Applicant Name: Matt Ward File number: 90017C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Specimen: Sport-hunted trophies

Proposed Activity:

Matt Ward of Santa Monica, California, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- i) Argali populations in Kyrgyz Republic are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified populations, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep. The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management. Revenue collected from sport trophy hunting is used in accordance with Tajikistan Environmental Protection Law. The Committee of Environmental Protection under the Government of the Republic of Tajikistan reports that "[a]ll income received from hunting is distributed according to the established procedure of legislation: 20% to the State budget, 25% of the regional fund for Environmental Protection, 55% to the local fund for nature protection. Thus, in accordance with the distribution structure, almost all the funds are directed to environmental protection."

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

In Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of April 19, 2016, he stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2014 until the end of March 2015 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of seven private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, and Nuri Kuhiston) using off-road vehicles. The results of that survey showed 20,418 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,249,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. These permits are for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Matt Ward has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen was taken from the wild during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Matt Ward is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Matt Ward of Santa Monica, California, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis animon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by Matt Ward.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

V. Effect of determination and response requested:

D. Concurrence:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season.

'Applicant Name: Charles W. Wright File number: 90207C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

Charles W. Wright of Salt Lake City, Utah, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep. The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management. Revenue collected from sport trophy hunting is used in accordance with Tajikistan Environmental Protection Law. The Committee of Environmental Protection under the Government of the Republic of Tajikistan reports that "[a]ll income received from hunting is distributed according to the established procedure of legislation: 20% to the State budget, 25% of the regional fund for Environmental Protection, 55% to the local fund for nature protection. Thus, in accordance with the distribution structure, almost all the funds are directed to environmental protection."

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 -2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Charles W. Wright has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Charles W. Wright is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Application Number: 90207C

Charles W. Wright of Salt Lake City, Utah, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by Charles W. Wright/

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of Argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018-2019 Argali hunting season.

Applicant Name: James Edward Rogers

File number: 90210C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio

Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

James Edward Rogers of Scottsdale, Arizona, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015-2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016-2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. James Edward Rogers has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that James Edward Rogers is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Applicant: James Edward Rogers

Application Number: 90210C

James Edward Rogers of Scottsdale, Arizona, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O.a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a. polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by James Edward Rogers.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- · 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018-2019 Argali hunting season.

V. Effect of determination and response requested:

To Whom It May Concern;

Re: Request to amend hunting region on CITES Import Permit #: MA90210C-0

Please find enclosed my original CITES Import Permit for importation of my sport-hunted male Marco Polo Argali taken during the 2018/2019 hunting season in the Republic of Tajikistan.

Unfortunately, the hunting region of Murgab as seen on my original Permit is incorrect. I have attached the completed Form 3-200-52 in order to amend my permit's hunting region from the Murgab region to the Ishkoshim region, which is where I in fact hunted.

I have attached for you my Hunting Permit from my outfitter in Tajikistan confirming the region in which I hunted. The animal has been hunted and killed at this time, but remains in Tajikistan until such time as I have my amended CITES Import Permit in hand.

I have also enclosed a self-addressed courier envelope in order to have my amended CITES permit returned in a timely fashion.

I appreciate your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Encl:

Applicant Name: David R. Cooley File number: 90225C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

David R. Cooley of Rapid City, South Dakota, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.
- 50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria
 - i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection

vi. Whether the expertise, facilities, or other resources available to the applicant appear adequate to successfully accomplish the objectives?

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. David R. Cooley has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that David R. Cooley is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Application Number: 90225C

David R. Cooley of Rapid City, South Dakota, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by David R. Cooley.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season.

Applicant Name: Jeremy L. Rogers File number: 90440C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

Jeremy L. Rogers of Fayetteville, West Virginia, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Jeremy L. Rogers has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Jeremy L. Rogers is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Applicant: Jeremy L. Rogers

Application Number: 90440C

Jeremy L. Rogers of Fayetteville, West Virginia, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O.a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a. polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by Jeremy L. Rogers.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018-2019 Argali hunting season.

To Whom It May Concern;

Re: Request to amend hunting region on CITES Import Permit #MA90440C-0

Please find enclosed my original CITES Import Permit for importation of my sport-hunted male Marco Polo Argali taken during the 2018/2019 hunting season in the Republic of Tajikistan.

Unfortunately, the hunting region of Murgab as seen on my original permit is incorrect. I have attached the completed Form 3-200-52 in order to amend my permit's hunting region from the Murgab region to the Ishkoshim region, which is where I in fact hunted.

I have attached for you my Hunting Permit from my outfitter in Tajikistan confirming the region in which I hunted. The animal has been hunted and killed at this time, but remains in Tajikistan until such time as I have my amended CITES Import Permit in hand.

I have also enclosed a self-addressed courier envelope in order to have my amended CITES permit returned in a timely fashion.

I appreciate your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Jeremy Rogers

Applicant Name: Robert Allen Rosier File number: 93392C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

Robert Allen Rosier of Mead, Washington, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Robert Allen Rosier has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Robert Allen Rosier is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Applicant: Robert Allen Rosier

Application Number: 93392C

Robert Allen Rosier of Mead, Washington, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by Robert Allen Rosier.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/ctrrency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season.

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES OF ARGALI

- Note 1. If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form, (3-200-52) http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html, and return your original permit with that form.
- Note 2. This form should be used only if you intend to hunt in Mongolia, the Kyrgyz Republic (Kyrgyzstan), and the Republic of Tajikistan (Tajikistan) that has annual quotas on the take of argali. Any permits issued will be conditioned that the permit is valid only if, at the port of entry, evidence from the conservation agency in the country of origin is presented showing that the trophy was part of that quota (e.g., copy of hunting license). If you are hunting in a different country, please use form 3-200-20 http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html.
- Note 3. Typically the Service receives more applications for permits than we are able to issue. In order to create the most equitable distribution system for issued permits, we have developed a specific procedure for accepting and ranking argali applications. Please see a discussion of this procedure on our website (http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html).
- Note 4. This permit will require a report on your hunt that must be submitted within 30 days of the import of your trophy. If you do not import a trophy you must return the unused permit. No further permits can be issued until this requirement is fulfilled.

