Conservation through the Arts

The Junior Duck Stamp Contest

The Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program is a dynamic art and science program designed to teach wetlands habitat and waterfowl conservation in kindergarten through high school. Using scientific and wildlife observation principles the program helps students communicate visually what they have learned by creating an entry to the Junior Duck Stamp art contest. This non-traditional pairing of subjects brings new interest to both the sciences and the arts through environmental education.

To learn more about the program visit www.fws.gov/duckstamps.