front, top, chest.

Full Body – side, top, rear, in particular show any scars

Dear Mr Jacobs

CONFIRMATION OF KALAHARI ORXY AS A FACILITY IN POSSESSION OF WILD PANTHERA LEO (LION) POPULATION

The South African Government has in the 2016 annual year submitted information on the enhancement of the hunting of the wild South African lion populations to conservation of the species and upon a thorough assessment, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service has approved the enhancement finding on the hunting of the South African populations of Wild lions allowing for the importation of trophies from wild sourced lions.

In order to ensure that integrity of the hunting farms that possesses wild lions, an assessment criteria was developed which looks at aspects including: the area is sufficient to sustain a single social unit, the populations have a viable social structure, they are breeding in area in which they are roaming, the animals are not fed or receive any supplementary feeding and that the populations are from the wild.

In light of the above, the South African Government would like to confirm that Kalahari Oryx Private Game Reserve situated in the Northern Cape has been recommended as a facility that is possession of wild lion populations that are viable for hunting purposes.

Hope you find the above in order.

Yours sincerely

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;

Re: Black Rhino Enhancement Trophy Import Permit Application for Chris Peyerk

Dear Mary,

Enclosed is the trophy import permit application for one black rhino taken in Namibia on May, 22, 2018 by Chris Peyerk for his personal use.

The permit for this conservation hunt was issued by the Ministry of Environment and Tourism (MET) for the payment of 400,000.00 U.S. Dollars. The full sum is being held in the Trust Fund of Conservation Force, a 501(c)(3) public charitable conservation Foundation, until such time the import permit is approved by FWS. At that point in time, Conservation Force is to transfer the full sum in total to Namibia's Game Product Trust Fund (GPTF). Conservation Force is taking nothing from the 400,000.00. The hunter/applicant separately paid the professional hunter and others all fees so the permit fee of 400k is free and clear of all charges of any kind.

Of course, this rhino is within the quota of five per year by CITES.

The IUCH Rhino Specialist Group is still in the process and expected to down-list Namibia's population of black rhino to of Least Concern and the population continues to grow.

For additional enhancement information, please refer to the previously submitted information by Conservation Force for the Renke, Luzich, Knowlton, Harber, and Costa permit applications, MET, the IUCN Rhino Specialists Group and the enclosed email from Elly Hamunyela.

Please keep me advised as well as give me ten days notice before the permit is issued so that I can know of the permit no later than those that may oppose the application.

Respectfully Submitted,

John J. Jackson III

- The black rhino bull was shot on 22/05/2018.
- According to the dental records of this bull it falls in the 25-31 age class (Taken from Hitchins 1978: Age determination of black rhinoceros (Diceros bicornis) in Zululand).
- His estimated age was 29. He had a natural notch and a very distinct 3rd horn.
- $400,000 in proceeds for the hunt will be paid in full to the Game Products Trust Fund and will be ring fenced for rhino conservation in Namibia. Namibia has adopted a mass dehorning campaign since 2014, aiming to dehorn every population every 2 years. There is currently Cabinet approval for the dehorning program. In conjunction, Namibia has purchased a B3 Squirrel helicopter and established a Wildlife Crime Unit within the Ministry. MET has also constructed an Wildlife Protection Service Training Centre where it aims to provide specialist anti-poaching training to new WPS recruits. The Training Centre is currently being used to train 4 tracking/detection dogs for the new MET K9 Unit. Finally, the Ministry aims to continue to support the biological management of its rhino populations through translocations and the establishment of new populations which will result in increased growth rates. The removal of this individual rhino contributes financially to rhino conservation through the deposit into the GPTF. These funds are ring fenced for rhino and can be accessed through approved proposals on rhino related activities.
- The rhino was removed because it was interfering with the breeding by other, younger breeding bulls. This impacted negatively on the Mangetti population and the overall objectives of our metapopulation management at a time when positive rhinoceros' growth rates are essential due to the threat of poaching. The current sex ratio in the park is 50:50 of which a third of the male population is above 25, resulting in post reproductive bulls directly competing with young bulls.
- The meat from the black rhino was distributed to the rural communities surrounding the park.

SHORT FACT SHEET—NAMIBIA'S RHINO MANAGEMENT SUCCESS

- Namibia has recovered its black rhino population to be the largest in the world, numbering 1,946 individuals in 2015.[1] This population is assessed as "Vulnerable" by the IUCN Red List, and will likely be down-listed to "Near Threatened" within the next year as the population has been increasing consistently for twenty years and has had over 1,000 adults for over five years (the Red List standard).[2]

- Conservation Strategy: Namibia manages its black rhino population pursuant to a Black Rhino Management Strategy, which was updated in 2009 and again this year.[3] This strategy is based on recommendations from the foremost black rhino experts, including the IUCN African Rhino Specialist Group. It identifies three primary goals: (1) expanding available range, (2) growing the population at least 5% per year, and (3) minimizing poaching. It also focuses on participation and empowerment of rural communities. Namibia, under the management of the Ministry of Environment ("MET"), has been achieving each of these goals.

- Expanding Range: Under Namibian law, all black rhino are national property. Most (approximately 65%) inhabit National Parks. Under the management strategy, black rhino may be translocated to communal or private land, which offer five times more potential habitat. In 2009, 400 rhino inhabited communal and private conservancies. That number has grown, expanding the range and population and promoting greater genetic diversity. Translocations are authorized pursuant to custodianship agreements and approved action plans.[4]

- Population Growth: Under the strategy, Namibia's black rhino population more than doubled between 1995 and 2015.[5] The strategy achieves maximum growth by maintaining rhino populations below the range carrying capacity and skewing the population towards females and young adults through translocation and conservation hunting. Research has shown that removal of a limited number of males reduces in-breeding and stimulates population growth by reducing conflicts[6] and often fatal competition between old and younger males, inducing shorter calving intervals and reducing juvenile mortality. It also corrects the slight natural male bias (53%) in rhino populations.[7]

- Role of Conservation Hunting: Regulated hunting is a tool used to increase black rhino population growth rates. Hunting offtakes have no negative population impact, as the potential removal of up to five bulls per year would represent only 0.26% of Namibia's black rhino population, which would be only a fraction of the annual growth rate. But these offtakes promote the removal of "certified" surplus bulls while generating significant revenues to be invested in rhino conservation. According to the chair of the IUCN African Rhino Specialist Group: "In population terms, it's of minor significance, as we are talking about one old bull that would have contributed genetically to the rhino population already. In monetary terms, it's important as it generates funds that go directly into the wildlife products fund that feeds 100% back into rhino conservation."[8]

- Rhino Certification: MET monitors all black rhino and individually certifies the select few to be hunted. These bulls are over age 25 (quite old for a species that typically lives to about 30), post-reproductive, and almost always problem animals. They are typically killers of other rhino and interfere with younger, breeding bulls, thereby depressing the population growth rate on the property.[9] (Typically, these older bulls cannot be translocated because they will just start fighting again in the new location.[10]) MET rangers accompany the hunter to ensure the correct rhino is taken, and the professional hunter must be licensed by MET for dangerous game.

- Success of Conservation Hunting: The success of this strategy speaks for itself. Since 2004, when the CITES Parties approved an export quota of five black rhino/year from both Namibia and South Africa, black rhino populations have increased by 67%, with only 47 black rhino hunted from 2005 to 2015 (most in South Africa).[11]

- Anti-Poaching: The threat of poaching cannot be ignored; however, overall Namibia has successfully kept poaching incidents below the population growth rate. For example, Namibia reduced poaching incidents by over one-third from 2015 to 2016 and by more than two-thirds from 2015 to 2017.[12] Almost all poaching has occurred in Namibia's National

Parks. Rhino poaching on communal and private land is negligible, as they employ over 3,000 game guards with the revenues from conservation hunting.[13]

- Funding: Namibia's anti-poaching success is largely due to the resources available from conservation hunting. All black rhino hunting permit fees are deposited into the Game Products Trust Fund,[14] and ring-fenced to be used only for black rhino protection and management. For example, the $350,000 received from a widely-publicized 2015 black rhino hunt was invested in law enforcement training and equipment, an early warning anti-poaching system, and a rhino survey in Etosha National Park.[15] U.S. hunters are the largest contributors to this Trust Fund.

- Community Empowerment: Rural communities are an integral component of Namibia's rhino management strategy. Through translocations, communities benefit from black rhino-related tourism. If MET certifies a rhino bull on a conservancy, the community will also benefit directly from the hunting revenues. Communities generally benefit from conservation hunting through job creation, game meat distributions, and hunting revenues that are largely reinvested in conservancy management. A 2015 study found conservation hunting is fundamental to Namibia's rural conservancy system. Analysis of data from 77 conservancies (1998 to 2013) illustrated that over half benefit from hunting revenues alone, and without these revenues, almost all communal conservancies in Namibia would be unable to cover their operating costs.[16] This would put approximately 60,000 km^2 of wildlife habitat at risk.

- International Recognition: The IUCN Sustainable Use and Livelihoods Specialist Group and the African Rhino Specialist Group each wrote in support of the 2014 auction of a black rhino hunt in the U.S. as the best way to maximize the benefits of the sustainable use of black rhino. Previously, the WWF wrote in support of the first positive enhancement finding made by the FWS. The FWS has made a scientific determination that the regulated hunting is not detrimental and "enhances" the survival of Namibia's black rhino.[17]

"Critically Endangered," since 2000 (almost 18 years). They are about to be further down-listed to "Near Threatened" status because of continued population growth and successful management.

- Myth: The population is too low to take any rhino. Response: The incredibly low offtakes from conservation hunting—a maximum of five post-reproductive males—represent approximately one-quarter of one percent of the country's black rhino, and are far too low to have any impact on the population. The old rhino have been problem animals that are suppressing local population growth, or worse, have reduced the rhino population themselves by killing cows, calves, or prime breeding bulls, and monopolizing habitat. Their removal is intended to increase local population growth. Growth offsets any poaching losses. The revenues from the hunting also provides the most anti-poaching revenue as well as building local community support and protection from poaching.

- Myth: The monies that U.S. citizens have paid for black rhino permits are unaccounted for. Response: These monies are tracked by MET and the Board of the Game Products Trust Fund. That Board issues annual reports on the use of funds. The FWS has requested deposit records and expenditure information before issuing any enhancement permits.[18]

- Myth: Photographic tourism could pay these bills instead of hunting. Response: It cannot. Rhino hunting is low impact and high value. Photographic tourism is the opposite, and it has not succeeded in much of Namibia, especially the communal conservancies. See Naidoo (2015). Photographic tourism cannot meet the biological needs of this species.

Conclusion:

Both rhino population growth rates and anti-poaching resources should be maximized to further secure and "provide a bigger buffer" from poaching. This can best be done through conservation hunting of black rhino, and particularly when the trophy import is approved by the FWS. Once the FWS issued the first import permit for a black rhino trophy, the trophy fee increased dramatically. The possibility exists for these hunts to generate half-a-million dollars, each, for black rhino protection and conservation. As the IUCN African Rhino Specialist Group wrote in support of black rhino hunting in Namibia, "ultimately the greater the revenue that can be raised the more rhino conservation efforts in Namibia can be funded."[19] This well-regulated and well-managed program strongly enhances the survival of the species.

Re: Black Rhino Enhancement Trophy Import Permit Application for Chris Peyerk

Dear Mary,

Enclosed is the trophy import permit application for one black rhino taken in Namibia on May, 22, 2018 by Chris Peyerk for his personal use.

The permit for this conservation hunt was issued by the Ministry of Environment and Tourism (MET) for the payment of 400,000.00 U.S. Dollars. The full sum is being held in the Trust Fund of Conservation Force, a 501(c)(3) public charitable conservation Foundation, until such time the import permit is approved by FWS. At that point in time, Conservation Force is to transfer the full sum in total to Namibia's Game Product Trust Fund (GPTF). Conservation Force is taking nothing from the 400,000.00. The hunter/applicant separately paid the professional hunter and others all fees so the permit fee of 400k is free and clear of all charges of any kind.

Of course, this rhino is within the quota of five per year by CITES.

The IUCH Rhino Specialist Group is still in the process and expected to down-list Namibia's population of black rhino to of Least Concern and the population continues to grow.

For additional enhancement information, please refer to the previously submitted information by Conservation Force for the Renke, Luzich, Knowlton, Harber, and Costa permit applications, MET, the IUCN Rhino Specialists Group and the enclosed email from Elly Hamunyela.

Please keep me advised as well as give me ten days notice before the permit is issued so that I can know of the permit no later than those that may oppose the application.

Respectfully Submitted,

John J. Jackson III

Subject: FW: Report back on Mangetti Trophy hunt

Details of the black rhino bull shot in Mangetti NP recently for the report back.

- The black rhino bull was shot on 22/05/2018.
- According to the dental records of this bull it falls in the 25-31 age class (Taken from Hitchins 1978: Age determination of black rhinoceros (Diceros bicornis) in Zululand).
- His estimated age was 29. He had a natural notch and a very distinct 3rd horn.
- $400,000 in proceeds for the hunt will be paid in full to the Game Products Trust Fund and will be ring fenced for rhino conservation in Namibia. Namibia has adopted a mass dehorning campaign since 2014, aiming to dehorn every population every 2 years. There is currently Cabinet approval for the dehorning program. In conjunction, Namibia has purchased a B3 Squirrel helicopter and established a Wildlife Crime Unit within the Ministry. MET has also constructed an Wildlife Protection Service Training Centre where it aims to provide specialist anti-poaching training to new WPS recruits. The Training Centre is currently being used to train 4 tracking/detection dogs for the new MET K9 Unit. Finally, the Ministry aims to continue to support the biological management of its rhino populations through translocations and the establishment of new populations which will result in increased growth rates. The removal of this individual rhino contributes financially to rhino conservation through the deposit into the GPTF. These funds are ring fenced for rhino and can be accessed through approved proposals on rhino related activities.
- The rhino was removed because it was interfering with the breeding by other, younger breeding bulls. This impacted negatively on the Mangetti population and the overall objectives of our metapopulation management at a time when positive rhinoceros' growth rates are essential due to the threat of poaching. The current sex ratio in the park is 50:50 of which a third of the male population is above 25, resulting in post reproductive bulls directly competing with young bulls.
- The meat from the black rhino was distributed to the rural communities surrounding the park.

SHORT FACT SHEET—NAMIBIA'S RHINO MANAGEMENT SUCCESS

- Namibia has recovered its black rhino population to be the largest in the world, numbering 1,946 individuals in 2015.[1] This population is assessed as "Vulnerable" by the IUCN Red List, and will likely be down-listed to "Near Threatened" within the next year as the population has been increasing consistently for twenty years and has had over 1,000 adults for over five years (the Red List standard).[2]

- Conservation Strategy: Namibia manages its black rhino population pursuant to a Black Rhino Management Strategy, which was updated in 2009 and again this year.[3] This strategy is based on recommendations from the foremost black rhino experts, including the IUCN African Rhino Specialist Group. It identifies three primary goals: (1) expanding available range, (2) growing the population at least 5% per year, and (3) minimizing poaching. It also focuses on participation and empowerment of rural communities. Namibia, under the management of the Ministry of Environment ("MET"), has been achieving each of these goals.