Provide the following information. Complete all questions on the application. Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A". If needed, use a separate sheet of paper. On all attachments or separate sheets you submit, please indicate the application question number you are addressing. If applying for more than one trophy, be sure to answer questions 2 through 6 for each trophy addressed in the application.

Thanks for the help!

Applicant Name: Shannon Marc McWilliams File number: 93395C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: February 11, 2019

Specimen: Sport-hunted trophies

Shannon Marc McWilliams of Midland, Texas, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Naryn Region of the Kyrgyz Republic during the 2018 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Kyrgyz Republic is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations Section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Kyrgyz government, properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- i) Argali populations in Kyrgyz Republic are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.22(e) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep. The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue to fund argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management. Revenue collected from sport-trophy hunting is used for the management and monitoring of the argali sheep.

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

The State Agency for Environmental Protection and Forestry (SAEPF) conduct annual surveys in the hunting territories and on protected areas (state nature parks, state reserves, and preserves), along with the National Academy of Science of the Kyrgyz Republic, non-governmental organizations and public associations.

There are three recognized subspecies of argali in the Kyrgyz. These are: Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii), Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini), and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi).

Take permits are issued only for the take of Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii). Permits are not issued for Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) [attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018].

The harvesting of mountain sheep is prohibited in certain territories. This includes: Talas oblast, Chui oblast, Ak-Suu, Tyup districts of Issyk-Kul oblast, Ak-Talinsky, Jumgal districts of Naryn oblast, Alay and Chon-Alay districts of Osh oblast (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 Survey

A survey was conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with the National Academy of Science from November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016). The total number of argali was estimated to be 17,000 head of sheep (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 12,959 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,013 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 28 sheep.

(attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey

A survey was also conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with participation of the National Academy of Science between October 17, 2016, and December 27, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The survey was conducted on the Department hunting lands assigned to concessions, and on State Natural Parks and reserves (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The total number of Argali in the areas surveyed at that time was estimated to be approximately 7,500 Argali. (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). However, the survey of many areas of the Syrt Zone of the At-Bashy District was not conducted due to heavy snow (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). This survey was planned to be resumed at the end of April 2017 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

April 2017 to June 2017 Survey

SAEPF conducted a survey from April 2017 to June 2017 on the areas previously inaccessible due to heavy snow in the previous October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018). A total of 13,522 Pamir Mountain Argali were observed (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018, attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, October 11, 2018, and attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 13,522 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,213 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 33 sheep.

Mr. Ryspekov reports that, in order to implement the Law of the Kyrgyz Republic, "On Hunting and the Hunting Economy," the following regulations were developed:

- a. The rules of hunting in the territory of the Kyrgyz Republic were adopted by Decree #143 of the Kyrgyz Republic on March 23, 2015. This Government Decree of the Kyrgyz Republic was promulgated in order to strengthen protection and tighten protection, defense and control of [resource] use, reproduction of game species and regulation of the processes of hunting. In 2015, the establishment of bag limits, distribution of quotas, and issuance of permits were carried out in accordance with the new rules (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).
- b. The rules for issuance of a state hunting license of the Kyrgyz Republic were adopted by Decree #401 of the Kyrgyz Republic on June 26, 2015. These rules set out the procedure for issuing a unified state hunting license. An automated program named "Hunter" was developed to systematize data collection and for entering into the database all available information (case notes on poaching, possession of a gun, etc.) about individual hunters. Currently, the applicable information is entered into the Hunter database in order to prepare the hunting certifications of the Kyrgyz Republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).
- c. The rates for special use of game animals in the Kyrgyz Republic, how payments are collected, distributed and used were established by Decree #715 of the Kyrgyz Republic on October 20, 2015. The above-mentioned Government Decree of the Kyrgyz Republic considerably increased the hunting fees. The previous rate of payment for Marco Polo sheep was 250,000 soms; it was increased to 450,000 soms ($3,717 to $6,691 U.S. dollars) (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).

- d. Additions and changes have been made to Kyrgyz Government Decree #224 of May 3, 2013, "Establishment of rates for collection of penalties for damage caused to animals and plants by legal entities and private individuals." by Kyrgyz Republic Decree #688 of October 10, 2015, which provided incentives for legal entities and private individuals who report cases of poaching, as fines collected for such damages are allocated as follows:
 - 35% goes to Kyrgyz state budget;
 - 35% to the agency imposing the fine;
 - 30% to the person who reported the incident.

(attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016)

e. On March 13, 2014, the Kyrgyz Republic adopted a law "On hunting and hunting enterprise" to ensure the regulation of the hunting industry, to create an effective system to manage the hunting resources, and to provide conservation and sustainable-use of wildlife (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, July 21, 2015).

Pursuant to this law, revenue generated from argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 25% to the budgets of local administrations of the territories where a trophy was harvested,
- 35% to the authorized state bodies of the hunting sector for monitoring, protection and reproduction, implementation of regulations in the hunting sector,
- 40% to the hunting providers to co-finance activities concerning conservation and reproduction of natural resources according to management plans. SAEPF co-finances annually to the hunting providers "more that 20 million soms [$291,970.00 (U.S.); $1.00 (U.S.) = 68.5 soms] for anti-poaching efforts, reproduction and biotechnical actions." This includes supplemental feeding in severe weather conditions, improving fodder conditions, breeding conditions, and veterinary care (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).
- iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 13,522 population [Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii)] is 270 sheep. Eighty sheep represents 0.59 % of the population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Revenue generated from argali trophy hunting from the 2017 hunting season totaled $518,978.00 (U.S.) (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali (Ovis ammon) is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES Appendix II. The Kyrgyz population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

Ingleborg Nordbø (2017) Local opinions on trophy hunting in Kyrgyzstan, Journal of Sustainable Tourism, concludes that the negative impact of trophy hunting seems to overrule the positive impacts in At-Bashy, and in its current form it is not sustainable.

