DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR RELEASES FINAL IMPACT STATEMENT ON PROPOSED ANWR LAND EXCHANGES

The availability of the final legislative environmental impact statement (LEIS) on the proposed Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) land exchanges was announced today by Becky Norton Dunlop, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks. From the outset, the Department has made clear that any exchange would be contingent upon congressional authorization of an oil and gas leasing program for ANWR and congressional ratification of exchanges.

The proposed land trades would result in the acquisition of 896,000 pristine acres of inholdings in seven Alaska national wildlife refuges. Alaska Native corporations would trade those lands for limited oil and gas interests in approximately 166,000 acres in the coastal plain of ANWR.

"The final LEIS, which encompasses numerous written and oral comments that have been considered in its preparation, shows that we have come a long way toward developing a better public understanding of exactly what these proposed trades entail," said Dunlop. "Three years of work have been spent on the development of the proposed exchanges. This document will be an essential reference for the Secretary as he decides whether to recommend the exchanges to Congress."