- Expanding Range: Under Namibian law, all black rhino are national property. Most (approximately 65%) inhabit National Parks. Under the management strategy, black rhino may be translocated to communal or private land, which offer five times more potential habitat. In 2009, 400 rhino inhabited communal and private conservancies. That number has grown, expanding the range and population and promoting greater genetic diversity. Translocations are authorized pursuant to custodianship agreements and approved action plans.[4]

- Population Growth: Under the strategy, Namibia's black rhino population more than doubled between 1995 and 2015.[5] The strategy achieves maximum growth by maintaining rhino populations below the range carrying capacity and skewing the population towards females and young adults through translocation and conservation hunting. Research has shown that removal of a limited number of males reduces in-breeding and stimulates population growth by reducing conflicts[6] and often fatal competition between old and

Black rhinos will fight each other, and they have the highest rates of mortal combat recorded for any mammal: about 50% of males and 30% of females die from intra-specific, combated-related injuries."); African Rhino Specialist Group (Nov. 2013) ("From 2007-2011 fighting deaths were the single greatest known cause of known black rhino deaths in Namibia (31%) with females and subadults/calves making up 26.7% and 35% of all fighting deaths respectively.").

younger males, inducing shorter calving intervals and reducing juvenile mortality. It also corrects the slight natural male bias (53%) in rhino populations.[7]

- Role of Conservation Hunting: Regulated hunting is a tool used to increase black rhino population growth rates. Hunting offtakes have no negative population impact, as the potential removal of up to five bulls per year would represent only 0.26% of Namibia's black rhino population, which would be only a fraction of the annual growth rate. But these offtakes promote the removal of "certified" surplus bulls while generating significant revenues to be invested in rhino conservation. According to the chair of the IUCN African Rhino Specialist Group: "In population terms, it's of minor significance, as we are talking about one old bull that would have contributed genetically to the rhino population already. In monetary terms, it's important as it generates funds that go directly into the wildlife products fund that feeds 100% back into rhino conservation."[8]

- Rhino Certification: MET monitors all black rhino and individually certifies the select few to be hunted. These bulls are over age 25 (quite old for a species that typically lives to about 30), post-reproductive, and almost always problem animals. They are typically killers of other rhino and interfere with younger, breeding bulls, thereby depressing the population growth rate on the property.[9] (Typically, these older bulls cannot be translocated because they will just start fighting again in the new location.[10]) MET rangers accompany the hunter to ensure the correct rhino is taken, and the professional hunter must be licensed by MET for dangerous game.

- Success of Conservation Hunting: The success of this strategy speaks for itself. Since 2004, when the CITES Parties approved an export quota of five black rhino/year from both Namibia and South Africa, black rhino populations have increased by 67%, with only 47 black rhino hunted from 2005 to 2015 (most in South Africa).[11]

- Anti-Poaching: The threat of poaching cannot be ignored; however, overall Namibia has successfully kept poaching incidents below the population growth rate. For example, Namibia reduced poaching incidents by over one-third from 2015 to 2016 and by more than two-thirds from 2015 to 2017.[12] Almost all poaching has occurred in Namibia's National

Parks. Rhino poaching on communal and private land is negligible, as they employ over 3,000 game guards with the revenues from conservation hunting.[13]

- Funding: Namibia's anti-poaching success is largely due to the resources available from conservation hunting. All black rhino hunting permit fees are deposited into the Game Products Trust Fund,[14] and ring-fenced to be used only for black rhino protection and management. For example, the $350,000 received from a widely-publicized 2015 black rhino hunt was invested in law enforcement training and equipment, an early warning anti-poaching system, and a rhino survey in Etosha National Park.[15] U.S. hunters are the largest contributors to this Trust Fund.

- Community Empowerment: Rural communities are an integral component of Namibia's rhino management strategy. Through translocations, communities benefit from black rhino-related tourism. If MET certifies a rhino bull on a conservancy, the community will also benefit directly from the hunting revenues. Communities generally benefit from conservation hunting through job creation, game meat distributions, and hunting revenues that are largely reinvested in conservancy management. A 2015 study found conservation hunting is fundamental to Namibia's rural conservancy system. Analysis of data from 77 conservancies (1998 to 2013) illustrated that over half benefit from hunting revenues alone, and without these revenues, almost all communal conservancies in Namibia would be unable to cover their operating costs.[16] This would put approximately 60,000 km^2 of wildlife habitat at risk.

- International Recognition: The IUCN Sustainable Use and Livelihoods Specialist Group and the African Rhino Specialist Group each wrote in support of the 2014 auction of a black rhino hunt in the U.S. as the best way to maximize the benefits of the sustainable use of black rhino. Previously, the WWF wrote in support of the first positive enhancement finding made by the FWS. The FWS has made a scientific determination that the regulated hunting is not detrimental and "enhances" the survival of Namibia's black rhino.[17]

"Critically Endangered," since 2000 (almost 18 years). They are about to be further down-listed to "Near Threatened" status because of continued population growth and successful management.

- Myth: The population is too low to take any rhino. Response: The incredibly low offtakes from conservation hunting—a maximum of five post-reproductive males—represent approximately one-quarter of one percent of the country's black rhino, and are far too low to have any impact on the population. The old rhino have been problem animals that are suppressing local population growth, or worse, have reduced the rhino population themselves by killing cows, calves, or prime breeding bulls, and monopolizing habitat. Their removal is intended to increase local population growth. Growth offsets any poaching losses. The revenues from the hunting also provides the most anti-poaching revenue as well as building local community support and protection from poaching.

- Myth: The monies that U.S. citizens have paid for black rhino permits are unaccounted for. Response: These monies are tracked by MET and the Board of the Game Products Trust Fund. That Board issues annual reports on the use of funds. The FWS has requested deposit records and expenditure information before issuing any enhancement permits.[18]

- Myth: Photographic tourism could pay these bills instead of hunting. Response: It cannot. Rhino hunting is low impact and high value. Photographic tourism is the opposite, and it has not succeeded in much of Namibia, especially the communal conservancies. See Naidoo (2015). Photographic tourism cannot meet the biological needs of this species.

Conclusion:

Both rhino population growth rates and anti-poaching resources should be maximized to further secure and "provide a bigger buffer" from poaching. This can best be done through conservation hunting of black rhino, and particularly when the trophy import is approved by the FWS. Once the FWS issued the first import permit for a black rhino trophy, the trophy fee increased dramatically. The possibility exists for these hunts to generate half-a-million dollars, each, for black rhino protection and conservation. As the IUCN African Rhino Specialist Group wrote in support of black rhino hunting in Namibia, "ultimately the greater the revenue that can be raised the more rhino conservation efforts in Namibia can be funded."[19] This well-regulated and well-managed program strongly enhances the survival of the species.

Adrienne,

This is in reference to the above captioned black rhino import permit application, PRT 15594D for Chris Peyerk. Please see response from Elly. The draft plan has been adopted and is now the black rhino plan. Hopefully, this satisfies the last of your three part request. Please let me know if anything further is needed.

Thanks,

John

Dear John,

The Management strategy has been approved and being implemented. It is therefore no longer a draft.
Many thanks

Elly, I have not received the two information items the USFWS needs to issue the outstanding black rhino trophy import permits. The USFWS procedure is to dismiss the application without any further notice to the applicant or his representative (Conservation Force, pro bono) if the information is not timely received 45 days from date additional information requested. That “abandonment” date is close.

There are two permits outstanding even though the information was only thus far requested for the first of the two import permit applications filed by Conservation Force for the hunters. The information is applicable to both outstanding permits.

The FWS has asked for the status of the draft management plan and, second, an accounting for the expenditures of the Game Product Trust Fund. I know you forwarded a request to the GPTF but I have no response from them at all. Please take charge and get me the two responses.

I am copying Danene confidentially because of my continuing communication difficulties when emailing you. I am herein requesting her to forward this email to you as well. Please let me know you have received this. Forever at your service. Thank you. John Jackson

Glossary of Terms

Biodiversity Management Plan for Species or Conservation plan: - A tool to guide the management of indigenous species (and any sub-specific taxa) and groupings of indigenous species that are adversely affected by similar threats and enables the evaluation of progress with regard to such management

The IUCN Red List of Threatened Species:- (also known as the IUCN Red List or Red Data List), is a comprehensive inventory of the global conservation status of plant and animal species which provides taxonomic, conservation status and distribution information on plants and animals that have been globally evaluated using the IUCN Red List Categories and Criteria. This system is designed to determine the relative risk of extinction, and the main purpose of the IUCN Red List is to catalogue and highlight those plants and animals that are facing a higher risk of global extinction (i.e. those listed as Critically Endangered, Endangered and Vulnerable) as well as to examine trends in numbers and status of listed threatened species over time.

Species:- a kind of animal, plant or other organism that does not normally interbreed with individuals of another kind, and includes any sub-species, cultivar, variety, geographic race, strain, hybrid or geographically separate population.

Subspecies:- Any natural subdivision of a species that exhibits small, but persistent, morphological variations from other subdivisions of the same species living in different geographical regions or times, but which are likely to interbreed and produce viable offspring if put together with another subspecies of the same species.

Meta-population: - consists of a group of spatially separated populations of the same species which interact at some level (Levins R. 1969. Some demographic and genetic consequences of environmental heterogeneity for biological control. Bulletin of the Entomological Society of America 15: 237-240). Rhino meta-populations can be actively managed using translocation of animals between sub-populations.

Native Species/Indigenous species: - A species is defined as indigenous or native to a given region or ecosystem, if its presence in that region is the result of only natural resources, with no human intervention: a species that occurs, or has historically occurred, naturally in a free state in nature within the borders of the Republic, but excludes a species that has been introduced in the Republic as a result of human activity. It thus excludes agricultural and domesticated livestock and plants

Executive Summary

The Ministry of Environment and Tourism's last management plan for black rhino was produced in 2001 and approved in 2003 when the rhino population was estimated at 750 animals. A target of 1,500 rhino for 2011 was set for the desired increase in numbers of rhino in that plan. The metapopulation in 2009 was estimated at 1,670 animals – exceeding the target two years earlier than expected. All of the Strategic Objectives in 2001 Plan were achieved, including an expansion of the range available to black rhino, a significant increase in the numbers of rhino, the building of support for rhino conservation, the continued protection of the metapopulation, policy and legislative frameworks are in place, coordination of the diverse stakeholders and sufficient capacity in place to carry out the management needed.

The implementation of the previous black rhino management plan therefore surpassed expectations, and it was not the intention to replace the plan per se, but rather to assess the plan against a changing environment, and to make adjustments accordingly.

Since 2014, the increase in poaching has placed an additional strain on the system and available resources, and shows no sign of abating. The modus operandi being utilised both locally and internationally in the illegal killing of rhino and the smuggling of their horns in recent years suggests the increasing involvement of highly organised and well-structured crime syndicates. This means that protection efforts will equally need to become more strategic (and effective), better organized and coordinated, pro-active, and focussed on shifting the 'front-line' away from the rhino populations, with the aim of intercepting illegal killing before it takes place.

This said, law enforcement is not the ultimate answer to the illegal hunting of rhinos. In fact, successful law enforcement leads to a reduction of supply, pushing prices up further, which in turn creates stronger incentives for illegal hunting and trade - a vicious circle. Efforts therefore need to be made to deal with the root cause of the problem, which is the demand. This needs to be addressed at international levels.

At a national level, unless stakeholders are able to realize the full benefits from rhino, their intrinsic value is undermined. There is therefore a need to increase the income from the sustainable use of rhinos, and to ensure that stakeholders are able to share in these benefits, and become motivated to invest in rhino conservation.

Introduction and Background

Conservation status and significance

The historic natural range of the black rhinoceros (Diceros bicornis) (hereafter referred to as black rhino) included most of southern and eastern Africa (excluding the Congo Basin, the tropical rainforest areas along the Bight of Benin and the Ethiopian Highlands). Illegal hunting for rhino horn was primarily responsible for the crash in black rhino numbers from perhaps 100,000 animals in the 1960s to a low of about 2,410 in 1995. Through strict conservation programmes, the numbers in Africa have since increased, reaching 5,081 by the end of 2012 (Emslie and Knight 2014)[1]. The species has become extinct in many countries in which it once occurred, especially in the west and north of its former range, and the remaining populations are now scattered, and in many cases geographically isolated.

The black rhino has been listed as Critically Endangered in the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species (IUCN 2012) since 1996. It is also listed on Appendix I of CITES and classified as Endangered under the United States Endangered Species Act of 1973 (as amended since 1973). Under Namibian legislation (Ordinance 4 of 1975), black rhino is listed as specially protected, and its parts as a "controlled wildlife product" under the Controlled Wildlife Products and Trade Act, 2008 (Act No. 9 of 2008).

Namibia is the stronghold of one of the three remaining populations of black rhinos in Southern Africa. This population is presumed to have ranged historically from south-western Angola, through Namibia to the western part of South Africa. The Namibian metapopulation is thus classified taxonomically as Diceros bicornis bicornis , with its type locality being the Cape of Good Hope. Although there is some indication that the north eastern Zambezi region of Namibia would have historically been home to Diceros bicornis minor[2] a conscious decision has been taken by the Namibian authorities to restrict the Namibian population to Diceros bicornis bicornis, to avoid the additional management and enforcement challenges related to preventing cross breeding[3]. This decision was also taken to conserve the potentially unique genetic variation that the metapopulation may contain as a result of adaptation or specialisation to an arid environment – the so called "desert rhino".

The Background Study for Black Rhinoceros (Martin 2010 a, 2010 b) provides in detail the taxonomic and biological information of the species, as well as historical insight. Earlier management plans should remain a part of the reference work, as they provide an important record of thinking and management actions applied over time.

