Dear Mr. Aland:

This letter is in regard to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated May 8, 2017 for “all records, of every kind and character, irrespective of form or format (including paper and electronic records), that were received by the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service (“FWS”) from, and/or sent by the FWS to, (a) any current or former federal, state or local official or agency, (b) any current or former member of the U.S. Senate or U.S. House of Representatives, (c) any current or former member of the U.S. Executive Branch or (d) any current or former member of the legislature of the State of Idaho, Montana or Wyoming that request, support or oppose, directly or indirectly, removal of grizzly bears in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem from the list of protected species under the Endangered Species Act, 16 U.S.C. § 1531 et seq. (“Requested Records”).” The date range for this request is March 23, 2016 through May 10, 2017 (the date our search began).

We are enclosing one (1) DVD containing forty-eight (48) documents (492 pages) responsive to your request, which are being released to you in their entirety. An additional eighty-eight (88) documents (357 pages) are being withheld in full or part as described below. We are continuing to review additional documents that may be responsive to your request. Once that review is complete, we will send you our final response.

Exemption 5 - Inter-Agency or Intra-Agency Memorandums or Letters Which Would Not Be Available By Law

Exemption 5 allows an agency to withhold “inter-agency or intra-agency memorandums or letters which would not be available by law to a party... in litigation with the agency.” 5 U.S.C. § 552\(b\)\(5\). Exemption 5 therefore incorporates the privileges that protect materials from discovery in litigation, including the deliberative process, attorney work-product, attorney-client, and commercial information privileges. We are withholding sixty-seven (67) documents (287 pages) in full and six (6) documents (38 pages) in part under Exemption 5 because they qualify to be withheld under the following privileges:

Attorney Work-Product Privilege (3 documents (5 pages) in full, also attorney-client)

As incorporated into Exemption 5, the attorney work-product privilege protects from disclosure any materials prepared by or for a party or its representative (including their attorney, consultant, surety, indemnitor, insurer, or agent) in anticipation of litigation or for trial. The privilege applies once specific claims have been identified that make litigation probable; the actual beginning of litigation is not required. Its purpose is to protect the adversarial trial process by insulating litigation preparation from scrutiny, as it is believed that the integrity of our system would suffer if adversaries were entitled to probe each other's thoughts and plans concerning the case. The privilege extends to administrative, as well as judicial proceedings. Once the determination is made that records are protected from disclosure by the attorney work-product privilege, the entire contents of those records are exempt from disclosure under FOIA.

The materials that have been withheld under Exemption 5 under the attorney work-product privilege were prepared by or for a Department attorney in reasonable anticipation of litigation and they reflect the parties' pre-litigation thoughts and they reflect the parties' candid internal discussions conducted between the attorney and clients. So we conclude that the withheld materials are protected in full from disclosure by the attorney work-product privilege of Exemption 5.

Attorney-Client Privilege (64 documents (282 pages) in full; 6 documents (38 pages) in part)

The attorney-client privilege protects confidential communications between an attorney and his client relating to a legal matter for which the client has sought professional advice and is not limited to the context of litigation. Moreover, although it fundamentally applies to confidential facts divulged by a client to his/her attorney, this privilege also encompasses any opinions given by an attorney to his/her client based upon, and thus reflecting, those facts, as well as communications between attorneys that reflect confidential client-supplied information.

The information that has been withheld under the attorney-client privilege of Exemption 5 constitutes confidential communications between agency attorneys and agency clients, related to legal matters for which the client sought professional legal assistance and services. It also encompasses opinions given by attorneys to their clients based on client-supplied facts. Additionally, the Service employees who communicated with the attorneys regarding this information were clients of the attorneys at the time the information was generated and the attorneys were acting in their capacities as lawyers at the time they communicated legal advice. Finally, the Service has held this information confidential and has not waived the attorney-client privilege.

Exemption 6 - Personnel and Medical Files and Similar Files

Exemption 6 allows an agency to withhold "personnel and medical files and similar files the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.” 5 U.S.C. § 552\(b\)\(6\). We are withholding sixteen (16) document (32 pages) in part under Exemption 6.

The phrase “similar files” covers any agency records containing information about a particular individual that can be identified as applying to that individual. To determine whether releasing records containing information about a particular individual would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, we are required to balance the privacy interest that would be affected by disclosure against any public interest in the information.

Under the FOIA, the only relevant public interest to consider under the exemption is the extent to which the information sought would shed light on an agency’s performance of its statutory duties or otherwise let citizens ‘know what their government is up to. The burden is on the requester to establish that disclosure would serve the public interest. When the privacy interest at stake and the public interest in disclosure have been determined, the two competing interests must be weighed against one another to determine which is the greater result of disclosure: the harm to personal privacy or the benefit to the public. The purposes for which the request for information is made do not impact this balancing test, as a release of information requested under the FOIA constitutes a release to the general public.

The information that has been withheld under Exemption 6 consists of employee’s personal cell phone numbers, and private individuals’ address and contact information, and we have determined that the individuals to whom this information pertains have a substantial privacy interest in withholding it. Additionally, we have determined that the disclosure of this information would shed little or no light on the performance of the agency’s statutory duties. Because the harm to personal privacy is greater than whatever public interest may be served by disclosure, release of the information would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of the privacy of these individuals and we are withholding it under Exemption 6.

We reasonably foresee that disclosure would harm an interest protected by one or more of the nine exemptions to the FOIA’s general rule of disclosure.
