Overview
The Mountain-Prairie Region External Affairs Office is responsive to the public, media, Congress, Tribes, partners, other stakeholders, Headquarters, DOI and the regional office and field stations in communicating and facilitating information about the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's programs, issues and activities in the eight-state region. External Affairs strives to be a “one stop” shop for regional communication goals and objectives.

Our Goals
1. Increase the effectiveness of internal communications throughout the Region.
2. Develop strategic, proactive activities and approaches to support Regional and Service Priorities.
3. Establish mutually beneficial communications partnerships and campaigns.
4. Implement measures to increase and monitor the effectiveness of External Affairs activities.

Congressional Affairs:
External Affairs serves as the liaison between the Service, Congress and other political entities in the region. We monitor legislative and policy issues at local, state and Congressional levels; maintain communication with state and Congressional levels and with state and district Congressional offices in the region; coordinate Congressional outreach activities with field stations; provide policy analysis and recommendations to the Regional Directorate; and serve as the regional point-of-contact for the Service’s Headquarters of Congressional and Legislative Affairs.

Accomplishments for 2014:
- Communicated monthly with nearly 50 state and Congressional staffers regarding species listing decisions, constituent concerns and proposed legislation.
- Led Congressional outreach on a number of listing decisions, including lesser prairie-chicken, Gunnison prairie dog, and Coral Pink Sand Dunes tiger beetle.
- Managed Congressional operations for controversial/high-profile issues such as: Ouray NWR oil and gas development, Wyoming Toad Recovery Plan, Ivory Crush, Chokecherry-Sierra Madre, wolverine, and those issues pertaining to communications rollouts.
- Answered multiple Congressional inquiries including Prebles Meadow Jumping Mouse, Colorado flood recovery and greenback cutthroat trout recovery.
- Developed monthly Congressional e-newsletter and communications strategy.

Tribal Affairs:
External Affairs serves as a communications connection point to the 39 federally-recognized Tribes in the region. We support Service program areas in their conservation outreach work with Tribes. We monitor Tribal natural resources and conservation issues within the Tribes.