However, the intraspecific taxonomy of the black rhino has been a matter of debate for decades (Hopwood 1939, Zukowsky 1964, Groves 1967, Rookmaaker and Groves 1978, duToit 1987, Groves 1993, Groves 2011), with present day management following the four subspecies scheme of duToit (1987), which divided the species into western (D. b. longipes - extinct), eastern (D. b. michaeli), south-eastern (D. b. minor) and south-western (D. b. bicornis) subspecies. Under this scheme, Namibia's metapopulation is classified as D. b. bicornis, and thus the same as the nominate subspecies originally described from the Cape of Good Hope of South Africa. However, a recent genetic survey of the black rhinoceros across its former range in sub-Saharan Africa (Moodley et al. 2017) has shed considerable light on these taxonomic relationships. Unlike previous genetic surveys, this study included genetic material from several dozen museum specimens held in various museums across the world, thereby linking historic records with those of present-day populations. The study found that the Cape rhino (D. b. bicornis), in this case a specimen shot by Sparrman in 1774 in the Western Cape Province of South Africa, was genetically unrelated to the Namibian metapopulation. Instead the Cape rhinoceros was most closely related to the Zululand black rhino (D. b. minor) whereas the Namibian metapopulation was found to be indistinguishable from the black rhino of south-west Angola (D. b. occidentalis). What has also become clear from this study is that the black rhino's migration (gene flow) patterns are restricted by perennially flowing river systems such as the Zambezi-Chobe, The Shire-Kilombero, the Nile and the Shari-Logone. Just how far south the Namibian metapopulation extended historically remains unclear, except for the knowledge that it was not as far south as the Western Cape. These genetic results are presently too recent to have filtered into the taxonomic debate, however, the evidence suggests that in time, the taxonomic status of the Namibian metapopulation would have to be corrected.

The current black rhino population of Namibia consists of geographically separated, isolated populations occurring within formally protected areas; as well as on communal and private land. All black rhinos in Namibia remain the property of the State, and those occurring on private land, as well as some communal conservancies have been placed there under the black rhino custodianship program (in some conservancies black rhino occurred naturally). Despite being separated by space, the population is managed as a metapopulation, through management interventions, to achieve the objectives of the National Strategy.

A review of the previous black rhino management plan

The last approved black rhino management plan spanned the period 2002-2006, but has provided the basis for black rhino management activities in Namibia since then.

The main components of the strategy logical framework were:

- Vision: By 2030, the subspecies D.b. bicornis is re-established in viable, healthy breeding populations throughout its former range, and is sustainably utilized.

  Target: A metapopulation of at least 2 000 D.b.bicornis

  Progress: By 2015 the population estimate had reached 2062, already exceeding the 2030 Vision expectations.

- Goal or mission: We are committed to collectively manage the black rhinos of Namibia as a meta-population, increasing by at least 5% per year

  Key Performance Indicator: Numbers of D.b.bicornis in Namibia are increasing by at least 5% per year, and the D.b.bicornis metapopulation reaches 1500 animals in Namibia by the end of 2011.

  Progress: This target was already exceeded by 2009 when the population was estimated at 1665

The implementation of the previous black rhino management plan therefore surpassed expectations, and it was therefore not the intention to replace the plan per se, but rather to assess the plan against a changing environment, and to make adjustments accordingly.

Six strategic objectives and one enabling objective were identified in the previous management plan, with specific indicators. Annex 1 provides an overview of the objectives and achievements, as a means of identifying successes and challenges, and to identify gaps still to be achieved and lessons learned. Although overall the specific goal of the previous black rhino management plan was achieved, a number of the objective indicators were not realized, or could not be measured. In a number of cases, indicators identified were not accompanied by SMART criteria (specific, measureable, assignable, realistic and time-bound), or the criteria were not developed as had been proposed. The major gaps/challenges have been:

- Although the range expansion target was achieved, delays in preparing new areas for receiving black rhinos, and a slowing of applications for the rhino custodianship scheme has constrained the options available for further expansion. A more aggressive and pro-active strategy will be needed going forward to continue to expand available range;
- A breakdown in the coordination of activities occurred at a time when the Ministerial structure was changed, and certain responsibilities related to black rhino management were decentralized. This resulted in sub-optimal coordination in developing annual plans, and the dilution of a centralized database of information that feeds in to decision making and adaptive management;
- Carrying capacity of various areas has not been defined, making biological management targets difficult to quantify. At least an approximate value will need to be agreed on that can be refined over time;
- The onset of illegal killing of black rhinos since 2014 pushed the level of illegal killing beyond the target threshold of 1%. This will require additional efforts and a combination of existing and new techniques to minimize the impact of illegal killing, and bring levels back to less than 1% of the population, or at least contain them below the population growth rate;
- It was not possible to determine the incidence of mortalities due to disturbance;
- Budgetary constraints were experienced in some areas, meaning that a financing strategy will be required to ensure that planned activities can be fully implemented going forward;
- Outcome of law enforcement efforts were not systematically recorded such that success trends could be analysed and reported on.

These challenges and gaps have been considered in developing the revised management strategy. In particular, much more emphasis is now placed on protection. The operating environment is likely to change rapidly, and therefore an adaptive management approach becomes imperative, and the management strategy should not be so prescriptive to stifle innovative approaches towards achieving the ultimate goals. Furthermore, monitoring and evaluation systems will be essential to gauge efficacy of actions in individual populations and meta-population management, and ensuring that law enforcement actions are effective in containing losses within acceptable limits.

In this strategy, the aim is to achieve a black rhino meta-population growing at a rate greater than the losses incurred from illegal activities.

Logical Framework

The Vision and Mission from the previous Management Plan remain unchanged, being longer term statements of intent.

Vision

To conserve and sustainably manage a growing free ranging meta-population of black rhinoceros of the sub-species Diceros bicornis bicornis within Namibia

Mission

By 2030, the subspecies D.b.bicornis is re-established in viable, healthy breeding populations throughout its former range, and is sustainably utilized, contributing to the species conservation costs and to improved livelihoods.

Targets

The following adjusted targets are specified for the total number of black rhino in Namibia

A meta-population of D.b. bicornis that continues to show a positive growth trend

Strategic Objectives

The original six Strategic Objectives and Enabling Objective have been retained / revised from the previous management strategy, and an additional complementary Strategic Objective has been added to align to increasing emphasis towards knowledge and awareness as a tool to counteract the growing demand for rhino horn driving illegal killing of black rhino throughout their range. Under each objective, strategies have been reviewed and adjusted according to current conditions, and for each Objective, Indicators are listed which can be used in monitoring progress and achieved, and to guide adaptive management decisions.

The Strategies/Activities describe the types of actions that will be taken and can be used to develop detailed annual action plans.

- Expansion of range: The range area available for D.b. bicornis in Namibia is significantly expanded
- Biological management: the black rhino metapopulation is actively and adaptively managed to achieve sustained and positive population growth (based on sound biological principles and information including the recently discovered black rhino genetic information)
- Protection: Losses of black rhinos due to illegal killing, and preventable natural mortalities (fighting and disease) are minimized and contained within sustainable levels
- Policy and legislative framework: an enabling policy and legislative framework in place and implemented

- Support, awareness and incentives: Support and awareness (political and public) and incentives for black rhino conservation are in place and fostered for the long term sustainability of the black rhino programme A communication and awareness strategy is developed and implemented to ensure that all stakeholders are updated and to create awareness of black rhinoceros conservation issues, with the specific aim of changing peoples' perceptions and behaviour along the legal and illegal value chain.

- Coordination, cooperation and collaboration: for management of black rhinos by all stakeholders are secured

- Research: is undertaken to improve the understanding of the impacts of biological management as well as security interventions on black rhino populations, as well as factors affecting their productivity. Further genetic research into the uniqueness of the Namibian metapopulation will also be undertaken.

- Enabling objective: Capacity and sustainability: Resources (financial, human, physical) for effective and efficient rhino management sustainably secured and strategically used.

Limiting factors and threats

- ✧ The greatest threat to the Namibian black rhino population is the inception of intense illegal hunting for rhino.
- ✧ International constraints on the ability to maximize the economic value of black rhino (by trading legally in rhino horn) are an opportunity cost to Namibia.
- ✧ The level of resources required to effectively counter the illegal killing of black rhino far exceed available budgets without substantial external funding,

Assumptions

- ✧ Security situation will not compromise access to rhino areas, or limit the availability of areas for expanding the rhino range
- ✧ Relations between neighbouring states remain cordial and impact positively on rhino conservation efforts in the former rhino range.
- ✧ Disease outbreaks do not threaten health and viability of Namibia's rhino populations
- ✧ Effects of Global Climate Change on frequency of extreme drought, or periodic global weather events do not have negative long-term effects on key rhino habitats in Namibia
- ✧ MET budgets will be sufficient to allow for implementation of annual action plans
- ✧ Increased support is available from the international community for Namibia's rhino conservation effort and plans

Adaptive management

Adaptive management is "a structured, iterative process of robust decision making in the face of uncertainty, with an aim to reducing uncertainty over time via system monitoring". Figure 1 provides an overview of the cycle for implementation and revision of the strategy, using an adaptive management approach. This approach acknowledges that it is not always possible to predict the exact response to a management action in a complex environment influenced by multiple factors, but that over time understanding can be improved and actions adjusted accordingly.

Strategies to achieve objectives

1 Expansion of range

1.1 Strategic Objective

The range area available for D.b. bicornis in Namibia is significantly expanded

1.2 Rationale and context

In order to achieve the population target outlined, it is imperative that expansion in the available area of suitable and protected habitat within former or historical range of the subspecies be secured. This will become more challenging over time, as the most suited areas will have already been used. Over the past three years, areas formally used for black rhinos have become unsuited due to high levels of illegal killing and related security issues, and unless this trend can be effectively reversed, available range will continue to shrink. Furthermore, recently fewer applications for the black rhino custodianship scheme on private land are being received. This is attributed to remaining farms not meeting the minimum criteria in terms of size or fencing, as well as possible concerns by potential custodians regarding risks of illegal activities. A more proactive approach will therefore be required to secure land, and to convince private land-owners to consider becoming custodians, including financial support and incentives to help counter the costs associated with the monitoring and protection of black rhino.

Spreading the population is a mitigating strategy against illegal killing, especially if animals can be placed in more secure areas. Emphasis should also be placed on large contiguous ranges, which in the long run will reduce the management costs arising from translocations when populations reach carrying capacity.

1.3 Indicators

1.3.1 Protected areas

Increase in range by selection and development of protected areas with suitable and secure habitat, using existing selection criteria developed by MET. Areas likely to satisfy criteria for selection and development include:

- ✧ Khaudum National Park (3 840 km^2)

  Khaudum NP was already previously identified and work has commenced on preparing the necessary infrastructure for receiving, managing and protecting black rhino.

- ✧ Fish River/Ai-Ais and adjoining state land (farms) (1 960 km^2) (as joint venture with areas selected as part of the custodianship scheme)

- ✧ Naute Game Park

1.3.2 Communal Land Areas

Until the security and protection of black rhinos can be guaranteed, strict criteria and screening will need to be introduced before considering the translocation of any black rhinos onto communal land.

1.3.3 Private Land Areas (custodianship scheme)

Expansion in the size and number of custodianship areas on private land (using revised selection criteria and approaches); total area increased by at least 1 100 km^2

- ✧ Pro-actively targeting land owners with suitable land identified in terms of habitat and size;
- ✧ Pro-actively engaging farms neighboring existing custodians, as a means of expanding range;
- ✧ Making it more attractive to become or remain a custodian by introducing mechanisms to assist custodians to cover some of the management costs, as well as considering innovative incentive mechanisms.

1.4 Activities

1.4.1 All areas

- ✧ Review and where necessary revise the existing criteria and guidelines for the placement of black rhinos on land (protected areas, communal conservancies and private land) to provide a framework for both the qualification and development of individual areas as suitable for rhino conservation and for the allocation of rhinos. Criteria and guidelines should take into consideration the changing dynamics linked to increased poaching pressures.
- ✧ Annually assess composition of small populations to ensure that they remain viable breeding populations.

1.4.2 Protected areas

- ✧ Khaudum National Park:
  i. Review feasibility in light of infrastructure needs (eg fencing) and capacity needs

ii. Complete management infrastructure development according to schedule, including development of waters, roads and housing for staff (2016/2017)
iii. Develop management, monitoring and protection protocols (2016/2017);
iv. Identify staff to be stationed in Khaudum NP, and provide specific training for black rhino management, monitoring and protection (2017/2018);
v. Translocate founder population of black rhinos to Khaudum NP (2018/2019).

- Fish River/Ai-Ais and adjoining state land (farms)
  i. Conduct a needs assessment and a feasibility study (including capacity on ground)
  ii. Develop a plan
  iii. Develop a budget
  iv. Implement plan within three years.

- Naute Game Park
  i. Conduct a feasibility study (including capacity on ground)

1.4.3 Communal Land Areas

- All areas
  i. Review status of each communal land area with black rhinos and assess in particular the security of remaining populations of black rhinos
  ii. Develop action plans for existing populations for approval
  iii. Budget for and implement approved action plans

1.4.4 Custodianship Areas on freehold land

- Develop and submit for approval mechanisms for providing management fee – distribution from trophy hunting revenue (see Annex 3);
- Develop a positive incentive model to be partially funded from GPTF, with match funding secured through donors. An example could be a once off payment for every calf reaching 1 year of age on the farm;
- Investigate options for donor financing to provide match funding to expenses incurred by custodians to secure safety of black rhinos (e.g. payment of rhino guards);
- Proactively identify and approach suitable farms to attract more custodians, and target farms bordering existing custodians. Develop an action plan accordingly, and implement;
- Develop structures to provide custodian representation on Rhino Technical Advisory Group (Annex 2)
- Undertake its obligations under the custodianship agreement, including but not restricted to:
  - Providing veterinary and security support as may be required
  - Undertake regular inspections (made prior arrangements for this and present official supporting documents to be provided by visiting MET and Nampol staff)
  - Undertake marking and where appropriate dehorning of animals on a three-year cycle (this also acts as a census and check of the status of custodianship populations)
  - Investigate the most efficient and cost effective security option to support custodian farmers in mitigating the current threat
  - Develop and implement/provide support and feeding plans for custodians during times of drought

2 Biological management

2.1 Strategic Objective

The black rhino metapopulation is actively and adaptively managed to achieve sustained and positive population growth (based on sound biological principles and information)

2.2 Rationale and context

In order to achieve the targets, and in light of the increase in illegal killings, now more than ever it is imperative that the black rhino population is managed for maximum biological growth in order to counter the impact of increased mortalities. Maintenance of high growth rates can be achieved by keeping population densities at or below preferred management densities; by removal of rhinos in order to stimulate growth in areas where it is evident that density dependent effects are reducing recruitment and survival of rhinos; by ensuring genetic integrity of particularly small populations; managing disease; and by ensuring that animals have reliable access to water at all times.

Successful biological management depends on good data. Adequate monitoring is required to understand numbers, distribution and trends as a basis for informed management actions and decision-making, and monitoring of a number of parameters is therefore essential, and forms part of this objective.

The dual objectives of expanding the rhino range and increasing rhino numbers should be pursued as long as populations continue to increase.

