

Front:

Attention Anglers: Have you seen this fish in the New York State Canal?

The round goby is easily identified by a disk-like pelvic fin and single black spot on the dorsal fin.

Back:

- As of 2006, gobies were confirmed as far east in the canal as Brockport.
- Understanding their distribution is critical for fishery management efforts.

If you catch a goby in the canal east of Brockport:
DO NOT RELEASE IT. Please call the USFWS at (716) 691-5456 to report the location of capture. If you cannot identify the fish, please freeze it in a plastic bag until we can collect it from you.
