

From: Shoemaker, Justin
To: Marjorie Nelson
Subject: Wolverine meeting in Denver
Date: Friday, January 27, 2017 4:03:26 PM

Marj,

I talked to John and Betty today about getting goether in Denver. The week of Valentines day is a good week for Betty and I, hopefully John. But that doesn't work great for you and Jodi. I'm leaning towards going ahead w/ a two day meeting that week with at least Betty, John, and I, maybe a rep from each of the coordinating regions if they are avialable. We just can wait much longer to get together. We got so much done w/ Lizzy in a few days. I'm thinking a small group of us might have a good chance of making some headway.

As for Conor, I'm still waiting to see how he can fit into this. Will have a better idea as Betty sorts through the info.

Betty and John have been talking and John is going to be doing some GIS/modeling work in coordination w/ her. So that's a great step forward.

As for the DPS topic, we do not seem to have any strong evidence to divert from our previous use of two subspecies. Our last DPS argument was in consideration of a North American subspecies. But the 2010 DPS discussion needs a revisit. And I'm going to look into the DPS analysis that was done before 2010, in which we concluded that wolverine in the lower 48 does not meet our DPS criteria. So I have a little homework to do, then we need to talk through it.

Have a good weekend.

Justin Shoemaker
Senior Listing Biologist
U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Region 6
1511 47th Avenue, Moline, IL 61265
Phone: 309-757-5800 ext. 214
Email: justin_shoemaker@fws.gov