2.3 Indicators

- Monitoring criteria to be collected are defined for every population, and protocols defined;
- Monitoring and annual census data from every population are captured on a national database within two months of actions, and are analyzed and available for adaptive management decisions in the form of a dashboard showing trends against historic values and targets, and in the form of annual status reports;
- Capacity is in place to maintain the national rhino database;
- Performance of each population is monitored regularly and assessed on an annual basis and action plans developed accordingly using an adaptive management approach;
- Annual action plans are developed to maintain predicted growth; budgets are secured and at least 90% of planned activities are successfully implemented.
- Populations are adaptively managed and the metapopulation is increasing at 3% (or more) per annum.

2.4 Activities

2.4.1 Monitoring

- Define criteria and monitoring protocols for each population, including but not restricted to:
    i. Annual population survey methodology
    ii. Population structure monitoring
    iii. Body condition scoring
    iv. Database of marked animals
    v. Routine patrolling and sightings
    vi. Births

vii. Parentage (small populations / custodians) viii. Mortalities
ix. DNA profiling of individuals to monitor inbreeding levels
x. Genome sequencing of members of the metapopulation to investigate whether Namibia's black rhinos are genetically specialised (adapted) to their arid ecoregion/environment.

- ✧ Collate all existing data into a consolidated database and dashboard showing trends
- ✧ Develop annual monitoring schedule for each population
- ✧ Budget for implementation of monitoring schedules
- ✧ Implement annual monitoring programme in each population, and develop reporting mechanisms to ensure data reaches the National database.

2.4.2 Adaptive management

- ✧ Redefine and revise Rhino Technical Advisory Group terms of reference and convene meetings on quarterly basis to oversee black rhino metapopulation management;
- ✧ On an annual basis, assess each population and develop action plan for strategic removals / translocations to promote growth, avoid losses, and retain genetic integrity of the national population:
  i. Translocations – strategically used to achieve meta-population and biological management objectives
  ii. Sustainably utilize surplus black rhino and black rhino products to the best advantage of black rhino conservation:
    a. Hunt surplus males in compliance with CITES and MET regulations and recommendations;
    b. Identify animals for sale to former range outside Namibia
  iii. In smaller areas, plan sex/age of removals/introductions, and use parentage to take strategic decisions in support of genetic integrity– avoiding in-breeding
  iv. Other management actions required in support of objectives
  v. Existing custodians with excess bulls are considered first for populating new areas – thus reduce mortalities resulting from fighting, and source of animals for establishing new populations)
- ✧ Using available information, adaptively refine carrying capacity estimates for each population on an annual basis.
- ✧ Maintain population below biological carrying capacity – and use excess animals to populate new or alternate areas.
- ✧ Ensure healthy and productive population structure – e.g. removal of excess bulls
- ✧ Ensure infrastructure is maintained in support of maximum growth – waters, fencing
- ✧ Manage health and diseases, including the potential impacts of poisonous plants.
- ✧ Identify needs-driven applied research programmes

2.4.3 Injured and orphaned animals

- ✧ Develop guideline for dealing with injured and orphaned animals that takes into consideration the cost/benefit – with emphasis on potential future contribution to population growth by
  i. Determining best placed locations/custodians to assist in regards to areas of countries and potential hotspots
  ii. Have vetted or pre-approved custodians in place which can provide guaranteed service for injured and/or orphaned animals

3 Protection

3.1 Strategic Objective

Losses of black rhinos due to illegal killing and preventable natural mortalities (fighting and disease) are minimized.

3.2 Rationale and Context

As had been the case in the past, and following a period of relatively low levels of illegal killing of black rhinos in Namibia, once again the major threat to black rhino numbers is poaching and illegal trade in rhino horn. Since 2014, Namibia has experienced a dramatic increase in losses of black rhinos from illegal killing, and over this period levels based on detected cases have exceeded the target threshold of 1% of the meta-population. A concerted effort will need to be made to reverse the trend, in order to sustain population growth and maintain the economic, tourism, social and community value/benefits of rhino.

The modus operandi being utilised both locally and internationally in the illegal killing of rhino and the smuggling of their horns in recent years clearly indicates the increasing involvement of highly organised and well-structured crime syndicates that are operating a lucrative international enterprise[4]. This means that protection efforts will equally need to be scaled up, better organized and coordinated, pro-active, and focussed on shifting the 'front-line' away from the rhino populations, with the aim of intercepting illegal killing before it takes place. This will require a combination of appropriate management action, improved legislation and sentences, cooperative Wildlife crime related intelligence, detection, effective investigation and prosecution, law enforcement and community support.

Preventing the theft of legally acquired horn and their leakage onto illegal market is also important and requires good horn stockpile management.

The costs of protection have and can be expected to continue to escalate, increasingly making rhinos a liability to conservation authorities, private and communal landowners. Existing benefit streams from tourism, limited trophy hunting and live sales of rhinos are not sufficient to offset these security costs, and it will therefore become essential for the International community to mobilize increasingly more external financing to help the State deal with security, and to provide incentives to private landowners to keep black rhinos under the custodianship scheme.

At an international level, efforts are needed to reduce the market demand in order to diminish the driving force behind the illegal killing. The study by Ferreira et al. (2014)[5], outlined the complex relationships that different management strategies can have in affecting the price of horn and thus the incentive to poach, given that the incentive to poach is influenced by the potential returns versus the risk (likelihood of detection, and magnitude of punishment). Demand for horn is driven by traditional and new uses, and the supply of horn is affected by attempts to restrict illegal activities (or provide horn by legal means). Whilst demand remains constant, restricting supply will increase illegal price, thus increasing the incentives to poach, unless the risk of detection and consequences are equally increasing (ie conservation authorities forced to engage in progressively more aggressive and costly law enforcement activities). At some point, the price for horn is so high that the incentive to poach exceeds all disincentives.

[4] National Strategy for the safety and security of rhinoceros populations in South Arica. Department of Environmental Affairs, Republic of South Africa.
[5] Ferreira, S.M., Pfab, M. & Knight, M. 2014. Management Strategies to curb rhino poaching: Alternative options using a cost-benefit approach. South African Journal of Science. Volume 110, Number 5/6.

This study concluded that curbing rhino poaching will require a variety of responses, as rhino poaching is driven by a complex interaction between risks and rewards. Unrestricted legal trade in rhino horn emerged as the strategy with the highest benefit score, but is a strategy that is not currently readily available under CITES provisions. Reactive responses such as enhanced law enforcement and dehorning focus on the symptoms of the problems, without addressing the cause. Thus an adaptive approach is needed that will tackle the challenge along the entire value chain – aiming to reduce the demand for (illegal) horn, whilst curbing the illegal off take.

3.3 Indicators

- A national rhino security committee is operational and active
- Poaching mortalities are maintained below 1% of the meta-population, or at least below the annual growth rate of the population.
- Mortalities from disease minimized

3.4 Activities

3.4.1 Coordination and collaboration

- Implement management and reporting structures that include the Rhino Security Committee that will among others, develop and implement regular security risk assessments and make recommendations.
- Revise/develop and implement Rhino Security Plans and Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) based on "principles of best practice" for each black rhino population
- Strategically identify key partners/players in the security of black rhinos and deploy according to key areas of function/expertise, to ensure optimum utilization of resources, and maximum impact

3.4.2 Pro-active security and effective anti-poaching

- Conduct foot, horseback, aerial and/or vehicle patrols in all rhino population areas
- Maintain track log records of all patrols, and use for planning and analysing effort.
- Maintain aircraft surveillance and patrols in large wild populations
- Strategically plan areas and intensity of patrol coverage in all rhino areas, based on law enforcement monitoring (patrol reports, Wildlife crime related intelligence) and aerial surveillance. Keep records of patrolling efforts.
- Establish and maintain observation and monitoring points as appropriate for the detection of illegal activities
- Develop and maintain patrols of boundaries (e.g. fence lines) and peripheral areas to all rhino populations
- Investigate and introduce new tools to improve efficiency and effectiveness of rhino security efforts, such as:
    - Dog unit for detection and tracking (Annex 4)
    - Horse patrols
    - Special reactive field units trained in Special Forces techniques
    - Operational room
    - Technological systems to improve control over movements of vehicles and people (e.g. e-toll type electronic system for vehicles and electronic access cards for staff and visitors)
    - Entry/exit point screening
    - Helicopter on call for rapid response

- ✧ Zone populations into high, medium and low security zones, and move reproductive animals to areas of higher security

Table 1 Levels of security measures

Within parks / populations	• Population management • Monitoring • Pro-active anti-poaching • Surveillance • Wildlife crime related intelligence • Patrolling • Control room
Boundary of parks/populations	• Control of entry exit • Detection products/ firearms/ ammunition
Surrounding areas	• Wildlife crime related intelligence
National borders	• Compliance • Detection products – use of dogs
Regional	• Cooperation in security, intelligence and law enforcement
International	• Cooperation in security, intelligence and law enforcement • CITES • IUCN

3.4.3 Encourage neighbor/community involvement and buffer areas

Security and protection of the rhino population should become a combined effort, and land users and communities neighboring important populations can become important partners in the efforts.

- ✧ Know the neighbours: Map out and classify land neighbouring key populations (Etosha, Waterberg), with contact details of owners/managers;
- ✧ Develop strategies for different land categories – considering how land users can be engaged and involved in protection efforts;
- ✧ Undertake a targeted awareness campaign with neighbours.
- ✧ Important to develop information sharing mechanism with custodians and rhino stakeholders

3.4.4 Dehorning

Dehorning of black rhino as a security measure is a contentious and expensive intervention, and it is therefore prudent to have a clear policy and guideline for dehorning in Namibia:

- ✧ Develop a policy guideline on dehorning of rhinos, outlining the criteria and target for each black rhino population in Namibia;
- ✧ Review and update standard operating protocols for dehorning
- ✧ Plan and budget for dehorning activities as part of annual plans
- ✧ Implement dehorning activities according to annual plans
- ✧ Monitor dehorned animals as a means of identifying any negative biological impacts

3.4.5 Capacity building

- ✧ Provide training to enhance the skills of the anti-poaching and law enforcement efforts
- ✧ Provide specialized scene-of-crime training courses/workshops for MET law enforcement staff.
- ✧ Provide preservation of crime scene training to MET staff, farmers and community game scouts.

- ✧ Acknowledge staff involved in the rhino protection efforts and ensure they are properly equipped for the job. Aim to promote a feeling of pride and mutual loyalty (esprit de corps) among staff involved in black rhino protection and management.
- ✧ Promote cooperation, sharing and a common understanding of best practices on security, crime prevention, combating poaching, illegal or unethical
- ✧ Provide training opportunities for custodians too.

3.4.6 Improved Wildlife crime related intelligence

- ✧ Develop and maintain Wildlife crime related intelligence networks, in order to detect and pre-empt incipient poaching activity;
- ✧ Foster positive interactions and relationships with communities, private rhino custodians and other stakeholders;
- ✧ Introduce effective communications structures, public awareness and education campaigns and incentive schemes to facilitate effective and efficient information exchange;
- ✧ Establish a database and information sharing mechanisms for available information in respect of rhino poaching incidents in the country
- ✧ Important to develop information sharing mechanism with custodians and rhino stakeholders

3.4.7 Securing stockpiles of rhino horn

- ✧ Maintain stockpiles of rhino horn secure and well documented (marked and registered)
- ✧ Maintain mechanisms to ensure that all black rhino horn collected, whether from natural mortalities, seizures or dehorning, are deposited in the National stockpile;
- ✧ Declare rhino horn stockpiles to the CITES Secretariat on an annual basis, before 28 February, according to format defined by the Secretariat.

3.4.8 International cooperation

- ✧ Co-ordination and cooperation on Wildlife crime related intelligence in security work with other southern African range states.

4 Policy and legislative framework

4.1 Strategic Objective

An enabling policy and legislative framework in place and implemented

4.2 Rationale and Context

A strong and effective legislative foundation is needed to enable and support key components of Namibia's rhino conservation effort. In view of the escalation of illegal killing of black rhino since 2014, it is imperative that efforts are in place to ensure that the probability of an offender being caught and convicted (with a significant sentence) is high.

4.3 Activities

4.3.1 Legislative framework

- ✧ Periodically review the legislative framework to ensure that sentences and fines remain relevant. Penalties must be sufficiently severe to act as a disincentive – aim for no option for bail or fines.
- ✧ Revise and strengthen specific regulations of the draft Protected area and wildlife Bill related to rhino conservation
- ✧ Follow up and ensure approval and enactment of the Parks and Wildlife Management Bill 2001

4.3.2 Lobbying

- ✧ Lobby for the engagement of individual prosecutors with background and experience in cases of wildlife-related crime and work closely with prosecutors to strengthen cases in order to secure a high rate of conviction.
- ✧ Lobby for the use of specialized investigation techniques in the investigation of wildlife-crime-related offences, as appropriate, in support of conventional investigation techniques;
- ✧ Lobby Prosecutor General to ensure that all cases of rhino-related crime are referred to the High Court.

4.3.3 Strengthen prosecution processes

- ✧ Prosecute members of organized crime groups implicated in rhinoceros related crimes under a combination of relevant legislation which carry appropriate penalties.
- ✧ Conduct regular sensitization of magistrates and ensure they are aware and supportive of National efforts to counter the illegal poaching of black rhinos and illegal trade in rhino products, in order to secure a high rate of conviction.
- ✧ Investigate and improve use of forensic science to the fullest extent

4.3.4 Monitoring

- ✧ Maintain a database of all poaching or illegal trade cases and a record of the outcome of investigations and convictions.

4.3.5 Regional and International cooperation

- ✧ Continue to build international relationships and partnerships with nations, counterpart organizations and individuals
- ✧ Retain CITES quotas for live sales for export and trophy hunting of black rhinos.
- ✧ Lobby potential importing countries to allow import of rhino trophies.
- ✧ Use CITES mechanisms to lobby non-range states implicated in the illegal trade of rhinoceros horn as a consumer state to implement demand reduction strategies according to Decision 16.86 on rhinoceros, and to increase surveillance at ports and airports.

5 Support, awareness and incentives

5.1 Strategic Objective

Support and awareness (political and public) and incentives for black rhino conservation are in place and fostered for the long term sustainability of the black rhino programme

5.2 Rationale and Context

The long term sustainability of the black rhino management programme depends on support at all levels of Namibian society, from the top political level (to provide the necessary resources and legislative backing), to the poorest communities neighboring black rhino populations. It is therefore imperative that adequate and active support from politicians and the Namibian public, both those living with or in close proximity to rhinos, and other citizens who value the continued existence of rhinos in Namibia, be secured. This support can be fostered by creating and improving opportunities for people living on communal land or community conservancies to benefit in some way from the presence and growth of a rhino population close to or in the same area as they live, and also where this benefit stimulates improved efforts by communities to monitor and protect these animals. Rhinos can and should be used as an important ingredient in increasing the value communities place on wildlife resident in conservancies on communal land. This is also applicable to the private sector black rhino custodians.

