

Red River National Wildlife Refuge is hosting a week-long, nature discovery artistic adventure camp for those children that are serious about art, poetry writing, photography, video and nature journaling.

Discover the beauty of nature by spending time outdoors on the Refuge.

We will use traditional and non-traditional media and methods to capture our nature observations.

Temporary nature art created like the famous artist Andy Goldsworthy

For inspiration, we will study a few well-known nature artists, nature photographers, and naturalists.

We will also learn about several student art contests and then participate in the Junior Duck Stamp Contest, by creating artwork.

Junior duck stamp art from 2012.
