Hi Craig,

We have the data uploaded. Is it possible to get the full docket instead of the “public docket”? The below shows some duplicates, which may just be what the data set is, but want to make sure we have the full record. Let me know if that makes sense!

Thanks,
Lori

Greetings:

PRB provided their first extract (which may not include a letter from Garfield County that Nicole just forwarded). PRB shared:

Attached are the comments we received via Regulations.gov for the Gray Wolf proposed rule (FWS-R6-ES-2022-0100)

There are 592 Do_Not_Post comments (duplicate submissions). There are 3,698 posted comments. One of the posted comments (Document ID FWS-R6-ES-2022-0100-4389) is a mass mail campaign representing 16,233 signatures. There are 4,290 comments in total.

We may receive additional comments in the mail over the coming week. If any letters are received, PRB staff will add those to the electronic docket and provide a copy to you for review.

The ZIP folder and the extracted files are available here: 20230419\_Extract

If additional letters come in over the next few days, do we need an additional Extract, or can we add those manually to your DiscoverText workflow?

Thank you!

Craig.

Also, to clarify, we don't have a sample set of responses for 10(j) rules, but the latest 2022 Mexican wolf 10(j) would be a great example.

Hello all,

The draft coding structure for public comment coding has been uploaded here: DEIS coding structure

Let us know if you think there are any big buckets we are missing. We can take out the 10(j) support and oppose if you would like. Those are not substantive. The only thing they provide is a general "count" of public support or opposition but in the end will not require responses since they are non sub. We are looking to finalize by Friday so we can send it to the software folks to upload and be ready to start coding next week.

Also as a side note as you see a new strange address on the cc line – this is an internal WSP mailbox that allows us to keep a record of deliverable submittals for our internal audit record keeping. Just in case you were wondering what that was!

I am heading out on PTO but will have my email and Jessica is available for questions on any of this.

Thanks!
Lori