Communication and awareness plays an important role in nurturing support. "Creating awareness of the negative consequences and impacts of illegal harvest and illegal trade of wildlife and plants, particularly on wild populations and the ecosystems in which they exist" is identified as one of the demand reduction strategies to combat illegal trade in species (CITES CoP 17 Doc 18.1). Furthermore, publicizing successful law enforcement efforts and convictions can act as a deterrent to other potential poachers/traffickers.

Good communication and awareness aims to change peoples' perceptions and behaviour along the legal and illegal value chain through:

- ✧ Increasing awareness and appreciation of the black rhino; its conservation status; the importance of Namibia's black rhino at global scale; and the importance of Rhino conservation management
- ✧ Strengthening the legal and enforcement deterrent by creating greater awareness of legislative provisions and penalties prohibiting trade in rhino products;
- ✧ Raising awareness of the negative consequences and impact of poaching and consumption of illegal rhino products, particularly on wild rhino populations;
- ✧ Raising awareness of communities on the economic, social and environmental impacts of illicit activities
- ✧ Encouraging the general public to report activities related to the illegal killing of rhinos and the trafficking of rhino horns to appropriate authorities for further investigation

It is particularly important that the "message" is correct in communications. Often inadvertently the wrong message can be sent when publicizing the high value of horn, demand levels, poor apprehension or sentencing rates[6] (Annex 6)

[6] Mike Knight, presentation at International Wildlife Ranching Symposium, 2016

5.3 Indicators

- Government budget allocated to MET is stable or increasing over time and is sufficient to finance the annual plans for black rhino conservation under the Ministry;
- Benefits to stakeholders are increased through the sustainable utilization of rhinos (tourism, positive incentives, and sustainable consumptive utilization);
- Diversity of stakeholders in active rhino management is increased;
- A communication and awareness strategy is developed and implemented;

5.4 Activities

5.4.1 Stakeholder involvement

- Revise composition of coordinating structures to ensure that all direct stakeholders in the management of Namibia's rhinos are represented;
- Provide regular updates on the status of black rhino conservation efforts to stakeholders, including at Political level;
- Strongly motivate government budget allocations for black rhino conservation activities;
- Promote active engagement and involvement with rhino custodians.

5.4.2 Incentives

- Channel revenues generated from black rhinos to the GPTF to be used for black rhino conservation
- Develop mechanisms and recommended options for providing incentives for rhino conservation outside protected areas in Namibia (applying incentives for successes (e.g. calves born, poachers apprehended), and penalties for mortalities).
- Continue to promote and maximize benefits to communities through tourism, sustainable utilization and incentives.
- Continue to engage within CITES for sustainable use of black rhinos (trophy hunting, live exports within range).
- Lobby for controlled trade in rhino horn stockpiles, with proceeds going to rhino conservation
- Initiate framework on future private ownership/utilization of rhinos which does not compromise collaborative management of Namibia’s black rhino metapopulation

5.4.3 Awareness

- Create a communications and awareness working group, as a subcommittee of RTAG;
- Develop a communication and awareness strategy for approval by RMC, which ensures the correct message is communicated;
- Implement rhino awareness campaigns within and around all black rhino populations using various media (printed, radio, TV, events)
- Conduct and publish case studies on issues of rhino conservation and benefits (social & financial).
- Facilitate exchange visits between communities and stakeholders
- Emphasize rhino issues in submissions to cabinet, speeches, reports
- Facilitate exposure of politicians to rhino conservation activities in Namibia
- Train conservancy representatives in rhino monitoring (by dedicated NGOs – SRT, and MET)
- Train conservancy representatives in rhino-related tourism services (by dedicated NGOs – SRT, and MET)
- Develop information materials

5.4.4 Publicity and public relations

- ✧ Publicize successes in law enforcement: apprehensions, seizures, convictions
- ✧ Actively monitor and manage media tone on issues related to black rhino conservation

5.4.5 Confidentiality

- ✧ Information will only be disseminated according to the guidelines provided on confidentiality of information strictly on a need to know basis.
- ✧ A declaration of confidentiality on sensitive rhino information will be drawn up and signed by MET staff, custodianship farms owners, and representatives of conservancies and NGOs participating in rhino conservation.
- ✧ Develop a SOP for sharing of sensitive information with all rhino owners and custodians.
- ✧ Develop clear chain of command/custody of information to ensure protection of information provided by rhino custodians

6 Coordination, cooperation and collaboration

6.1 Strategic Objective

Coordination, cooperation and collaboration for management of black rhinos by all stakeholders are secured

6.2 Rationale and Context

With the increasing diversification of land regimes where rhinos are protected and managed, and the increase in the stake-holding in rhino conservation in Namibia, coordination and collaboration between Government and all participants are essential. This will be dependent on institution and successful operation of coordination structures (e.g. consultative committees, means for interaction between stakeholders), and regulation and control of human activities that may negatively impact on rhino survival or breeding health.

The following structures are therefore developed to facilitate coordination, cooperation and collaboration, and deal with the existing challenges:

- Rhino Unit

  The Rhino Unit (consisting of members with well-defined functions and responsibilities) is responsible for all monitoring activities, and for providing the measures, trends and indicators required for adaptive management. The Rhino Unit will coordinate and manage all surveys, capture and translocations activities, using teams and expertise drawn from the respective components of the Ministry of Environment and Tourism. The Rhino Unit also provides the coordinating and secretarial support to the other structures, and is an essential component for ensuring cohesion in the rhino management efforts.

- Rhino Technical Advisory Group (RTAG)
  The RTAG is the advisory body for the biological / metapopulation management aspects of the black rhino strategy – including surveys and translocations. The RTAG is chaired by the Director Scientific Services.
- Rhino Security Committee (RSC)
  The RSC is the coordinating and advisory committee on rhino security, chaired by the Director Wildlife and Parks.
- Rhino Management Committee (RMC)
  Decision making body that exists to advise top management in the Ministry on rhino issues and to endorse the annual work plans.

Organizational structure and terms of reference for coordinating committees and staff to be operative under this plan are provided in Annex 2.

An adaptive management approach will provide the flexibility to adjust management actions as may become necessary based on evaluation of outcomes and trends.

6.3 Indicators

6.3.1 Coordination

- Coordinating structures and mechanisms in place, representing the interests of all stakeholders (Government, Private farmers, Community conservancies, Traditional, Regional and Local Authorities, NGO actors, Concessionaires and tourist operators)
- Develop clear communication channels between MET, Nampol, Custodians and communities regarding the rights in terms of rhino protection.

6.3.2 Cooperation and Collaboration

- Number of agreed stakeholder meetings actually held
- Work plan for individual populations agreed by all relevant stakeholders and approved by RMC/Minister of Environment and Tourism
- 90% of activities in the agreed work-plans are implemented

6.4 Activities

6.4.1 Coordination

- Appoint a Rhino Coordination Unit with a Rhino Coordinator and core support staff (database management, full time Rhino Custodianship Scheme Manager and a full time Private White Rhino Coordinator)
- Review terms of reference and representation in, and re-establish the Rhino Technical Advisory Group (RTAG), and convene quarterly meetings
- Encourage rhino custodians to organize themselves to represent the needs of custodians, and to nominate a representative for the RTAG
- Re-establish the Rhino Management Committee, and convene bi-annual meetings
- Delegate responsibility for consistent representation at international and regional rhino conservation bodies (e.g. AfRSG, RMG, RESG, SADC)

6.4.2 Cooperation and Collaboration

- Develop and sign memorandum of understanding with all non-government direct stakeholders (e.g. SRT, custodians)
- Adopt an adaptive management approach to allow for adjustments to plans if and when needed
- Assess and evaluate previous year's action plans by area, and develop collaborative annual action plans and budgets for individual rhino areas, based on strategy and informed by monitoring information and trends, using adaptive management
- Delegate roles and responsibilities for each component of the area action plans
- Gain approval for action plans through RMC by Minister.
- Actively pursue national, regional and international cooperation and collaboration

7 Research

7.1 Strategic Objective

Research is undertaken to improve the understanding of the impacts of biological management as well as security interventions (such as IPZ, dehorning, notching disturbance) on black rhino populations, as well as factors affecting their productivity. Understanding the genetic uniqueness of the Namibian metapopulation is also of critical importance as it may prioritise conservation resources towards a highly specialised desert-adapted metapopulation.

7.2 Rationale and Context

Increasing the understanding and impact of various management interventions can help assess the long term suitability of appropriateness of various approaches. In many cases, this can be achieved by identifying and monitoring key parameters at the time of introducing an intervention, and analyzing trends er time. This is an essential requirement for adaptive management. Other times, specific questions need to be answered, and such may require more than simple monitoring. An example is the case of assessing the uniqueness of the Namibian metapopulation. The Namibian black rhino also inhabits one of the harshest habitats on the continent, and as such, may have undergone genetic adaptation to cope under these environmental conditions. The MET has long realized the potential uniqueness of the Namibian black rhino, and is therefore spearheading a metapopulation-wide genomic survey in collaboration with rhino geneticists from Cardiff University (UK) and the University of Venda (RSA). Genetic samples have already been collected during routine translocations and whole genome analysis of these specimens will be carried out to determine the selective influence of Namibia's environment, which parts of the genome have undergone natural selection/adaptation and which genes are involved in the process of specialization.

7.3 Indicators

Research has been identified and is undertaken according to schedules

7.4 Activities

- Identify applied research to address information needs identified as part of the decision making process of the RTAG;
- Plan, budget and implement research

7.4.1 Research topics

Potential research topics should be discussed and identified at the RTAG meetings, based on gaps in knowledge or data identified during discussions. Some possible research topics already identified include:

- Impacts of dehorning on behaviour / biology
- Mangetti – potential impact of gifblaar (Dichapetalum cymosum) on black rhinos and other wildlife
- Genetic analysis of populations and genetic diversity index (determination of levels of inbreeding)
- The evolutionary uniqueness of the Namibian black rhino. A metapopulation genomics study is being carried out to determine not only whether the Namibian black rhino is evolutionarily unique, but also the molecular genomic mechanisms underlying this specialisation.
- Fine-tuning of carcase aging techniques

8 Enabling objective: Capacity and sustainability

8.1 Strategic Objective

Resources (financial, human, physical) for effective and efficient rhino management sustainably secured and strategically used.

8.2 Rationale and Context

All the key strategic objectives of the rhino conservation strategy will be enabled by provision of adequate capacity within Namibia to carry out specified activities, and budgeting for adequate funding within Government and the private sector involved in rhino conservation in Namibia. However, in the interest of long term sustainability, options for increasing income from the sustainable use of rhino through live sales, trophy hunting and ultimately legal trade in rhino horn need to be pursued. If non-government stakeholders in rhino conservation receive direct benefits, they will be more motivated to invest in rhino conservation, lessening the burden on Government.

8.3 Indicators

- ✧ Positive trend in cost efficiency (decreasing cost per additional rhino)
- ✧ At least 90% of skills base required to implement activities in annual plans are available
- ✧ Increasing trend in monetary benefits distributed to direct stakeholders
- ✧ External funds for positive, result driven incentives increasing over time

8.4 Activities

8.4.1 Financing strategy

- ✧ Develop annual plans together with financial plan
- ✧ Develop mechanisms to ensure that funding for rhino conservation is sufficient, well-directed and adequately tracked
- ✧ Monitor costs per activity in order and population, in order to calculate cost indices and trends over time
- ✧ Maximise revenue from the sustainable use of black rhino (trophy hunting, live sales, tourism)
- ✧ Explore the feasibility of initiating a legal trade in rhino horn.
- ✧ Explore options for incentivizing rhino custodians

8.4.2 Capacity building

- ✧ Revisit and revise establishment structure and staffing needs for rhino conservation within MET, based on the rhino strategy and associated activities.
- ✧ Revise/develop job descriptions for all key duties (e.g. rhino coordination; custodianship scheme management, section rangers/rhino monitors)
- ✧ Based on annual plans, identify skills needs and develop training requirements and training programmes (including stakeholders and implementers) to fill skills gaps

Conservation guidelines and operational principles

To inform the activities outlined in the Logical Framework of this strategy, this section provides guidelines or operational principles for rhino conservation in Namibia, including explanatory detail not included in the Logical Framework. Some of these principles have been drawn from the previous conservation strategy (MET 1997), from relevant legislation or conservation developed since 1997, and from discussion of a number of key issues during the Technical Workshop (June 2001).

Legal Protection

Black rhinos have the same legal status in Namibia regardless of their origin or locality.

Present Regulations

a) Black and white rhinos are designated Specially Protected Game in Ordinance 4 of 1975, definition of this category specifying that no person may hunt such game without a permit from the Minister (excluding Section 26 (4) (a)) with a fine not exceeding N$ 200 000 or to imprisonment 20 years imprisonment if they should do so.
b) The Controlled Wildlife Products and Trade Act (Act No. 9 of 2008) defines rhino and rhino products as "controlled wildlife products", and prohibits possession of or dealing with controlled wildlife products, except with a permit. On conviction, offenders are liable to a fine not exceeding N$ 200 000 or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding 20 years or to both such fine and imprisonment.
c) All aspects of possession, transport, sale, capture, hunting and disturbance in game reserves of rhino are under legal control through the above-mentioned legislation while certain other aspects are also covered by veterinary legislation.
d) Legislation on disturbing rhinos: if a rhino is wilfully disturbed it confirms to the definition of "hunt" in the Ordinance 4 of 1975 and if found guilty the fine in paragraph (a) above is applicable.
e) The current legislation is contained within the Nature Conservation Ordnance of 1975. This is under revision within a new Protected Area and Wildlife Bill, and the updated legislation will contain updated definitions for categories of protected areas (based on the IUCN PA Management categories (IUCN 1994)), and provision for selection and declaration of new protected areas. Other wildlife policies relevant to rhino conservation which have been developed by MET and approved since 1997 include:
f) Policy on the Management and Control of trade in parts and derivatives of elephants and rhinos (MET 1999)
g) Policy on Categories of Protection of Wildlife and the Taxonomic Coverage of Future Legislation on Wildlife (MET 2001, in draft)

Population estimation and monitoring

Monitoring of rhino and patrolling of their range are established management practices in all rhino populations in Namibia, providing the basis for estimating population sizes and trends, and tracking breeding performance of individuals and populations. Monitoring also provides a valuable surveillance function, and serves to prevent poaching. Aerial patrols, waterhole counts using identification photographs and special anti-poaching units are used routinely for this purpose.

For all areas except Etosha, rhino monitoring is principally based on individual identification. The effectiveness of this method for use in population estimation is improved by ear-notching of most or the entire un-marked or 'clean' segment of the adult population. High frequency monitoring and patrolling routines have to be maintained for the foreseeable future for all unit populations, supplemented by indirect methods using incidence of rhino sign.