She also states that it does not generate significant revenue to contribute to both the conservation of the species and improve local livelihoods.

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Kyrgyz Republic. Shannon Marc McWilliams has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen was previously taken from the wild. The hunting season starts on August 11, 2018 and ends December 2, 2018. The Kyrgyz Republic has confirmed that Shannon Marc McWilliams is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population in Kyrgyz Republic.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Revenue generated from argali trophy hunting from the 2017 - 2018 hunting season totaled $518,978.00 (U.S.). Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

Applicant: Shannon Marc McWilliams

Application Number: 93395C

Shannon Marc McWilliams of Midland, Texas, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Naryn Region of the Kyrgyz Republic during the 2018 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Kyrgyz Republic

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008).

Animals in southern Kyrgyz Republic are usually considered O. a. polii; some authorities consider those in northern Kyrgyzstan O. a. karelini, but geographic and morphological separation remains unclear (IUCN 2008).

Distribution

In the Kyrgyz Republic, argali are present along the eastern quarter of the country toward the Chinese border from Kazakhstan in the north to Tajikistan in the south, as well as along portions of the eastern Tian Shan toward the Uzbek border (Fedosenko and Blank 2005, cited in IUCN 2008).

Population Status

Luschekina (1994) counted 565 individuals in the western part of the Kokshalatau range in the summer of 1993. Based on these counts plus older, unpublished counts, she extrapolated an estimate of 6,000 argali in northeastern Kyrgyz Republic (IUCN 2008). Magomedov et al. (2003) surveyed 190 km of transects in a similar area during spring 2002, tallying 717 argali (IUCN 2008). Weinberg et al. (1997) reported "no more than 2,000" argali in Tian Shan (which may have included parts of Kazakhstan), and estimates of from 9,900 to 16,000 in the Pamir and Tian Shan of putative O. a. polii subspecies (which included parts of Tajikistan) (IUCN 2008). Weinberg et al. (1997) believed argali in both the Tian Shan and Pamirs were declining (IUCN 2008). In many places, O. a. karelini was reported to have disappeared completely (Weinberg et al., 1997; cited in IUCN 2008). According to Fedosenko (1999), aerial surveys conducted during winters 1990 and 1991 tallied 5,493 argali, and estimated a total population of approximately 8,000 in the early 1990s (IUCN 2008).

Fedosenko and Blank (2005) reported estimates of O. a. polii in Kyrgyzstan as 10,000-12,000 in the Pamir and 5,000 in the Tian Shan, but without citing sources or methods (IUCN 2008). Based on extrapolations from counts in Aksai, Arpa-Naryn, Dzhety-Oguz, and Issyk-Kul oblasts, Kyrgyz government surveys have estimated approximately 15,900 argali in 2006, slightly lower than in previous years, and down from an estimated 26,000 in 2003 (IUCN 2008).

Harris and Reading (2008) described a lack of consensus over population estimates of O. ammon in Kyrgyzstan. Government surveys estimated a population of 26,000 individuals in 2003, declining to 15,000 individuals in 2006 (Harris and Reading, 2008). Ground surveys of key O. ammon habitat were conducted 2010 – 2011; reports of the recorded numbers varied from 15,311 to 16,800 individuals of O. a. polii and O. a. karelini in the regions of Issykkul, Naryn and Talas in eastern Kyrgyzstan, plus 10-37 individuals of O. a. severtzovi in Batken province (Davletbakov, 2012, in Mallon et al., 2014; Davletbakov, pers. Comm., in Tajikistan and Kazakhstan, 2011; cited in UNEP-WCMC, 2014, Review of trophy hunting in selected species. UNEP-WCMC, Cambridge, April 2014).

A large-scale survey of key Argali habitats was conducted in December 2010 and May 2011. This survey counted 15,311 O. a. karelini and O. a. polii in the Issykkul, Naryn and Talas regions and 37 O. a. severtzovi in Batken (Davietbakov and Musaev, 2012).

A July 21, 2015, e-mail received from the State Agency on Environmental Protection and Forestry of the Kyrgyz Republic to the Division of Management Authority, Mr. Sabir Atadzhanov, Director, CITES Management Authority of the Kyrgyz Republic, stated that the population of argali was seen as being stable at around 19,000 animals. This was based on a survey conducted between November 15, 2014, to January 19, 2015, by the Department of Hunting with participation from the National Academy of Science (attached document to personal communication, Omurbek Musakano, July 21, 2015)

A June 6, 2016, e-mail received from Abdykalyk Rustamov, Director, CITES Management Authority of the Kyrgyz Republic, contained a report to the Division of Management Authority. In this report, he stated that a survey was performed between November 2, 2015 and January 5, 2016. This survey estimated the total population of argali at about 17,000 animals and was seen as being stable.

Conservation Actions

Argali (Ovis ammon) were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) on July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed in Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) [57 FR 28014]. Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing for the import of sport-hunted trophies of argali from those countries, if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988 and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

The State Agency for Environmental Protection and Forestry (SAEPF) conduct annual surveys in the hunting territories and on protected areas (state nature parks, state reserves, and preserves), along with the National Academy of Science of the Kyrgyz Republic, non-governmental organizations and public associations.

There are three recognized subspecies of argali in the Kyrgyz. These are: Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii), Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini), and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi).

Take permits are issued only for the take of Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii). Permits are not issued for Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) [attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018].

