

Appendix C

Status of the Species and Critical Habitat

The Status of the Species and Critical Habitat accounts in this appendix are in draft form. The information currently in the accounts was collected by consultants and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service staff between 2014 and 2017 and updated in 2019, for use in the national pesticide consultations, though they were created in a manner to be used for any consultation. All listed, proposed and candidate species and their critical habitats through November 2019, should have a draft Status of the Species and Critical Habitat account. The accounts represent point-in-time information, predominantly from publicly available data, and typically from U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service listing decisions, recovery plans, 5-year reviews, species status assessments, etc. However, they have yet to be reviewed and finalized by U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service species experts. As a result, they may not necessarily encompass all the information that is available or known by species leads or the most recent knowledge regarding the species.

Animal taxa are divided into the following categories:

- Amphibians
- Arachnids
- Birds
- Bivalves (Clams, Mussels)
- Crustaceans
- Fishes
- Insects
- Mammals
- Reptiles
- Snails

Plant taxa are divided into the following categories:

- Conifers and Cycads
- Dicots
- Ferns and Allies
- Lichens
- Monocots

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service listing and recovery documents (i.e., listing rules, five-year reviews and other status reviews, recovery plans, etc.) supporting this appendix are viewable on species profile pages at <https://ecos.fws.gov/ecp/>.

We have not yet completed status of the species accounts for the following proposed or recently listed species, but relied on the Species Status Assessments (SSA) available in ECOS at the links shown for our analysis in considering their status.