In Etosha National Park, the use of sample aerial block counts was tested in 2002, initially using fixed wing aircraft, and since 2007 using a helicopter. This method has proven effective, providing an estimate with confidence limits. Counts take place every second year.

Genetic and Demographic Management of Rhinos

In addition to the imperative of maintaining the distinct subspecies/ecotypes of the black rhino, as recommended by the AfRSG (Emslie & Brooks 1999), it is important for the long term survival of small populations of endangered taxa that residual genetic diversity is conserved, and that the availability of this diversity is maximised as an insurance policy for future evolutionary adaptation. The recent genetic survey conducted by Moodley et al. (2017) showed that the present-day Namibian metapopulation contains some of the lowest levels of nuclear genetic diversity (microsatellites) of any of the remaining subspecies. This stresses the need to conserve as much of this remaining variation as possible. However, levels of historic variation from 19th century south-western Angolan specimens show that genetic diversity in this region was always lower than in other parts of Africa. This could mean that lower diversity may not have been caused only by human activities (eg. poaching, habitat destruction) but also by the process of natural selection for alleles with a higher fitness in desert conditions. Such heavy selection will also reduce genetic variation. Genome level studies are currently being carried out with international partners to shed further light on this. Regardless of these findings, maintaining genetic variation in the metapopulation is of primary importance. The process of maintaining residual genetic variation can be achieved through rapid growth of populations, avoiding the founding of small populations as well as maintaining a large number of breeders per population. These measures will help avoid the erosive effect of genetic drift and inbreeding depression. Understanding the genetic uniqueness of the Namibian metapopulation will help avoid, or even predict, the potentially harmful effects of outbreeding depression. It will also provide a framework for understanding the valuable genes that are responsible for local adaptation and/or disease resistance. To this end the following principles will be applied in management of Namibia's black rhinos:

- No D.b.bicornis of Namibian origin may be used for mixing with other recognized subspecies, and none will be provided for translocation to areas in neighbouring countries outside of the recognised former range of this subspecies and vice versa. No other subspecies of black rhino shall be imported into Namibia.
- In populations of less than 100 breeding individuals, provision will be made for the exchange of individuals, or managed migration, at the rate of one per generation (8 years). The probability of survival and breeding contribution of migrants in recipient populations will be managed through judicious selection of the age/sex composition of groups of rhinos for translocation. These manipulations will only succeed if accurate records are kept in a national "studbook" on a compulsory basis.
- DNA sampling of all animals immobilized for management purposes, or from mortalities, will continue to be collected, and efforts will be made to use the results to better understand inbreeding levels in different populations (potentially as part of PhD/MSc studies). A growing genetic data base of individuals will also be useful in earmarking individuals (that possess certain alleles) for translocation to populations where those alleles are rare or extinct.

In order to promote sustained and rapid growth of the metapopulation of black rhinos in Namibia, the following principles will also apply:

- Founder populations in new areas will be stocked at less than 50% of preferred management densities
- Priority for introductions will be given to those areas with potential for larger founder populations.

- All rhino populations will be managed for rapid growth (>5% per year), as well as genetic and demographic viability/health.
- Rhinos will be removed from populations when they are at or over their preferred management densities (to keep them productive).
- Habitat for black rhinos may be managed to their benefit as necessary/permitted, by: (i), management of vegetation; (ii), removal of browsers; (iii), Removal of predators; (iv), Reduction of browsers and/or predators to lower numbers; and (v) fenced areas of ideal habitat within or adjacent to larger protected areas are accessed and additional areas identified as required (Kaross).

Disease Risks and Management Impact on Rhino Conservation

Risks to black rhinos from disease will be minimized though adequate monitoring of individual rhinos, and preventive inoculation and/or treatment as deemed necessary by MET. There will be need for assessment (and acceptance) of disease risks to inform decisions on translocation of animals within Namibia, and between Namibia and neighbouring countries, and coordination between regional rhino management authorities for information exchange, definition of current disease risks, and development of guidelines to minimize disease transmission between rhino populations.

Efforts will be made to minimize negative impacts of management and monitoring activities on rhino health and breeding performance. Translocations and immobilizations of black rhinos are essential activities as part of routine management, and the possible risks of management operations and interventions must be related to consequent benefits (e.g. in terms of improved protection or population performance). Frequency of immobilisations and over-intrusive monitoring may affect rhino behaviour, and ear-notching operations, and their frequency will be related to its requirement for monitoring individual populations. A code of practice for rhino management operations will be maintained in order to minimise negative effects.

Sustainable utilization of the black rhino in Namibia

Utilization of black rhinos (including for trophy hunting) will be undertaken within the framework of existing CITES quotas and approvals, and efforts will be made to counter any attempt to reduce or remove this quota. Animals for trophy hunts will be individually identified based on selected criteria.

As part of the process of maximizing sustainable yield from breeding populations of black rhinos, existing populations may be used as donor populations for supplementing existing populations, or starting new populations within Namibia, as approved. This harvest of rhinos from breeding populations will carry particular benefit to donor populations (or sub-populations) which have reached local carrying capacity and where breeding performance may be stimulated through removal of rhinos. These actions will require definition of preferred management densities of rhinos in donor populations (or subunits of large populations).

Translocation of black rhinos to neighbouring countries

Namibian black rhinos may be provided to neighbouring countries for establishment within the former range of this metapopulation, through live sales or barter/exchange for other game animals. Proposals for such transactions need to be approved within Namibia and recipient countries.

Custodianship of rhinos

Custodianship of black rhinos in Namibia will be regulated and informed by the existing Framework for private sector participation (MET 1998), the updated Memorandum of agreement for black rhino custodianship (Annex

7), and the protocol for assessment of areas for placement (Annex 8). The current Framework will be updated to include guidelines for the recommended future proportion of Namibia's black rhinos to be held on private land. The formal custodianship agreement between private land owners and Government offers advantages over private ownership of rhinos, since it continues to guarantee adequate control by MET over the animals provided and ensures that metapopulation management can proceed including rhino populations in all sectors: protected areas, communal land/conservancies and private farms. The revised framework for private custodianship will aim to promote the expansion of current areas to enable larger rhino populations to be developed, and to encourage neighbouring land holdings to aggregate into larger combined areas as private conservancies with rhinos as the focus of their wildlife conservation effort and consequent management priorities.

Confidentiality of Information

Namibia recognises the vulnerability of its large wild populations of black rhinos, and the increasing number of locations where rhinos are managed within its borders. A policy of confidentiality on information related to the size and locations of rhino populations will be maintained, with summary National totals provided to National, Regional and International conservation organisations and the media. If population size data are provided (e.g. to Regional or Continental Rhino Conservation Bodies), the names or locations of the areas will not be provided. In addition, a declaration of confidentiality on sensitive rhino information will be drawn up and signed by MET staff, custodianship farms owners, and representatives of conservancies and NGOs participating in rhino conservation. Although the main body of this Conservation Strategy may be freely circulated, its Annexes (which contain detailed information on size and locations of black rhino populations in Namibia) will have restricted circulation. Action plans, status reports, population data, databases and studbooks, Wildlife crime related intelligence and law enforcement databases, and any information on the distribution and densities of law enforcement staff will also remain confidential, and restricted to Government (MET/PRD) staff or non-governmental representatives directly involved in collection and use of these data or information.

External Relationships

Namibia will maintain cooperative relationships with other parties involved in conservation of its black rhinos, and other D.b. bicornis conserved in the Southern African Region. In addition to observing its obligations as a signatory to CITES, representation will be provided to International, Continental and Regional bodies involved in rhino conservation (AfRSG, SADC RMG, RESG). Activities and support from Regional and National NGOs (WWF, NNF, SRT, IRDNC, TRAFFIC, EWT, etc) will be encouraged, particularly as part of development and implementation of a sustainable strategy for funding the conservation of black rhinos in Namibia in partnership between Government, NGOs and the private sector.

Implementation process

The management strategy provides the overarching guidance for the development of annual action plans for the National rhino management programme and each of the populations. This process will be overseen by the management and coordination structure outlined in Annex 2. Developing annual action plans for the following financial year should generally begin ahead of the budgeting cycle, in the previous year, in order to ensure that budgetary allocations are made accordingly.

An annual review of action plans and indicators will be undertaken, and where necessary for the purpose of adaptive management, the strategy will be revised.

Objective	Indicators	Detail	Achievements/challenges
			activities have been ad hoc and reactive due to poaching levels.
	• Population management: populations are managed between 50 and 75% of carrying capacity, and the metapopulation is increasing at 5% or more per annum		5% population growth has been achieved between 2002-2015 Carrying capacity has not been well defined for each area, and therefore making decisions on this parameter is difficult
3. Protection: Losses of black rhinos due to illegal killing, and levels of human disturbance are minimized
	• Poaching mortality: of individually known and registered rhinos: % mortality of sample less than 1% per year		Until 2013 the target was achieved but thereafter poaching mortality has risen to above 1% of population (2014: 1.36%; 2015: 3.93% and 2016 (Jan-Jun): 2.24%)
	• Poaching mortality index: relative to "catch per unit effort" – e.g. MIKE (% poaching cases/total mortality for the same 'catch per unit effort' or CPE		No measured
	• Poaching mortality: in 'precisely estimated population' (e.g. < 10% Confidence Interval) % mortality of population (where relatively few animals are individually known)		Not measured
	• Mortality of rhinos attributed to disturbance: (based on RTAG-approved applied research studies and monitoring)		Not determined – did not get any results that indicated direct link. It is considered very difficult to determine
4. Support and Incentives: Support (political and public) and incentives for black rhino conservation are in place and fostered
	• Proportion of the government budget allocated to MET is stable or increasing over time		Decreased for biological management; increased significantly for anti-poaching/security activities
	• Total and average size of rhino range areas on freehold and communal land are increased		Achieved
	• Diversity of stakeholders in active rhino management is increased		Achieved
	• Future benefits to stakeholders are increased (e.g. through sustainable utilization of rhinos, including tourism, dependent on identification and agreement policy for developing incentives for rhino conservation outside protected areas).		Policy not yet in place
5. Coordination, cooperation and collaboration: for management of black rhinos by all stakeholders are secured
	Coordination structures and mechanisms in place representing the interests of all stakeholders	• Number of agreed stakeholder meetings actually held	Meetings have not taken place since decentralization in 2014

Objective	Indicators	Detail	Achievements/challenges
		• Work plan for individual populations agreed by all relevant stakeholders	Within MET activities form part of the various Directorate work plans, so agreed through work planning/budgeting process. Other stakeholders not involved
		• 90% of activities in the agreed work plan area implemented	More than 90% of activities in the work plan are implemented
		• Majority of all stakeholders express satisfaction with their interactions (in interviews with an unbiased sample by external evaluators	Survey not conducted, so this parameter not assessed
6. Policy and legislative framework: an enabling policy and legislative framework in place and implemented
	• Legislation and policy in place for which there is no evidence demonstrated that range expansion is impeded		No change
	• Legislation considered by the RMC to be adequate to deter poaching of rhinos during the period of effect of the strategy, and to limit disturbance to rhinos in all areas, in place		No change
	• Increased proportion of successful prosecutions and deterrent sentences of registered cases		No data
	• Rhino conservation strategy endorsed by the Minister (indicating that the Minister support and decisions provide the mandate for MET to manage the rhino metapopulation)		Last rhino conservation strategy approved by MET Minister was 2003.
	• Policies developed and in place to allow benefits and sustainable use from rhinos (including live sales of rhinos)		Game Products Trust Fund
7. Enabling objective: Capacity and sustainability: Resources (financial, human, physical) for effective and efficient rhino management sustainably secured and strategically used.
	• At least 90% of required budget is secured to implement annual action plans and on-going activities		MET budget allocation is not sufficient – but complemented by external funding sources through donors. However, in the past few years with the increase in poaching, budgets have been insufficient to implement the annual action plans fully.
	• At least 90% of the required trained staff is available to implement annual action plans and on-going activities within 3 years		Not achieved
	• Annual financial reports for rhino activities in each area show optimized allocation of funding relative to population size and expansion prospects		Not achieved due to lack of coordinated annual plans
	• Positive trend in cost efficiency (decreasing cost per additional rhino)		Not measured

Annex 2: Management and Coordination Structure

The decision making body for the implementation of the Rhino Management Strategy is the Rhino Management Committee which is chaired by the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Environment and Tourism (Figure A2-1).

The following two technical groups report to the RMC:

- ✧ Rhino Technical Advisory Group (RTAG)

  The RTAG is the advisory body for the biological / metapopulation management aspects of the black rhino strategy – including surveys and translocations. The RTAG is chaired by the Director Scientific Services.
- ✧ Rhino Security Committee (RSC)

  The RSC is the coordinating and advisory committee on rhino security, chaired by the Director Wildlife and National Parks.

Rhino Unit

The implementation of the Black and White Rhino strategies and annual work plans requires careful coordination to maintain cohesion and focus. The "Rhino Unit" (Figure A2-2) is not a separate organizational structure, but an allocation of functions to specific individuals, residing under the Directorate of Scientific Services, Division of Wildlife Research.

The Rhino Unit is responsible for all monitoring activities, and for providing the measures, trends and indicators required for adaptive management. The Rhino Unit will coordinate and manage all surveys, capture and translocations activities, using teams and expertise drawn from the respective components of the Ministry of Environment and Tourism.

The Rhino Unit will also monitor and report on achievements of annual work plans.

National Rhino Coordinator/Coordination

This position/function heads the Rhino Unit, which is also the depository of all rhino data. The National Rhino Coordinator is responsible to coordinate the entire rhino program, with particular focus on the aspects related to biological / meta population management.

The function of National Rhino Coordinator will be assigned in writing by the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Environment and Tourism.

The function of the National Rhino Coordinator is to ensure that the National Management Strategy and Plans for Black and White rhinoceros are implemented in a coordinated and consultative manner, and to represent Namibia at International Fora dealing with rhino biological management and conservation issues.

The National Rhino Coordinator reports to the Rhino Management Committee (RMC) through the Director: Scientific Services. The function of rhino coordination is not seen as exclusive, therefore, despite this list of duties, the official duty sheet of the incumbent remains applicable.

Duties

The duties of the National Rhino Coordinator are to:

1. Maintain the National database of rhino information to monitor trends and inform adaptive management decisions
2. Convene the Rhino Technical Advisory Group to:
   2.1. Oversee implementation of the national management Strategy and population management plans
   2.2. Compile and submit reports and recommendations to the Rhino Advisory Committee on:
      2.2.1. Annual management and work plans
   2.3. Population performance and status reports for each population
      2.3.1. Farm inspections
      2.3.2. Monitoring programs
      2.3.3. Ear notching/other marking programs
3. Identify training needs and coordinate training activities
4. Ensure the effective coordination of all stakeholders in rhino conservation
5. Secure funding for rhino management
6. Manage the national rhino population database from which Namibia's rhino numbers and growth rates can be derived, and meta-population decisions taken
7. Represent Namibia on the:
   7.1. IUCN/African Rhino Specialist Group (AfRSG)
   7.2. SADC Rhino Programme
   7.3. Rhino Management Group
8. Convene, facilitate and provide secretariat for Rhino Management Committee.