The harvesting of mountain sheep is prohibited in certain territories. This includes: Talas oblast, Chui oblast, Ak-Suu, Tyup districts of Issyk-Kul oblast, Ak-Talinsky, Jumgal districts of Naryn oblast, Alay and Chon-Alay districts of Osh oblast (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

The quota for the 2018 argali hunting season was set at 80 sheep by SAEPF in coordination with the National Academy of Sciences of the Kyrgyz Republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018). Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 13,522 population [Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii)] is 270 sheep. Eighty sheep represents 0.59 % of the population.

November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 Survey

A survey was conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with the National Academy of Science from November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016). The total number of argali was estimated to be 17,000 head of sheep (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 12,959 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,013 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 28 sheep.

(attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey

A survey was also conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with participation of the National Academy of Science between October 17, 2016, and December 27, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The survey was conducted on the Department hunting lands assigned to concessions, and on State Natural Parks and reserves (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The total number of Argali in the areas surveyed at that time was estimated to be approximately 7,500 Argali. (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

However, the survey of many areas of the Syrt Zone of the At-Bashy District was not conducted due to heavy snow (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). This survey was planned to be resumed at the end of April 2017 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

April 2017 to June 2017 Survey

SAEPF conducted a survey from April 2017 to June 2017 on the areas previously inaccessible due to heavy snow in the previous October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018). A total of 13,522 Pamir Mountain Argali were observed (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018, attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, October 11, 2018, and attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 13,522 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,213 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 33 sheep.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Revenue generated from argali trophy hunting from the 2017 hunting season totaled $518,978.00 (U.S.) (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).

On March 13, 2014, the Kyrgyz Republic adopted a law "On hunting and hunting enterprise" to ensure the regulation of the hunting industry, to create an effective system to manage the hunting resources, and to provide conservation and sustainable-use of wildlife (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, July 21, 2015).

Pursuant to this law, revenue generated from argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 25% to the budgets of local administrations of the territories where a trophy was harvested,
- 35% to the authorized state bodies of the hunting sector for monitoring, protection and reproduction, implementation of regulations in the hunting sector,
- 40% to the hunting providers to co-finance activities concerning conservation and reproduction of natural resources according to management plans. SAEPF co-finances annually to the hunting providers "more that 20 million soms [$291,970.00 (U.S.); $1.00 (U.S.) = 68.5 soms] for anti-poaching efforts, reproduction and biotechnical actions." This includes supplemental feeding in severe weather conditions, improving fodder conditions, breeding conditions, and veterinary care (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

Sport-hunted trophies for the Kyrgyz Republic 2018 Argali hunting season will be taken in designated hunting zones. There are six hunting zones in the Kyrgyz Republic totaling 144,000 km² containing 74 hunting concessions. Some of these concessions lie adjacent to protected areas. For example, seven borders on Sarychat-Ertash Nature Reserve contain good populations of Argali, and their presence so close to the reserve is considered a potential threat (A. P. Vereshagin, Deputy Director, pers. comm., to D. Mallon, 2012).

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy, taken during the Kyrgyz Republic 2018 Argali hunting season by Shannon Marc McWilliams.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Kyrgyz Republic. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of trophies to be imported to no more than 80.

Effect of determination and response requested:
A. Determination:
No effect. [species: Argali (Ovis ammon polii)].

Applicant Name: James D. Megginson File number: 90427C

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

James D. Megginson of Pine Hill, Alabama, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. James D. Megginson has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Dennis Keith Harris is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

James D. Megginson of Pine Hill, Alabama, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by James D. Megginson.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of Argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

V.

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018 -2019 Argali hunting season.

To Whom It May Concern;

Re: Request to amend hunting region on CITES Import Permit #: MA90427C-0

Please find enclosed my original CITES Import Permit for importation of my sport-hunted male Marco Polo Argali taken during the 2018/2019 hunting season in the Republic of Tajikistan.

Unfortunately, the hunting region of Murgab as seen on my original Permit is incorrect. I have attached the completed Form 3-200-52 in order to amend my permit's hunting region from the Murgab region to the Ishkoshim region, which is where I in fact hunted.

I have attached for you my Hunting Permit from my outfitter in Tajikistan confirming the region in which I hunted. The animal has been hunted and killed at this time, but remains in Tajikistan until such time as I have my amended CITES Import Permit in hand.

I have also enclosed a self-addressed courier envelope in order to have my amended CITES permit returned in a timely fashion.

I appreciate your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

James Megginson

Applicant Name: Michael Robert Parker File number: 22457D

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: February 11, 2019

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Specimen: Sport-hunted trophies

Michael Robert Parker of Weatherford, Texas, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Naryn Region of the Kyrgyz Republic during the 2018 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Kyrgyz Republic is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations Section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Kyrgyz government, properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- i) Argali populations in Kyrgyz Republic are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.22(e) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep. The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue to fund argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management. Revenue collected from sport-trophy hunting is used for the management and monitoring of the argali sheep.

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

The State Agency for Environmental Protection and Forestry (SAEPF) conduct annual surveys in the hunting territories and on protected areas (state nature parks, state reserves, and preserves), along with the National Academy of Science of the Kyrgyz Republic, non-governmental organizations and public associations.

There are three recognized subspecies of argali in the Kyrgyz. These are: Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii), Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini), and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi).

Take permits are issued only for the take of Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii). Permits are not issued for Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) [attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018].

The harvesting of mountain sheep is prohibited in certain territories. This includes: Talas oblast, Chui oblast, Ak-Suu, Tyup districts of Issyk-Kul oblast, Ak-Talinsky, Jumgal districts of Naryn oblast, Alay and Chon-Alay districts of Osh oblast (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 Survey

A survey was conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with the National Academy of Science from November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016). The total number of argali was estimated to be 17,000 head of sheep (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 12,959 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,013 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 28 sheep.

(attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey

A survey was also conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with participation of the National Academy of Science between October 17, 2016, and December 27, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The survey was conducted on the Department hunting lands assigned to concessions, and on State Natural Parks and reserves (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The total number of Argali in the areas surveyed at that time was estimated to be approximately 7,500 Argali. (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

However, the survey of many areas of the Syrt Zone of the At-Bashy District was not conducted due to heavy snow (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). This survey was planned to be resumed at the end of April 2017 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

April 2017 to June 2017 Survey

SAEPF conducted a survey from April 2017 to June 2017 on the areas previously inaccessible due to heavy snow in the previous October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018). A total of 13,522 Pamir Mountain Argali were observed (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018, attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, October 11, 2018, and attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 13,522 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,213 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 33 sheep.

Mr. Ryspekov reports that, in order to implement the Law of the Kyrgyz Republic, "On Hunting and the Hunting Economy," the following regulations were developed:

- a. The rules of hunting in the territory of the Kyrgyz Republic were adopted by Decree #143 of the Kyrgyz Republic on March 23, 2015. This Government Decree of the Kyrgyz Republic was promulgated in order to strengthen protection and tighten protection, defense and control of [resource] use, reproduction of game species and regulation of the processes of hunting. In 2015, the establishment of bag limits, distribution of quotas, and issuance of permits were carried out in accordance with the new rules (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).
- b. The rules for issuance of a state hunting license of the Kyrgyz Republic were adopted by Decree #401 of the Kyrgyz Republic on June 26, 2015. These rules set out the procedure for issuing a unified state hunting license. An automated program named "Hunter" was developed to systematize data collection and for entering into the database all available information (case notes on poaching, possession of a gun, etc.) about individual hunters. Currently, the applicable information is entered into the Hunter database in order to prepare the hunting certifications of the Kyrgyz Republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).
- c. The rates for special use of game animals in the Kyrgyz Republic, how payments are collected, distributed and used were established by Decree #715 of the Kyrgyz Republic on October 20, 2015. The above-mentioned Government Decree of the Kyrgyz Republic considerably increased the hunting fees. The previous rate of payment for Marco Polo sheep was 250,000 soms; it was increased to 450,000 soms ($3,717 to $6,691 U.S. dollars) (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).

- d. Additions and changes have been made to Kyrgyz Government Decree #224 of May 3, 2013, "Establishment of rates for collection of penalties for damage caused to animals and plants by legal entities and private individuals." by Kyrgyz Republic Decree #688 of October 10, 2015, which provided incentives for legal entities and private individuals who report cases of poaching, as fines collected for such damages are allocated as follows:
 - 35% goes to Kyrgyz state budget;
 - 35% to the agency imposing the fine;
 - 30% to the person who reported the incident.

(attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016)

e. On March 13, 2014, the Kyrgyz Republic adopted a law "On hunting and hunting enterprise" to ensure the regulation of the hunting industry, to create an effective system to manage the hunting resources, and to provide conservation and sustainable-use of wildlife (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, July 21, 2015).

Pursuant to this law, revenue generated from argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 25% to the budgets of local administrations of the territories where a trophy was harvested,
- 35% to the authorized state bodies of the hunting sector for monitoring, protection and reproduction, implementation of regulations in the hunting sector,
- 40% to the hunting providers to co-finance activities concerning conservation and reproduction of natural resources according to management plans. SAEPF co-finances annually to the hunting providers "more that 20 million soms [$291,970.00 (U.S.); $1.00 (U.S.) = 68.5 soms] for anti-poaching efforts, reproduction and biotechnical actions." This includes supplemental feeding in severe weather conditions, improving fodder conditions, breeding conditions, and veterinary care (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).
- iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 13,522 population [Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii)] is 270 sheep. Eighty sheep represents 0.59 % of the population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Revenue generated from argali trophy hunting from the 2017 hunting season totaled $518,978.00 (U.S.) (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).

 Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali (Ovis ammon) is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES Appendix II. The Kyrgyz population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

Ingleborg Nordbø (2017) Local opinions on trophy hunting in Kyrgyzstan, Journal of Sustainable Tourism, concludes that the negative impact of trophy hunting seems to overrule the positive impacts in At-Bashy, and in its current form it is not sustainable.

She also states that it does not generate significant revenue to contribute to both the conservation of the species and improve local livelihoods.

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Kyrgyz Republic. Michael Robert Parker has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen was previously taken from the wild. The hunting season starts on August 11, 2018 and ends December 2, 2018. The Kyrgyz Republic has confirmed that Michael Robert Parker is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population in Kyrgyz Republic.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Revenue generated from argali trophy hunting from the 2017 - 2018 hunting season totaled $518,978.00 (U.S.). Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

Applicant: Michael Robert Parker

Application Number: 22457D

Michael Robert Parker of Weatherford, Texas, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Naryn Region of the Kyrgyz Republic during the 2018 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Kyrgyz Republic

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008).

Animals in southern Kyrgyz Republic are usually considered O. a. polii; some authorities consider those in northern Kyrgyzstan O. a. karelini, but geographic and morphological separation remains unclear (IUCN 2008).

Distribution

In the Kyrgyz Republic, argali are present along the eastern quarter of the country toward the Chinese border from Kazakhstan in the north to Tajikistan in the south, as well as along portions of the eastern Tian Shan toward the Uzbek border (Fedosenko and Blank 2005, cited in IUCN 2008).

