Kodiak National Wildlife Refuge and the Kodiak Archipelago

Birds

Kodiak National Wildlife Refuge was established in 1941 to preserve and protect the pristine habitat of the brown bear and

Introduction

Emperor Geese ©Michael Quinton Kodiak is the largest island in the Gulf of Alaska. A thirty mile span of notoriously treacherous ocean, Shelikof Strait, separates the island from the Alaska mainland.

Spruce forest blankets lowlands in the eastern third of the archipelago, while to the west, tundra prevails. A backbone of mountains rising to over 4,000 feet runs the length of Kodiak Island. Over 1,000 miles of coastline borders the Kodiak Refuge alone.

In winter the archipelago is important to sea ducks and other aquatic migratory birds whose other wildlife. The Refuge comprises more than two-thirds of Kodiak Island and a small portion of Afognak Island.

> combined populations number well over a million birds. A wide variety of upland and marine habitats, and temperatures moderated by the Gulf of Alaska, give Kodiak the greatest diversity of wintering birds in the state.

> Summer brings nesting birds from land and sea. Bank Swallows arrive from South America and puffins fly in from deep North Pacific waters. Many nesting species are year-round residents. While Kodiak is not in a major migratory bird pathway, a good variety of migrants can be seen in small numbers.

This checklist contains 253 species that have been documented in the archipelago by photograph or specimen. Most of these have also been found on the Refuge.

Abundance Codes

BIRD NAMES IN SMALL CAPS REPRESENT BIRDS RECORDED ON OR FROM THE KODIAK NATIONAL WILDLIFE REFUGE.

A Abundant, species is very numerous in all proper habitat; the region regularly hosts great numbers of the species; sighting likelihood excellent.

- C Common, species occurs regularly in most proper habitat; sighting likelihood good.
- U Uncommon, species usually present in relatively small numbers, or higher numbers unevenly distributed; sighting likelihood fair.
- R Rare, species occurs regularly in the region but in very small numbers; sighting likelihood fair to poor.
- + Casual or Accidental, species has been recorded no more than a few times in a season; usually occurs singly; sighting likelihood very poor.

Areas Included

Most of the Refuge boundary follows the mean high tide line, largely excluding marine waters and offshore islets, as well as land surrounding the villages of Larsen Bay, Karluk, Akhiok, and Old Harbor. For the purposes of this list, the Kodiak archipelago includes all islands from Tugidak Island to Shuyak Island and surrounding marine waters within 200 nautical miles for which these islands are the nearest point of land.