Park and Communal Land rhino management

The park and communal land rhino manager reports to the National Rhino Coordinator, and is responsible for monitoring and data management of populations within protected areas and on communal land (including communal conservancies).

Duties

The duties of the Park and Communal Land rhino manager are to:

1. Maintain comprehensive records of all rhino populations in parks and communal land, including marked individuals, population numbers, population demography, births and mortalities, densities, movements, interactions (fighting)
2. Analyse data and trends, and make recommendations accordingly.
3. Coordinate and ensure that annual surveys are conducted according to approved action plans.
4. Coordinate and ensure that marking, capture and translocations take place according to approved action plans
5. Make recommendations to National Rhino Coordinator based on actions
6. Serve on the Rhino Technical Advisory Group, to provide feedback and recommendations on biological rhino management issues on State Land.

Rhino Custodianship management

The rhino custodianship scheme has become a significant component of rhino management in Namibia. Currently consisting of 24 freehold custodians, the program requires a dedicated manager.

The function of the rhino custodianship manager is to liaise with all current and potential rhino custodians, both on commercial and communal areas, and to ensure that the program runs smoothly.

The duties of the rhino custodianship manager are to:

1. Serve as the contact person for all custodians, and potential custodians of black rhino in Namibia.
2. Maintain comprehensive records, including quarterly returns from the custodians, database of custodianship meta-population, and all related documents.
3. Maintain comprehensive records of all black rhino populations on private land, including marked individuals, population numbers, population demography, births and mortalities, densities, movements, interactions (fighting)
4. Identify and actively engage new potential custodians as efforts to expand rhino area.
5. Coordinate the assessment procedures for new applicants to the custodianship scheme.
6. Ensure that custodians comply with custodianship Memoranda of Understanding, and that the Ministry of Environment and Tourism complies with its responsibilities as well.
7. Coordinate inspections on custodianship farms according to agreed schedules, and ensure that animals and populations are healthy.
8. Coordinate four-yearly survey and marking exercise on custodianship farms (25% of farms every year)
9. Liaise with Game Capture regarding boma care, feeding, release and post release monitoring of founder animals.
10. Serve on the Rhino Technical Advisory Group, to provide feedback and recommendations on the rhino custodianship scheme.

Private owned rhino management

The situation of white rhinos in private ownership is currently not well recorded, due to loopholes and inadequate reporting requirements. Although imports and exports are well controlled, movements within the country sometimes take place without the necessary documentation, and there is currently no requirement for private owners to report mortalities or births, although animals and their parts and derivatives are considered controlled wildlife products requiring permits under the Controlled Wildlife Products and Trade Act (Act No. 9 of 2008). This has created a situation where there is no accurate information on the white rhinos in private ownership, creating some challenges and weaknesses for Namibia's rhino management programme.

The duties of the private owned rhino manager are to:

1. To collate and maintain a more accurate record of the privately owned white rhinos and white rhino products;
2. To make recommendations on guidelines and regulations to improve control measures for privately owned white rhinos and their products;
3. To work closely with the Permit Office to manage the issuing of permits for white rhino and their products.

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES (Appendix I of CITES and/or ESA)

Note 1: This form should be used to request authorization to import trophies of species listed on Appendix I of CITES and/or as threatened or endangered under the ESA (examples include elephants, lions, cheetahs, wood bison, and markhor).

PLEASE USE FORM 3-200-19 FOR SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD TROPHIES AND SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS TROPHIES TAKEN IN NAMIBIA.

Note 2: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Applications for species listed as endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act are published in the Federal Register for a 30-day public comment period. Please allow at least 90 days for the application to be processed.

Note 4: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 5: Certain hunting trophies, including elephants, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

9. For species listed under the Endangered Species Act, please be aware that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service must make a finding that your activities will enhance or benefit wild populations of the species involved. While we will communicate with the range country for the species you will hunt or hunted when making the required findings, if you have any information that could support this finding, it would be helpful to our review if you could provide it. Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

THE HUNTING TOOK PLACE NEAR THE BORDER OF A NATIONAL PARK WHICH PROVIDES PROTECTION FOR SIBERIAN TIGERS(ANYOYSKI NATIONAL PARK). BEARS COMPETE WITH TIGERS FOR FOOD SOURCES(DEER, BOARS, ETC) SO THEIR NUMBERS HAVE TO BE CONTROLLED. HUNTING IS NOT PERMITTED WITHIN THE PARK SO THE AUTHORITIES ISSUE LICENSES TO HUNT BEARS IN NEIGHBORING

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, community, or government?

THE CONCESSIONAIRE IS PAID 10,000USD PER BEAR HUNT. THE CONCESSIONER PAYS FOR LICENSE, ORGANIZATION, LODGING, FOOD TRANSPORTATION AND GUN PEREMITS. THOSE FEES ARE USED TO EMPLOY THE LOCALS FROM THE COMMUNITY TO WORK AT THE LODGE, COOK AND PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION. MANY GUIDES AND TRACKERS ARE USED ON EACH BEAR HUNT.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or land owner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted

THE CONCESSIONER WAS THE FIRST MANAGER OF THE PARK AND KNOWS THE ANIMALS VERY WELL. CONSERVATION HAS BEEN AN INTEGRAL PART OF HIS LIFE. THE MONEY GENERATED BY HUNTING ALLOWS FOR MORE EMPLOYEES ON THE GROUND, WHICH PROTECTS THE BORDERS OF THE PARK FROM POACHERS. TRAIL CAMERAS ARE ABUNDANT, SO TRESPASSING IS LIMITED.GUIDES AND TRACKERS ALSO DISCOURAGE POACHING

CERTIFICATION STATEMENT (original signature must be provided for either 10 or 11 below)

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an Importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the Importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the Importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an Importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

HUNTING TOOK PLACE NEAR THE BORDER OF A NAT'L PARK WHICH PROVIDES PROTECTION FOR SIBERIAN TIGERS(ANYOYSKI NAT'L PARK). BEARS COMPETE WITH TIGERS FOR FOOD SOURCES(DEER, BOARS, ETC) SO THEIR NUMBERS HAVE TO BE CONTROLLED. HUNTING ISN'T PERMITTED WITHIN THE PARK SO THE AUTHORITIES ISSUE LICENSES TO HUNT BEARS IN NEIGHBORING CONCESSIONS.

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, community, or government?

THE CONCESSIONAIRE IS PAID 10,000USD PER BEAR HUNT. THE CONCESSIONERPAYS FOR LICENSE, ORGANIZATION, LODGING, FOOD TRANSPORTATION AND GUN PEREMITS. THOSE FEES ARE USED TO EMPLOY THE LOCALS FROM THE COMMUNITY TO WORK AT THE LODGE, COOK AND PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION. MANY GUIDES AND TRACKERS ARE USED ON EACH BEAR HUNT.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or land owner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted

THE CONCESSIONER WAS THE FIRST MANAGER OF THE PARK AND KNOWS THE ANIMALS VERY WELL. CONSERVATION HAS BEEN AN INTEGRAL PART OF HIS LIFE. THE MONEY GENERATED BY HUNTING ALLOWS FOR MORE EMPLOYEES ON THE GROUND, WHICH PROTECTS THE BORDERS OF THE PARK FROM POACHERS. TRAIL CAMERAS ARE ABUNDANT, SO TRESPASSING IS LIMITED.GUIDES AND TRACKERS ALSO DISCOURAGE POACHING

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

HUNTING TOOK PLACE NEAR THE BORDER OF A NAT'L PARK WHICH PROVIDES PROTECTION FOR SIBERIAN TIGERS(ANYOYSKI NAT'L PARK). BEARS COMPETE WITH TIGERS FOR FOOD SOURCES(DEER, BOARS, ETC) SO THEIR NUMBERS HAVE TO BE CONTROLLED. HUNTING ISN'T PERMITTED WITHIN THE PARK SO THE AUTHORITIES ISSUE LICENSES TO HUNT BEARS IN NEIGHBORING CONCESSIONS.

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, community, or government?

THE CONCESSIONAIRE IS PAID 10,000USD PER BEAR HUNT. THE CONCESSIONERPAYS FOR LICENSE, ORGANIZATION, LODGING, FOOD TRANSPORTATION AND GUN PEREMITS. THOSE FEES ARE USED TO EMPLOY THE LOCALS FROM THE COMMUNITY TO WORK AT THE LODGE, COOK AND PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION. MANY GUIDES AND TRACKERS ARE USED ON EACH BEAR HUNT.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or land owner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted

THE CONCESSIONER WAS THE FIRST MANAGER OF THE PARK AND KNOWS THE ANIMALS VERY WELL. CONSERVATION HAS BEEN AN INTEGRAL PART OF HIS LIFE. THE MONEY GENERATED BY HUNTING ALLOWS FOR MORE EMPLOYEES ON THE GROUND, WHICH PROTECTS THE BORDERS OF THE PARK FROM POACHERS. TRAIL CAMERAS ARE ABUNDANT, SO TRESPASSING IS LIMITED.GUIDES AND TRACKERS ALSO DISCOURAGE POACHING

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES (Appendix I of CITES and/or ESA)

Note 1: This form should be used to request authorization to import trophies of species listed on Appendix I of CITES and/or as threatened or endangered under the ESA (examples include elephants, lions, cheetahs, wood bison, and markhor).

PLEASE USE FORM 3-200-19 FOR SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD TROPHIES AND SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS TROPHIES TAKEN IN NAMIBIA.

Note 2: If you hold an import permit for a trophy that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Applications for species listed as endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act are published in the Federal Register for a 30-day public comment period. Please allow at least 90 days for the application to be processed.

Note 4: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 5: Certain hunting trophies, including elephants, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

9. For species listed under the Endangered Species Act, please be aware that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service must make a finding that your activities will enhance or benefit wild populations of the species involved. While we will communicate with the range country for the species you will hunt or hunted when making the required findings, if you have any information that could support this finding, it would be helpful to our review if you could provide it. Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

HUNTING TOOK PLACE NEAR THE BORDER OF A NAT'L PARK WHICH PROVIDES PROTECTION FOR SIBERIAN TIGERS(ANYOYSKI NAT'L PARK). BEARS COMPETE WITH TIGERS FOR FOOD SOURCES(DEER, BOARS, ETC) SO THEIR NUMBERS HAVE TO BE CONTROLLED. HUNTING ISN'T PERMITTED WITHIN THE PARK SO THE AUTHORITIES ISSUE LICENSES TO HUNT BEARS IN NEIGHBORING CONCESSIONS.

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, community, or government?

THE CONCESSIONAIRE IS PAID 10,000USD PER BEAR HUNT. THE CONCESSIONERPAYS FOR LICENSE, ORGANIZATION, LODGING, FOOD TRANSPORTATION AND GUN PEREMITS. THOSE FEES ARE USED TO EMPLOY THE LOCALS FROM THE COMMUNITY TO WORK AT THE LODGE, COOK AND PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION. MANY GUIDES AND TRACKERS ARE USED ON EACH BEAR HUNT.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or land owner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted

THE CONCESSIONER WAS THE FIRST MANAGER OF THE PARK AND KNOWS THE ANIMALS VERY WELL. CONSERVATION HAS BEEN AN INTEGRAL PART OF HIS LIFE. THE MONEY GENERATED BY HUNTING ALLOWS FOR MORE EMPLOYEES ON THE GROUND, WHICH PROTECTS THE BORDERS OF THE PARK FROM POACHERS. TRAIL CAMERAS ARE ABUNDANT, SO TRESPASSING IS LIMITED.GUIDES AND TRACKERS ALSO DISCOURAGE POACHING

If applying for the import of an elephant trophy, I understand that my client may import no more than two elephant trophies in one calendar year.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an Importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the Importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the Importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an Importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

HUNTING TOOK PLACE NEAR THE BORDER OF A NAT'L PARK WHICH PROVIDES PROTECTION FOR SIBERIAN TIGERS(ANYOYSKI NAT'L PARK). BEARS COMPETE WITH TIGERS FOR FOOD SOURCES(DEER, BOARS, ETC) SO THEIR NUMBERS HAVE TO BE CONTROLLED. HUNTING ISN'T PERMITTED WITHIN THE PARK SO THE AUTHORITIES ISSUE LICENSES TO HUNT BEARS IN NEIGHBORING CONCESSIONS.

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, community, or government?

THE CONCESSIONAIRE IS PAID 10,000USD PER BEAR HUNT. THE CONCESSIONERPAYS FOR LICENSE, ORGANIZATION, LODGING, FOOD TRANSPORTATION AND GUN PEREMITS. THOSE FEES ARE USED TO EMPLOY THE LOCALS FROM THE COMMUNITY TO WORK AT THE LODGE, COOK AND PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION. MANY GUIDES AND TRACKERS ARE USED ON EACH BEAR HUNT.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or land owner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted

THE CONCESSIONER WAS THE FIRST MANAGER OF THE PARK AND KNOWS THE ANIMALS VERY WELL. CONSERVATION HAS BEEN AN INTEGRAL PART OF HIS LIFE. THE MONEY GENERATED BY HUNTING ALLOWS FOR MORE EMPLOYEES ON THE GROUND, WHICH PROTECTS THE BORDERS OF THE PARK FROM POACHERS. TRAIL CAMERAS ARE ABUNDANT, SO TRESPASSING IS LIMITED.GUIDES AND TRACKERS ALSO DISCOURAGE POACHING

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an Importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the Importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the Importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an Importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Good day, Mr. Jorge Villavicencio

I'm am writing this brief note to let you know Rosella Quartarone has taken ill and won't be involved in the day to day operations for SSI. She has fall ill at the beginning of November 2018 and left a stack of permits underneath her desk. I need your help in processing the leopard and bontebok permits since they were hunted in the early part of 2018. I know it a big favor to ask but I don't want the export cities to expire.

Good day, Mr. Jorge Villavicencio

I'm am writing this brief note to let you know Rosella Quartarone has taken ill and won't be involved in the day to day operations for SSI. She has fall ill at the beginning of November 2018 and left a stack of permits underneath her desk. I need your help in processing the leopard and bontebok permits since they were hunted in the early part of 2018. I know it a big favor to ask but I don't want the export cities to expire.

Best
Robert

E. EXPORT OF TROPHIES BY HUNTERS OR TAXIDERMISTS (CITES)

NOTE: If you are a U.S. or Canadian resident exporting your personal, sport-hunted trophy to CANADA with you in your accompanying personal baggage (hand-carrying, not shipping by freight), you may not require a CITES export permit. The US recognizes "personal effects" and has a bilateral agreement with Canada that certain trophies (black bear/sandhill crane) either hand carried or shipped as part of your personal baggage, do not require a CITES export permit. Please note, however, only Canada and the United States have a bilateral agreement and other countries that are Parties to CITES would require that an export permit be issued. If you have questions, please contact the Division of Management Authority at 800-358-2104 or managementauthority@fws.gov.