Population Status

Luschekina (1994) counted 565 individuals in the western part of the Kokshalatau range in the summer of 1993. Based on these counts plus older, unpublished counts, she extrapolated an estimate of 6,000 argali in northeastern Kyrgyz Republic (IUCN 2008). Magomedov et al. (2003) surveyed 190 km of transects in a similar area during spring 2002, tallying 717 argali (IUCN 2008). Weinberg et al. (1997) reported "no more than 2,000" argali in Tian Shan (which may have included parts of Kazakhstan), and estimates of from 9,900 to 16,000 in the Pamir and Tian Shan of putative O. a. polii subspecies (which included parts of Tajikistan) (IUCN 2008). Weinberg et al. (1997) believed argali in both the Tian Shan and Pamirs were declining (IUCN 2008). In many places, O. a. karelini was reported to have disappeared completely (Weinberg et al., 1997; cited in IUCN 2008). According to Fedosenko (1999), aerial surveys conducted during winters 1990 and 1991 tallied 5,493 argali, and estimated a total population of approximately 8,000 in the early 1990s (IUCN 2008).

Fedosenko and Blank (2005) reported estimates of O. a. polii in Kyrgyzstan as 10,000-12,000 in the Pamir and 5,000 in the Tian Shan, but without citing sources or methods (IUCN 2008). Based on extrapolations from counts in Aksai, Arpa-Naryn, Dzhety-Oguz, and Issyk-Kul oblasts, Kyrgyz government surveys have estimated approximately 15,900 argali in 2006, slightly lower than in previous years, and down from an estimated 26,000 in 2003 (IUCN 2008).

Harris and Reading (2008) described a lack of consensus over population estimates of O. ammon in Kyrgyzstan. Government surveys estimated a population of 26,000 individuals in 2003, declining to 15,000 individuals in 2006 (Harris and Reading, 2008). Ground surveys of key O. ammon habitat were conducted 2010 – 2011; reports of the recorded numbers varied from 15,311 to 16,800 individuals of O. a. polii and O. a. karelini in the regions of Issykkul, Naryn and Talas in eastern Kyrgyzstan, plus 10-37 individuals of O. a. severtzovi in Batken province (Davletbakov, 2012, in Mallon et al., 2014; Davletbakov, pers. Comm., in Tajikistan and Kazakhstan, 2011; cited in UNEP-WCMC, 2014, Review of trophy hunting in selected species. UNEP-WCMC, Cambridge, April 2014).

A large-scale survey of key Argali habitats was conducted in December 2010 and May 2011. This survey counted 15,311 O. a. karelini and O. a. polii in the Issykkul, Naryn and Talas regions and 37 O. a. severtzovi in Batken (Davietbakov and Musaev, 2012).

A July 21, 2015, e-mail received from the State Agency on Environmental Protection and Forestry of the Kyrgyz Republic to the Division of Management Authority, Mr. Sabir Atadzhanov, Director, CITES Management Authority of the Kyrgyz Republic, stated that the population of argali was seen as being stable at around 19,000 animals. This was based on a survey conducted between November 15, 2014, to January 19, 2015, by the Department of Hunting with participation from the National Academy of Science (attached document to personal communication, Omurbek Musakano, July 21, 2015)

A June 6, 2016, e-mail received from Abdykalyk Rustamov, Director, CITES Management Authority of the Kyrgyz Republic, contained a report to the Division of Management Authority. In this report, he stated that a survey was performed between November 2, 2015 and January 5, 2016. This survey estimated the total population of argali at about 17,000 animals and was seen as being stable.

Conservation Actions

Argali (Ovis ammon) were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) on July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed in Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) [57 FR 28014]. Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing for the import of sport-hunted trophies of argali from those countries, if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988 and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

The State Agency for Environmental Protection and Forestry (SAEPF) conduct annual surveys in the hunting territories and on protected areas (state nature parks, state reserves, and preserves), along with the National Academy of Science of the Kyrgyz Republic, non-governmental organizations and public associations.

There are three recognized subspecies of argali in the Kyrgyz. These are: Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii), Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini), and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi).

Take permits are issued only for the take of Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii). Permits are not issued for Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) [attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018].

The harvesting of mountain sheep is prohibited in certain territories. This includes: Talas oblast, Chui oblast, Ak-Suu, Tyup districts of Issyk-Kul oblast, Ak-Talinsky, Jumgal districts of Naryn oblast, Alay and Chon-Alay districts of Osh oblast (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

The quota for the 2018 argali hunting season was set at 80 sheep by SAEPF in coordination with the National Academy of Sciences of the Kyrgyz Republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018). Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 13,522 population [Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii)] is 270 sheep. Eighty sheep represents 0.59 % of the population.

November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 Survey

A survey was conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with the National Academy of Science from November 2, 2015, to January 5, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016). The total number of argali was estimated to be 17,000 head of sheep (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, June 6, 2016).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 12,959 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,013 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 28 sheep.

(attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey

A survey was also conducted by the Department of Sustainable Use of Natural Resources with participation of the National Academy of Science between October 17, 2016, and December 27, 2016 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The survey was conducted on the Department hunting lands assigned to concessions, and on State Natural Parks and reserves (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). The total number of Argali in the areas surveyed at that time was estimated to be approximately 7,500 Argali. (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

However, the survey of many areas of the Syrt Zone of the At-Bashy District was not conducted due to heavy snow (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017). This survey was planned to be resumed at the end of April 2017 (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, May 17, 2017).

April 2017 to June 2017 Survey

SAEPF conducted a survey from April 2017 to June 2017 on the areas previously inaccessible due to heavy snow in the previous October 17, 2016, to December 27, 2016 Survey (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018). A total of 13,522 Pamir Mountain Argali were observed (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 28, 2018, attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, October 11, 2018, and attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018).

Arsen Ryspekov stated that the survey included all three subspecies of argali recognized in the Kyrgyz republic (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, November 2, 2018). The estimated results were:

Pamir mountain sheep (Ovis ammon polii) 13,522 sheep; Tien Shan mountain sheep (Ovis ammon karelini) 4,213 sheep; and Severtsov mountain sheep (Ovis ammon severtzovi) 33 sheep.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Revenue generated from argali trophy hunting from the 2017 hunting season totaled $518,978,00 (U.S.) (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).

