Hi Betty, Just so you know, Steve and I are putting together a 2 pager of highlights re snow for the MT climate assessment report I sent you a few days ago. Like I said it is in agreement with NOAA results, but the one big difference is the MT report says they are seeing greater loss of snowpack on the western side of the continental divide vs the east side. West side is lower elevation and they are also seeing more precip falling as rain. Future projections same story. NOAA didn't look into differences between east and west.

Best, John
