PART 257—FILING OF CLAIMS TO
SATELLITE CARRIER ROYALTY FEES

§257.3 Content of claims.

(a) Single claim. A claim filed on behalf of a single copyright owner of a work or works secondarily transmitted by a satellite carrier shall include the following information:

(1) The full legal name and address of the copyright owner entitled to claim royalty fees.

(2) A general statement of the nature of the copyright owner’s work or works, and identification of at least one secondary transmission by a cable system of such work or works establishing a basis for the claim.

(3) The name, telephone number, facsimile number, if any, and full address, including a specific number and street name or rural route, of the person or entity filing the single claim.

(4) An original signature of the copyright owner or of a duly authorized representative of the copyright owner.

(b) Joint claim. A claim filed on behalf of more than one copyright owner of whose works have been secondarily transmitted by a cable system shall include the following information:

(1) A list including the full legal name and address of each copyright owner to the joint claim entitled to claim royalty fees.

(2) A concise statement of the authorization for the person or entity filing the joint claim. For this purpose, a performing rights society shall not be required to obtain from its members or affiliates separate authorizations, apart from their standard membership affiliate agreements, or to list the name of each of its members or affiliates in the joint claim as required by paragraph (b)(1) of this section.

(3) A general statement of the nature of the copyright owners’ works and identification of at least one secondary transmission of one of the copyright owners’ work or works by a cable system establishing a basis for the joint claim and the identification of the copyright owner of each work so identified.

(4) The name, telephone number, facsimile number, if any, and full address, including a specific number and street name or rural route, of the person filing the joint claim.

(5) Original signatures of the copyright owners to the joint claim or of a duly authorized representative or representatives of the copyright owners.

(c) In the event that the legal name and/or address of the copyright owner entitled to royalties or the person or entity filing the claim changes after the filing of the claim, the Copyright Office shall be notified of the change. If the good faith efforts of the Copyright Office to contact the copyright owner or person or entity filing the claim are frustrated because of failure to notify the Office of a name and/or address change, the claim may be subject to dismissal.

2. Section 257.3 is revised to read as follows:

§257.3 Content of claims.

(a) Single claim. A claim filed on behalf of a single copyright owner of a work or works secondarily transmitted by a satellite carrier shall include the following information:

(1) The full legal name and address of the copyright owner entitled to claim royalty fees.

The Kootenai River population of the white sturgeon is one of 18 landlocked populations of white sturgeon known to occur in western North America. This population is restricted to approximately 270 river kilometers (km) (168 river miles (mi)) of the Kootenai River, which originates in Kootenay National Park in British Columbia, Canada. The river flows south into Montana, northwest into Idaho, then north through the Kootenai Valley into British Columbia, where it flows through Kootenay Lake and joins the Columbia River at Castlegar, British Columbia. The Kootenai River population of white sturgeon extends from Kootenai Falls, Montana, located 50 river km (31 river mi) below Libby Dam, Montana, downstream through Kootenay Lake to Corra Lynn Dam at the outflow from Kootenay Lake, British Columbia, Canada. A natural barrier, Bonnington Falls, downstream of Kootenai Lake, has isolated the Kootenai River white sturgeon since the last glacial advance roughly 10,000 years ago (Apperson and Anders 1991). Kootenai River white sturgeon occur in Idaho, Montana, and British Columbia. Approximately 45 percent of the species’ range, based on river kilometers, is located within British Columbia. Apperson and Anders (1991) found that at least 36 percent of the sturgeon tracked during 1998 overwintered in Kootenay Lake, British, Columbia. They further believe that sturgeon do not commonly occur upstream of Bonners Ferry, Idaho.

The Kootenai River white sturgeon population is threatened by factors including hydropower operations, flood control operations, poor recruitment, loss of habitat, and possible contaminants (water quality impacts). For a more detailed discussion of the ecology of the Kootenai River population white sturgeon see the September 6, 1994, Federal Register notice (59 FR 45989) listing this population as endangered, and the September 30, 1999, Recovery Plan for the White Sturgeon (Acipenser transmontanus): Kootenai River Population (U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 1999). The final rule and the recovery plan incorporate the best available scientific and commercial data specifying any particular area as critical habitat. We have prepared a draft biological information to accurately delineate that habitat essential to the species, and, in the absence of this delineation, the required analysis of impacts could not be completed accurately.

On December 21, 2000, we published in the Federal Register a proposal to designate critical habitat for this species (65 FR 80698). We are proposing an 18 river kilometer (11.2 miles) reach of the Kootenai River bed (below ordinary high water lines) near Bonners Ferry, Idaho, as critical habitat.

Section 4(b)(2) of the Act requires that the Secretary shall designate or revise critical habitat based upon the best available scientific and commercial data available and after taking into consideration the economic impact of specifying any particular area as critical habitat. We have prepared a draft economic analysis of the proposed critical habitat designation, and it is available at the Internet and mailing addresses listed above in the ADDRESSES section.

Public Comments Solicited

We have reopened the comment period at this time in order to accept the best and most current scientific and commercial data available regarding the proposed critical habitat and the draft economic analysis. We will accept comments during the reopened comment period. All previous comments and information submitted during the original comment period need not be resubmitted. If you wish to comment, you may submit your comments by any one of several methods:

2. You may send comments and information by electronic mail (e-mail) to: FW1SPOK-crithab-stur@r1.fws.gov.

Please submit e-mail comments as an ASCII file format and avoid the use of special characters and any form of encryption. Please also include “Attn: RIN 1018–AH06” and your name and return address in your e-mail message. If you do not receive a confirmation from the system that we have received your e-mail message, contact us directly by calling our Upper Columbia Fish and Wildlife Office at 509–891–6839.

3. You may hand-deliver written comments and information to our Upper Columbia Fish and Wildlife Office, 11103 East Montgomery Drive, Spokane, Washington.

Comments and materials received, as well as supporting documentation used in preparation of the proposed rule to designate critical habitat, will be available for public inspection, by appointment, during normal business hours at the above address.
Our practice is to make all comments, including names and home addresses of respondents, available for public review during regular business hours. Individual respondents may request that we withhold their home address from the rulemaking record, which we will honor to the extent allowable by law. If you wish for us to withhold your name and/or address, you must state this prominently at the beginning of your comments. However, we will not consider anonymous comments. We will make all submissions from organizations or businesses, and from individuals identifying themselves as representatives or officials of organizations or businesses, available for public inspection in their entirety.