On March 13, 2014, the Kyrgyz Republic adopted a law "On hunting and hunting enterprise" to ensure the regulation of the hunting industry, to create an effective system to manage the hunting resources, and to provide conservation and sustainable-use of wildlife (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, July 21, 2015).

Pursuant to this law, revenue generated from argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 25% to the budgets of local administrations of the territories where a trophy was harvested,
- 35% to the authorized state bodies of the hunting sector for monitoring, protection and reproduction, implementation of regulations in the hunting sector,
- 40% to the hunting providers to co-finance activities concerning conservation and reproduction of natural resources according to management plans. SAEPF co-finances annually to the hunting providers "more that 20 million soms [$291,970.00 (U.S.); $1.00 (U.S.) = 68.5 soms] for anti-poaching efforts, reproduction and biotechnical actions." This includes supplemental feeding in severe weather conditions, improving fodder conditions, breeding conditions, and veterinary care (attached document to personal communication, Arsen Ryspekov, September 11, 2018).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

Sport-hunted trophies for the Kyrgyz Republic 2018 Argali hunting season will be taken in designated hunting zones. There are six hunting zones in the Kyrgyz Republic totaling 144,000 km² containing 74 hunting concessions. Some of these concessions lie adjacent to protected areas. For example, seven borders on Sarychat-Ertash Nature Reserve contain good populations of Argali, and their presence so close to the reserve is considered a potential threat (A. P. Vereshagin, Deputy Director, pers. comm., to D. Mallon, 2012).

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy, taken during the Kyrgyz Republic 2018 Argali hunting season by Michael Robert Parker.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Kyrgyz Republic. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of trophies to be imported to no more than 80.

V. Effect of determination and response requested:
A. Determination:
No effect. [species: Argali (Ovis ammon polii)].

Applicant Name: David Michael McNeil File number: 25332D

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: June 24, 2019

Species: Ovis ammon ammon (Altai) and/or Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi)

Proposed Activity:

David Michael McNeil of Buhl, Alabama has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon ammon (Altai), argali sheep trophy taken in the Republic of Mongolia.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Mongolia is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the government of the Republic of Mongolia properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- i) Argali populations in the Republic of Mongolia are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.
- 50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria
 - i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of Ovis ammon (Altai), argali sheep. The argali hunting season is set by statute and begins July 1st and ends October 1st of each year (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). Revenue collected from sport trophy hunting is used for the management and monitoring of the argali sheep (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). The hunting fee for Altai argali is $24,000 (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). The hunting fee for Gobi argali is $14,000 (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). These fees go to the local government budget (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). Twenty-six Altai argali and 39 Gobi argali hunting licenses were issued (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). This generated $1,170,000 (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018).

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Revenue collected from sport-hunting goes to the soum (county) government budgets. The soum governments are required to designate 50% of the trophy hunting revenues on implementation of the hunting management plan (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

A commission made up of representatives from the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations have set the 2018 hunting season quota at 26 Altai argali (38.24%) and 42 Gobi argali (61.76%) for a total of 68 sheep (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a population 18,000 head is 360 sheep. 68 sheep represents 0.38% of the population.

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Mongolian population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

Michael R. Frisina, PhD, CWB, MDMC, Adjunct Professor Range Sciences, Montana State University Bozeman, and Executive Director August L. Hormay Wildlands Institute, conducted a survey in 2013 for the Mongolian Ministry for Nature, Environment, and Tourism. This was the third overall population trend study that he had conducted since 2002 (Frisina 2014). The survey was conducted using the same protocols published by Frisina, et al. 2007. He observed 1,778 argali during the survey; 1,752 were classified by sex and age (Frisina 2014). Ewes made up 50% of the argali classified; Lambs were 26%, and rams made up 24% (Frisina 2014).

During the October 2013 survey, 461 lambs and 877 ewes were observed for a ratio of 53 lambs:100 ewes (Frisina 2014). During the October 2013 survey, 414 rams were observed. The largest male segment, 64.5%, was Class IV rams (> 6 years) (Frisina 2014). This was followed by Class II rams (3-4 years), 13%, Class I rams (1-2 years), 11.4%, and Class III rams (5-6 years), 11.1% (Frisina 2014). The relatively high percentage of Class IV rams observed in 2013 indicated there was good survival of rams into older age classes (Frisina 2014). Frisina believes that this supported the conclusion that Mongolia's legal hunting program had little negative effect on the overall ram survival (Frisina 2014). An adjusted density was used to calculate the October 2013 estimated population of 20,884 argali for Mongolia during the fall of 2013 (Frisina 2014).

The 2013 estimated population of 20,884 argali is lower than the 2009 population estimate of 26,155 argali, but slightly higher than the 2002 estimated population of 20,226 argali (Frisina 2014). The same protocols were used in conducting the 2002, 2009, and 2013 surveys making the population estimates appropriate for establishing a population trend (Frisina 2014). Frisina concluded that the population trend between 2002 and 2013 was stable and the result of natural population fluctuations due to changing climatic conditions (i.e., summer droughts and harsh winters during that time frame) (Frisina 2014).

Dr. Frisina has provided this office with a document titled, Mongolian Argali Population Status October 2016. In this document he stated that eight of thirteen established survey sites in Mongolia were visited in October of 2016 to estimate the argali population status. He compared data collected in 2016 with data collected and reported for 2013. At seven of eight sites, more argali were observed during the 2016 survey compared to the 2013 survey. The survey conducted October 9, 2016 to October 26, 2016, resulted in a total of 2,297 argali observed compared to 1,778 argali in 2013. While this report is preliminary, Dr. Frisina stated that the data will be incorporated into a detailed analysis of argali long-term population trends.

