

South Dakota hawks and eagles may be especially susceptible to prairie dog anticoagulant rodenticides and lead poisoning from eating contaminated prey. They are protected by both federal and state law under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act and the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act.