

Additional Screening

- Passengers traveling with items that require special attention may ask to speak with a TSA supervisor before the items are screened.
- Passengers may also ask to speak with a TSA supervisor if they have any special needs or are traveling with medically necessary items.
- Whenever possible, TSA will comply with passenger requests for same gender screening for carry-on items, special handling of delicate items such as medicine pouches, sage, regalia that is delicate to touch or handle, and eagle feathers.

To Contact TSA

Passengers can provide positive feedback or concerns to TSA regarding travel experiences. If additional assistance is needed during the security screening process, ask a TSA supervisor for help. Passengers may also contact the TSA Contact Center by email: TSA-contactcenter@dhs.gov, or by telephone at 866-289-9673 (toll-free).

Individuals who believe they have been treated differently or unlawfully discriminated against by a TSA employee may file a civil rights or civil liberties complaint with TSA's External Compliance and Public Outreach Division. To contact the Office of Civil Rights and Liberties send an email to TSAExternalCompliance@dhs.gov, call 877-336-4872 (toll free) or 800-877-8339 (TTY), or write to:

Transportation Security Administration
Office of Civil Rights and Liberties (TSA-6)
601 12th Street
Arlington, VA 20598-6006

For Internet users: visit our website at www.tsa.gov for more information.

Information for the Native American Community on TSA
Airport Security Screening

Transportation Security
Administration

www.tsa.gov

Transportation
Security
Administration

Acceptable Identification

Adult passengers (18 and over) are required to show an acceptable ID for security screening. Tribal-issued ID cards are acceptable, provided they meet the following requirements:

- Name (must substantially match the name on the boarding pass issued by the airline).
- Photograph (must match the person presenting the ID).
- A tamper-resistant security feature is present.
- If an expiration date is present, it must not be expired by more than one year.

If an ID does not meet the requirements above, TSA security officers will ask for additional information to validate the individual's identity.

What to Expect at TSA Security Checkpoints

All passengers and their baggage must undergo screening at security checkpoints. TSA officers will work with passengers to ensure that screening is conducted with dignity and respect.

- At the entrance to the security checkpoint, a TSA officer, or Travel Document Checker, will check IDs and compare them to boarding passes to ensure both documents match and are acceptable.
- Remember 3 Simple Steps: show ID and boarding pass, take out liquids (in a baggie) and laptops, and take off shoes and jackets.

- Remember the 3-1-1 rule: liquids, gels, and aerosols are permitted in 3 ounces or smaller containers, placed in 1 quart-size plastic zip-top bag, and 1 bag per person.
- Passengers may encounter Advanced Imaging Technology (AIT) or a Walk-Through Metal Detector. If a passenger is selected for AIT screening they have the option to receive a pat-down as an alternative. Whenever possible, the pat-down will be performed by a same-gender officer.

** Exact configuration of security checkpoints varies between airports **

Security Screening Checkpoint

