Please accept this as a "NO" vote on this proposal.

The current state of "environmental protection" in Florida is "endangered."

The Governor and the legislature have both done everything they can to support development to the detriment of wildlife, water and wilderness. Note the Honeymoon Island RV park, taking the Black Bear off the endangered list, and the decimation of the water boards throughout the state as a few examples of this. The FWC is only interested in the jobs of its top management, and will do whatever Scott wishes, regardless of the merit of the idea.

Florida needs the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services to buffer these local yokels who have no concern at all for Florida and its future.
