We expect to have a draft comment to you tomorrow morning (after one more read-thru). Sue gets in at 8:00 - it will be the first thing we do.

ok thanks - you know there is going to be some revisions requested by the RD or DRD. I have to run the letter by them. Just prepping you for that reality. Hopefully it won't change anything

I might be a bit over-tired, but I am not yet delusional enough to think that our comment will make it out of the RO unscathed. I was actually hoping you would have some thoughts for us as well. You always provide great suggestions that make the product more likely to be successful.

We are nothing if not flexible.

Here's our first draft (okay, maybe it's actually the fifth or sixth) of the new comment letter. I have attached the cover letter and the actual comment as two separate files to avoid Word formatting issues related to page numbers and margins, but will combine them both in one Adobe doc once all edits are done and before submitting.

Happy reading.
