JOHN L. FARLEY TAKES OATH AS FWS DIRECTOR

John L. Farley of Seattle, Wash., was sworn in as Director of Fish and Wildlife Service in Seattle today. Federal District Judge John C. Bowen administered the oath.

The ceremony was conducted at a breakfast meeting of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and was witnessed by 60 or more business associates of Mr. Farley, and representatives of the Pacific Northwest fishing industry. Mrs. Farley and the new director's two sons John L. Jr., of Oakland, Calif., and William S. of Camas, Washington, and the latter's wife also were present. Under Secretary of the Interior Ralph Tudor who is returning from an Alaska inspection tour was also present and spoke briefly.

Mr. Farley will address a meeting of the Western Wildlife Association in Long Beach, Calif., on June 1 and will speak before the annual meeting of the Izaak Walton League in Grand Rapids, Mich., on June 4. He will report for duty in Washington on June 6.
