Conservation through the Arts...

The Federal Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program is an integrated art and science curriculum developed to teach environmental science and habitat conservation. It has been designed to fit in with existing programs in these areas and conform to state and national curricular standards. The Program incorporates scientific and wildlife management principles and crosses cultural, ethnic, social and geographic barriers to teach a greater awareness of our nation's natural resources. This pairing of subject areas allows students to learn about conserving the habitat while they explore the esthetic qualities of wildlife and nature. Concentrating on waterfowl and wetlands gives students an opportunity to experience the beauty and diversity of wildlife at the same time they discover the interdependence found in nature. The Junior Duck curriculum demonstrates that wetlands are not only nature's filter system, but the barometer of our environmental health. Hundreds of other plants and animals depend on this habitat for their survival.

Funding for the Junior Duck Stamp Program came originally from a National Fish and Wildlife Foundation Grant. In 1994 this source of funding was replaced by funds appropriated through the Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program Act authorized by the 103rd Congress.

A Junior Duck Stamp design is a "term paper" in which students use visual rather than verbal articulation to show what they have learned. Participants select a species of North American waterfowl, do research on this species and its habitat, then depict the waterfowl in an artistic medium.

The Junior Duck Stamp Program has many benefits. It introduces school age children to an important and fragile part of the natural world. It instills a sense of individual responsibility in the maintenance of our environment. And it benefits waterfowl and their habitats as well as all migratory birds and hundreds of plants and animals that share wetland habitats.

$5.00 each, plus shipping.
(Also available through mail order.)

1999, 1998, 1997 Stamps available.

Proceeds of Junior Duck Stamp sales support the Program and fund the scholarship awarded to the winner of the National Contest.

Junior Duck Stamp recognizes and honors students, teachers, and schools.

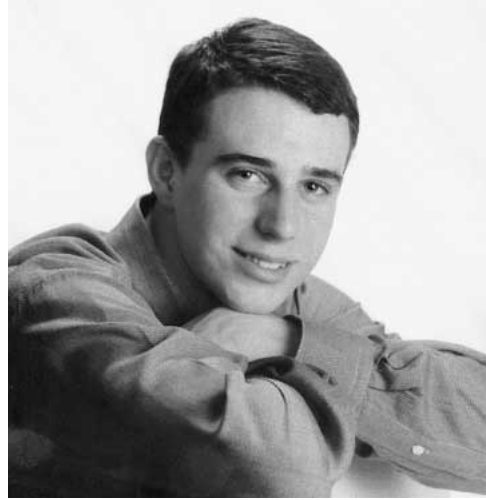

Buy a Federal Duck Stamp — Conserve Wetlands

Proceeds are used for purchasing land for the National Wildlife Refuge System, the world's most extensive and diverse collection of lands and waters dedicated to wildlife

A current stamp allows free entry into every National Wildlife Refuge and benefits all migratory birds, including neotropical migratory songbirds, and other wildlife that depend on wetlands for survival

1999–2000 National Winner

Ryan Kirby, 16, of Hamilton, Illinois, won first place in the 1999-2000 Junior Duck Stamp Contest after placing fourth in last year's national contest. Ryan first entered the Junior Duck Stamp contest in 6th grade when his art teacher required all his students to participate. That first year he received a second place in his age group and describes himself as “hooked.” He has entered the contest every year since, winning a first place in his age group in 7th and 8th grades.

Ryan is a senior at Hamilton High School. He works mostly in colored pencil, oil and acrylics. He credits his art teacher, Steve Mullins, for encouraging and helping him with construction, composition and anatomy. Mr. Mullins also convinced Ryan to use oil for this year's work rather than the colored pencil he has used in the past. Ryan enjoys hunting, fishing and trapshooting. He has exhibited his work in local art shows and paints hunting dogs on consignment. In addition to waterfowl, Ryan enjoys drawing and painting a variety of wildlife, for example wild turkeys, deer, quail and pheasants. Ryan enjoys the outdoors and often takes his camera along when he hikes or hunts. He takes pictures of trees, logs, leaves, etc. which he weaves into his paintings. For this year's picture, he used photographs, reference books, mounts and personal observation. In addition to art and outdoor pursuits, Ryan also plays football and basketball. He is considering a career in engineering, architecture, or professional art.

Ryan says that he has gained a lot from the Junior Duck Stamp Program such as a better knowledge and respect for the birds and an understanding of the anatomy and habits of the ducks. He also says he realizes that it is important to help protect these animals and their habitat so that others may enjoy them as much as he does.

The excellent Illinois Junior Duck Stamp Program is coordinated by Cathy Gibson of Illinois DNR/Kids for Conservation.

