

What is a National Wildlife Refuge?

Name: _____

There are over 566 National Wildlife Refuges across the country! Let's find out what they are and what you can do at some of them.

A national wildlife refuge is a special piece of land set aside to provide habitat for wildlife and plants. Refuges conserve the habitat, plants, and animals for future generations.

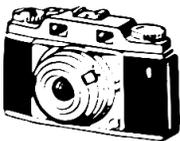

What is a habitat? _____

What do you think conserve means? _____

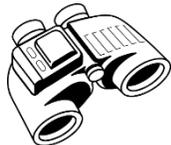

Who are the future generations? _____

What can you do at a National Wildlife Refuge? Each Refuge is a little different, so find the Refuge closest to you using this link. Circle what you think you are allowed to do there.

Take photos

Use binoculars

Litter

Go in visitor center

Go on drive

Pick plants

Go for a walk

Feed animals

Look for animals

Bring a lunch

Touch wild animals

Play music

