At SLC airport now. What was the calibration that Dan T said was a deal breaker?

Seth gave Matt a quick overview of some of the issues (kind of defeats the purpose of the upcoming briefing I thought) that came up yesterday and Matt felt that some of them need to be elevated. Now I'll be briefing Matt, Naureen, and Gary Fraser this coming Tuesday via conference call. Wayne will be joining us on the call too.

Remember that Seth is ladder climbing and in being an RD some day. Not a good sign at all. My advice would be for you to go to Denver and bring Wayne with you. Tell Seth you do not feel comfortable with him being there and not you, and you and Wayne should be there in person.

decides. They have arranged for me to video conference in to brief Matt, however, Seth asked me if I was comfortable with him being the person on the ground. I thought that it was a weird question because I will participating. Do you think I should go to Denver?

Enjoy some wine for me in Paris!

Things got a little tense when I suggested we address the wording for calibrating a new population estimate method. It was an issue brought up by the states (wanting to remove it) but peer review and public comments both point out the necessity of calibration. Dan Thompson said that any calibration wording was a deal breaker for the states but everyone else in the room yesterday was in agreement that it is necessary. Now lets hope our RO is supportive...