Second and Third Place

Sara Jean Stack, 18, of Maplewood, Minnesota, placed second this year, the first time she entered the contest. She has entered other wildlife art contests, however. In 1998, she won second place in the Geese Unlimited contest. Although an amateur artist, Sara has sold work done on commission to private collectors. She works in many different mediums including porcelain and stoneware clay, even an occasional snow sculpture. Most of her work, however, is done in acrylic or graphite. Sara has been drawing since she was five years old, and painting since the age of thirteen. Her father, who has been very supportive of her art work, is an avid duck hunter who loves wildlife art. It is because of him that Sara developed her interest in waterfowl art. Sara says that participating in the Junior Duck Stamp Contest has been a great experience because it allowed her to see the benefits of research and study with the final product being a beautiful work of art. She is very anxious to enter the Federal and State duck stamp contests and hopes to attend a college with a strong art program. Her goal is to pursue a career in wildlife art. The strong Minnesota Junior Duck Stamp Program is coordinated by Judie Miller at Minnesota National Wildlife Refuge in Bloomington, Minnesota.

Benjamin Carlson, 17, of West Burke, Vermont, placed third in this year's contest. Ben is a senior at Lyndon Institute. His lovely scratch board rendition of a bufflehead is the first time this technique has been seen in the national contest. Ben loves airbrush painting and pen and ink. He has an eye for detail and, as his entry shows, is meticulous with his artwork. He spent more than three months working on his drawing focusing on line variations in black and white. While this is his first year as a participant in the Junior Duck Stamp Program, Ben is not new to art contests. As a sophomore, he entered the national Aeronautics and Space Administration Intergalactic Art Contest and placed third in his state. As a freshman, he received second place in Vermont's Green-up Poster contest. Ben especially likes illustrating and cartooning, but with the support of his art teacher, he tackled the Junior Duck Stamp contest. He used information from bird books, the Internet, photographs, duck decoys and other references. Though Ben has not chosen a future career yet, he demonstrates exceptional talent and promise as a young artist. Juanita Blaskowski of the Missisquoi National Wildlife Refuge in Swanton, Vermont, is responsible for the success of the state's Junior Duck Stamp Program.

Entries should be postmarked by March 15, 2000, and addressed to your state's receiving site.

South Carolina's deadline is January 30, 2000.

Junior Duck Stamp Design Contest

Entry Requirements

Entries should be postmarked by March 15, 2000, and addressed to your state's receiving site. (South Carolina's deadline is January 30, 2000.) Do not send art to the national office!

Entries are limited to North American ducks, geese, or swans; or Hawaiian Koloa, Laysan Duck or Nene Goose (loons and mute swans are not eligible).

Official entry form must be completed, signed, and glued on the back of each entry. Only one entry per student.

Entries must be horizontal, 9" × 12", without a mat, glass, frame, cover sheet, or border (spray chalk with a fixative). Do not make design look like a stamp.

No lettering, signatures, or initials may appear on the front of design. Art will be disqualified if any of these things appear on the front.

Entries should not exceed 1/4" in total thickness.

Design entry must be contestant's original, hand done creation and may not be traced or copied from photographs or other artists' works. While we recognize that many schools and teachers have limited resources, students must make fundamental changes when using someone else's work as their inspiration. Plagiarism, the unauthorized use of the language, thoughts, or work of another person and representation of it as your own, is a crime. Computers or other mechanical devices may not be used in any stage of creating the art.

K-12 students attending public, private, or home-schools in the United States are eligible to enter.

Any person who has won the National First Place in the Junior Duck Stamp Contest during the preceding year may not submit an entry in the current year's contest.

Awards

First Place National Winner receives $2,500 cash award.

The national first, second, and third place winners, their art teachers, and one of their parents will receive a free trip to Washington, DC, in the Fall to attend the (adult) Federal Duck Stamp Contest.

The national first place winning design is used on the Federal Junior Duck Stamp.

State recognition and prizes will vary depending on corporate and local sponsorship.

All Students entering their state's contest will receive a certificate of participation.

In each grade group (K-3rd, 4th-6th, 7th-9th, 10th-12th), three first place, three second place, three third place, and sixteen honorable mention ribbons are awarded (25 ribbons per group × 4 groups = 100 ribbons).

The State Best of Show is selected from among the 12 first place winning designs and will compete in the national competition.

All National and State winning designs will be displayed during the year and returned to the students the following Spring.

America's National Wildlife Refuge System of any change in address.

Reserves the exclusive right to authorize the reproductions of all award-receiving entries in any form, including: stamps,

prints, calendars, greeting cards, stationary, post cards, etc., and to photograph the winning stamp designs without compensation to the student. The winning artist will provide autographs without charge to the public or Federal Government. Autographs will be requested on Junior Duck Stamps and Junior Duck Stamp products.

Has the right to use the student names and addresses for promotional purposes without compensation to the student.

Has the right to destroy unclaimed artwork after one year.

Helpful Hints for Teachers

Before photocopying and distributing the entry form to students, fill out school and press information. Please print clearly.

Be sure you look at your students' references so you know whether the work being submitted is original or a copy of someone else's work. Assume responsibility for making the ethics of art competitions known to students and refuse to approve the entry of work which carries any doubt as to its authenticity and originality. Copyright laws apply. Your signature on entry form is confirmation of the originality of the student's art.

Techniques may include scratch board,
airbrush, pointillism, linoleum printing,
collage, dry brush, crosshatch, etc.
(photographs and computer entries are not accepted).

Entries should be postmarked by March 15, 2000, and addressed to *your state's