Provide the following information. Complete all questions on the application. Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A". If needed, use a separate sheet of paper. On all attachments or separate sheets you submit, indicate the application question number you are addressing. If applying for more than one trophy, be sure to answer all of the questions for each trophy.

Electronic submission of inventories, photographs, and receipts: Some applications contain extensive inventories and /or a large number of photographs or receipts. You may provide electronic versions of the documents. Such a submission will assist in expediting the processing of your application since it may reduce data entry by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. If you wish to provide information electronically, once you have received an application number via the e-mailed acknowledgment letter, e-mail your information to Permits@fws.gov. Be sure to include the application number provided in the acknowledgment e-mail that will be sent to you when we receive your application.

☐ I will be submitting documents electronically.

1. Name and address where you wish the permit to be mailed, if different from page 1. If you would like expedited shipping, please enclose a self-addressed, pre-paid, computer-generated, courier service airway bill. If unspecified, all documents will be mailed via regular mail through the U.S. Postal Service.

2. Who should we contact if we have questions about the application (name, phone number, and e-mail)?

James Ellison (b) (6) [redacted]

3. Disqualification factor. A conviction, or entry of a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, for a felony violation of the Lacey Act, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, or the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act disqualifies any such person from receiving or exercising the privileges of a permit, unless such disqualification has been expressly waived by the Service Director in response to a written petition. (50 CFR 13.21(c)) Have you or any of the owners of the business, if applying as a business, been convicted, or entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, forfeited collateral, or are currently under charges for any violations of the laws mentioned above?

☒ No ☐ Yes

If you answered "Yes" to Question 3, provide: a) the individual's name; b) date of charge; c) charge(s); d) location of incident; e) court, and f) action taken for each violation. Please be aware that a "Yes" response does not automatically disqualify you from getting a permit.

4. Provide the following for each trophy:

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and

Note 1: This form should be used to request authorization to import trophies of species listed on Appendix I of CITES and/or as threatened or endangered under the ESA (examples include elephants, lions, cheetahs, wood bison, and markhor).

PLEASE USE FORM 3-200-19 FOR SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD TROPHIES AND SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS TROPHIES TAKEN IN NAMIBIA.

Note 2: If you hold an import permit for a trophy that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Applications for species listed as endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act are published in the Federal Register for a 30-day public comment period. Please allow at least 90 days for the application to be processed.

Note 4: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and

  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

9. For species listed under the U.S. Endangered Species Act, please be aware that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) must make a finding that your activities will enhance or benefit wild populations of the species involved. While we will communicate with the range country for the species you will hunt or hunted when making the required findings, if you have any information that could support this finding, it would be helpful for our review if you could provide it. Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

We understand that the Tajikistan Wildlife Survey is with the USFWS findings dept.

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, local community, or government?

$175,000. was spent on this hunt. Approximately 20 people were employed with regards to this hunt including scouts, guides, drivers, cooks , the wildlife management dept. -- the community receives employment from the hunting companies--- an incentive to help preserve the wildlife.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or landowner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted?

A large percentage of my hunt fees go towards the management of the Markhor population and the permits issued by strictly enforced quotas. Anti-poaching efforts and monitoring are paid for by the hunters fees. Trophy hunting is is the best way to raise funds to aid in the protection of the Tajik. wildlife.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES OF SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD AND NAMIBIAN SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 4: Certain hunting trophies, including leopard and rhinoceros hunting trophies, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

- Complete all questions on the application.
- Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A".

- If importing trophies from more than one country, you must submit a separate application for each shipment in order to obtain separate import permits.

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES OF SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD AND NAMIBIAN SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 4: Certain hunting trophies, including leopard and rhinoceros hunting trophies, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

(50 CFR 13.21(c)) Have you or any of the owners of the business, if applying as a business, been convicted, or entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, forfeited collateral, or are currently under charges for any violations of the laws mentioned above?

Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

THE HUNTING WILL TAKE PLACE NEAR THE BORDER OF A NATIONAL PARK WHICH PROVIDES PROTECTION FOR SIBERIAN TIGERS(ANYOYSKI NATIONAL PARK). HUNTING IS NOT PERMITTED WITHIN THE PARK SO THE AUTHORITIES ISSUE LICENSES TO HUNT BEARS IN NEIGHBORING

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, community, or government?

THE CONCESSIONAIRE IS PAID 10,000USD PER BEAR HUNT. MANY GUIDES AND TRACKERS ARE USED ON EACH BEAR HUNT.

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or land owner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted

THE CONCESSIONER WAS THE FIRST MANAGER OF THE PARK AND KNOWS THE ANIMALS VERY WELL. CONSERVATION HAS BEEN AN INTEGRAL PART OF HIS LIFE. THE MONEY GENERATED BY HUNTING ALLOWS FOR MORE EMPLOYEES ON THE GROUND, WHICH PROTECTS THE BORDERS OF THE PARK FROM POACHERS. TRAIL CAMERAS ARE ABUNDANT, SO TRESPASSING IS LIMITED.GUIDES AND TRACKERS ALSO DISCOURAGE POACHING

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

FEDERAL FISH AND WILDLIFE PERMIT APPLICATION FORM

2019 LION

I realize that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will evaluate each application in accordance with their permits issuance criteria at 50 CFR 17.32(a)(2). As described in the Endangered Species Act (ESA) special rule for threatened lions, you may consider factors such as those below [see 50 CFR 17.40(r)]. To the best of my ability, I have attempted to address each of them. The questions and answers below correspond to the ones on my application.

9.a. Do you have any information regarding population status or trend data on the species hunted?

According to the Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority, Tanzania holds the most important lion population in Africa and on Earth. Approximately 50 percent of Africa's lion population (total of 16,800 lions) resides in Tanzania, with 56.8 percent of the lions being in hunting areas alone. Like the United States places great value on the conservation and management of private lands to benefit a diversity of species, Tanzania relies on these hunting areas for the protection of lions and their habitat. The Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority and its research arm, the Tanzanian Wildlife Research Institute, have an ongoing program to monitor lion habitat and populations. While the population tend of lions in Rungwa is unknown, the population in another lion hunting area, the Selous Game Reserve, is stable. In the past few years, the offtake of lions due to a reduction in lion trophy hunting has declined approximately 40 percent. Tanzania greatly values both consumptive and non-consumptive uses of lions; its economy and conservation programs are dependent on the sustainable offtake of this species.

9.b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for license or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used either by the landowner, local community or government?

The trophy fee for an African lion in Tanzania is $16,500.00. Hunting is the major source of revenue for the Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority. Fees generated from these hunts fund anti-poaching, habitat conservation, research, and conservation activities directly. Rungwa Game Safaris (RGS) works to reduce human-lion conflicts near its concession areas. RGS has programs established to assist village schools around the hunting areas with funding for projects to understand and respect native wildlife and how they are important to the community, both culturally and economically.

Again, RGS has donated medical supplies, televisions, and supplies to schools, assisted children who are malnourished by providing clean water to local villages through the use of its drilling rig, and has helped renovate wells to provide water versus increasing the risk of children to lions and crocodiles by removing water from local rivers. These efforts benefit the people living the villages surrounding RGS's concession areas.

9.c. Do you have information or other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or landowner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted?

The management program in Tanzania and on the concession is based on sound, scientific principles. Julius Kambarage Nyerere, the first president of Tanzania, said, as part of The Arusha Manifesto, "...The survival of our wildlife is a matter of grave concern to all of us in Africa...these wild creatures amid wild places they inhabit are not only important as a source of winder and inspiration, but they're an integral part of our natural resources and our future livelihood and well being." As such, the Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority strives to manage its wildlife in a scientific manner to improve the quality of life of its citizens. Furthermore, the management program at RGS is based on science and includes the taking of no more than one lion per 2000 square kilometers of concession area. The mission of RGS is "to conserve Tanzania's wildlife by effectively managing its precious resources so that our children and their children will be able to enjoy the natural heritage of Africa...wildlife."

The management program of RGS identifies mechanisms that would arrest the loss of habitat or increase available habitat (i.e., by establishing protected areas and ensuring adequate protection from human encroachment). RGS recognizes the threat of human encroachment to the loss of habitat in Tanzania. RGS works with local people, including the employment of them, in villages and surrounding areas as they are an integral part of ensuring that wildlife and its habitat loss are curtailed or at least minimized by understanding the direct economic benefit from hunting and wildlife-associated tourism. RGS has its own anti-poaching program which works in conjunction with the Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority. RGS provides its team vehicles, fuel, food, equipment, allowances, rewards, GPS devices, radios, and various other expenses associated with anti-poaching. This joint program works continuously to protect the wildlife and human resources in and around the concession areas. Furthermore, it protects part of its hunting areas by not allowing the take of game in certain areas. RGS also funds infrastructure projects around the concession areas to improve road and bridge conditions to further help with anti-poaching efforts. RGS also invests in innovative, programmatic and results oriented conservation programs for local citizens so they further understand the many values (e.g., natural, cultural and economic) of wildlife and its habitat to Tanzania.

The management program of RGS actively addresses the loss of the lion's prey base by addressing poaching or unsustainable off take within Tanzania. The area of the lion hunt will be the Rungwa Game Reserve. There are no people nor livestock living within the Reserve and is supported by the sustainable off-take of game at a minimum of a level as possible. Furthermore, RGS also invests conservation programs for local citizens so they further understand the importance of wildlife, including the lion and its prey base, as well as their habitat, to Tanzania. As a result of these combined activities, RGS has witnessed the annual improvement of wildlife populations and the quality of the hunting experience.

The Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority has incentives in place that encourage habitat protection by private landowners and communities and incentives to local communities to reduce the incursion of livestock into protected areas or to actively manage livestock to reduce conflicts with lions. The part of the Rungwa Game Reserve that the lion will be hunted has neither people nor livestock in or adjacent to it. However, RGS and the Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority have programs established to assist the nearest village schools with funding for projects to understand and respect native wildlife and how they are important to the community, both culturally and economically. RGS believes that in order to practice wildlife conservation, the welfare of the local people that live near the concessions must first be addressed. For example, RGS has donated medical supplies, televisions, supplies to schools, assisted children who are malnourished by providing clean water to local villages through the use of its own drilling rig, and has helped renovate wells to provide water versus increasing the risk of children to lions and crocodiles by removing water from local rivers. These efforts benefit the people living the villages surrounding RGS's concession areas, furthering the link between the conservation of wildlife and its habitat, and the people.

RGS's management program works to ensure the long-term survival of the lion, its prey base, and habitat. The off-take number and the constant patrolling through the joint RGS's and Tanzanian Wildlife Management Authority's anti-poaching program ensures the long-term survival of the lion, thus benefitting local communities and villages from the revenue generated from the sale of lion hunts. Furthermore, Rungwa works to reduce human-lion conflicts near its concession areas.

Finally, a U.S. hunter's participation in the hunting program contributes to the overall management of lions within Tanzania. Hunters from the Unites States play a major role in the overall management of lions in Tanzania, both from a source of revenue and from the harvest of older lions not in a pride. Furthermore, U.S. hunters and RGS help with funding other activities previously stated to benefit schools and improve health, purchase educational and sporting equipment, purchase building materials, and improve agricultural conditions in local communities and help to alleviate poverty around RGS's concessions. Through RGS's help through teaching and experience, children can see first-hand that the conservation of wildlife and the protection of habitat leads to the increase in tourism and a better quality of live for themselves and their village

- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and

  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and

  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties or interested merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the entry portion of the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the importer of responsibility if Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide the importer of record with a monthly statement identifying the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a more frequent basis after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 4: Certain hunting trophies, including leopard and rhinoceros hunting trophies, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

- Complete all questions on the application.
- Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A".

- If importing trophies from more than one country, you must submit a separate application for each shipment in order to obtain separate import permits.

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 4: Certain hunting trophies, including leopard and rhinoceros hunting trophies, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an Importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the Importer. Under the alternative procedure, the Importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the Importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an Importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

For species listed under the U.S. Endangered Species Act, please be aware that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) must make a finding that your activities will enhance or benefit wild populations of the species involved. While we will communicate with the range country for the species you will hunt or hunted when making the required findings, if you have any information that could support this finding, it would be helpful for our review if you could provide it. Please submit such information on a separate page with your application.

a. Do you have any information regarding the population status or trend data on the species hunted?

I observed over 75 Markhor in a 5-day period. The ration of males to females was about one male to 5 or 6 females. There were one or two kids per herd.

b. In order to hunt, you likely paid for licenses or trophy fees. What were those fees and do you have any information on how those funds were used by either the landowner, local community, or government?

The government hunt license fee was $50,000. $25,000. goes to the local government/village. The local villagers protect the markhor from poachers as it is in their best interests. A part of the funds from my hunt are able to pay one teacher salary for their school for one year. See attached statement.....

c. Do you have information on other funding activities that are being carried out, or were carried out, by the safari outfitter, professional hunter, concession holder, or landowner that provide a conservation benefit to the species being hunted/species hunted?

The Tajikistan government only issues one hunt permit per year for the area that I hunted. I observed 1 Federal game warden, the mayor of the town and 1 regional politician that were in charge of my hunt. The community does the anti-poaching work.

Robert McCulloch Tajikistan Markhor Hunt Observations

During a 5-day period, I observed about 75 Markhor.

My hunt involved quite a few people from the local community -- 15-20 people in all. There were 6 scouts, 2 head guides, 1 interpreter, 2 cooks, laborers and packers. The local shepherds are the main source to provide the anti-poaching efforts. Since a hunt like this requires help from the community- there is an employment opportunity for many. This is an incentive for the community to protect the Markhor population and ensure that poachers are not taking opportunities which the villagers benefit from.

Some of my hunt funds were able to provide a paycheck for 1 teacher salary at the local school for 1 year.

The government provided 1 federal game warden, the mayor of the town and 1 regional polition.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

Under permit number 19US38239D/9 I hunted a Leopard on 6/14/2018 in Zimbabwe Hwange of which I was fortunate enough to take.

I am seeking a reissuance of this import permit because the cosignor on the original import permit is incorrect. I will need a reissue of my current import permit with a change on it of cosignor. The new cosignor on the reissue of the permit will need to read:

Thank you for your help in this matter

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES OF SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD AND NAMIBIAN SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS

Note 1: If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit to the address on page one.

Note 2: If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.

Note 3: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:

- Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
- Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
- Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
- Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
  - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
  - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
  - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.

Note 4: Certain hunting trophies, including leopard and rhinoceros hunting trophies, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.