During 2016, 2,297 argali were observed, or 519 more than were observed for the same areas in 2013 (Frisina 2016). This is a 29% increase in observed numbers (Frisina 2016). The data indicated an overall population trend that Dr. Frisina stated is stable to slightly increasing since 2013 (Frisina 2016). A total of 1,175 ewes and 715 lambs were observed (Frisina 2016). The ratio of 61 lambs:100 ewes, is higher than the 53 lambs:100 ewes Frisina observed in 2013 (Frisina 2016). During the 2009 survey, 60 lambs:100 ewes were observed (Frisina 2016). In 2002, Frisina observed 29 lambs:100 ewes (Frisina 2016). Frisina stated that the productivity expressed by the 2016 ratio is the highest in the past seven years (Frisina 2016).

Frisina's 2016 survey found a total of 407 rams; 80 rams were Class I (1-2 years), 77 Class II (3-4 years), 110 Class III (5-6 years), and 140 Class IV (> 6 years) (Frisina 2016). Thirty-four percent of all observed rams were Class IV (> 6 years) (Frisina 2016). This is higher than Frisina reported for 2009, but lower than the 64.5% reported by him for the 2013 survey (Frisina 2016). Frisina concluded that in comparison to earlier surveys the 2016 survey indicates Mongolia's argali populations are stable to slightly increasing (Frisina 2016), production and lamb survival is good, and all male age classes (I, II, III, and IV) are well represented (Frisina 2016).

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Mongolia. The hunting season starts on July 1st and ends October 1st of each year. David Michael McNeil has requested a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon ammon (Altai), argali sheep trophy taken in the Republic of Mongolia. The specimen was taken from the wild. The Republic of Mongolia has confirmed that David Michael McNeil is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population in Mongolia.

A 2001 MEGDT survey resulted in an estimated population of 13,000 – 15,000 argali (attached document of personal communication, Bayasgalan Amgalan, June 10, 2016). In 2009 a MEGDT survey produced an estimated population of 18,000 – 19,000 argali (attached document of personal communication, Bayasgalan Amgalan, June 10, 2016).

Dr. Frisina's 2013 survey yielded an estimated population of 20,884 argali (Frisina 2014). Dr. Frisina compared data collected in 2016 with data collected and reported for 2013 (Frisina 2016). At seven of eight sites, more argali were observed during the 2016 survey compared to the 2013 survey (Frisina 2016). The survey conducted October 9, 2016 to October 26, 2016, resulted in a total of 2,297 argali observed compared to 1,778 argali observed in 2013 (Frisina 2016).

Frisina concluded that in comparison to earlier surveys his 2016 survey indicated Mongolia's argali populations are stable to slightly increasing, production and lamb survival is good and all male age classes (I, II, III, and IV) were well represented (Frisina 2016).

Bayasgalan Amgalan, Secretary, CITES Management Authority of Mongolia, stated in his e-mail of July 20, 2016, that the argali population for Mongolia was 18,000 - 19,000 sheep. He also stated that the Ministry of Environment, Green Development and Tourism planned to conduct a survey in September and October of 2016.

The Mongolian government stated that the population of argali sheep was seen as stable to increasing slightly at around 18,000 to 20,000 animals (Altai and Gobi) (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). Altai argali are estimated to make up 30 percent of the population or about 5,400 to 6,000 head (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). Gobi argali make up 70 percent of the argali population or about 12,600 to 14,000 sheep (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). The trend of the population surveys from 2001 to 2017 suggests that the population is stable to increasing (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Using Mongolia's conservative figure of 18,000 for an estimated population, a sustainable take of 2% of the population is 360 sheep. Sixty-eight sheep represents 0.37% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 5,400 Altai equals 108 head. Twenty-six sheep represents 0.48% of the Altai population. This amount of take also appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 12,600 Gobi equals 252 head. Forty-two sheep represents 0.33% of the Gobi population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management. Revenue collected from sport-hunting is used for the management and monitoring of the argali sheep.

The Altai argali trophy fee is $24,000 for Altai argali sheep and $14,000 for Khangai/Gobi argali sheep (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). All 65 licenses (26 Altai and 39 Gobi) were sold in 2017. The total revenue for 2017 was $1,170,000 (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). Revenue collected from sport-hunting goes to the soum (county) government budgets. The local governments are to spend at least 50% on wildlife conservation projects (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Application Number: 25332D

David Michael McNeil of Buhl, Alabama, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon ammon (Altai), argali sheep trophy taken in the Republic of Mongolia.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali [Ovis ammon ammon (Altai) and Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi)] within the Republic of Mongolia

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: 0.a. ammon, 0.a. collium, 0.a. comosa (= jubata), 0. a. darwini, 0.a. hodgsoni, 0.a. karelini, 0.a. nigrimontana, 0.a.polii, and 0.a. severizovi. Recent genetic studies (Tserenbataa 2003, Tserenbataa et al. 2004) suggest that all Argali in Mongolia represent a single subspecies (as cited in IUCN). Two subspecies have been formerly recognized as, Altai Argali, 0.a. ammon and Gobi Argali or Mongolian Argali, 0.a. darwini (IUCN 2008).

Distribution

Argali are distributed widely, in patches across a large portion of Mongolia (IUCN 2008). The current distribution includes portions of the Altai, Trans-Alai, Gobi-Altai, Khangai, Khentie, and Khovsgol Mountain ranges. They are also found in the Gobi Desert (IUCN 2008). Approximately 25% of Mongolia is potentially argali habitat.

Population Status

Michael R. Frisina, PhD, CWB, MDMC, Adjunct Professor Range Sciences, Montana State University Bozeman, and Executive Director August L. Hormay Wildlands Institute, conducted a survey in 2002 in which he estimated the argali population to be 20,226 sheep (Frisina 2007). In November of 2009, the Ministry of Nature and Environment in cooperation with the Academy of Biology conducted a survey of the argali population using the same protocols utilized in his 2002 survey, resulting in a population estimate of 26,155 argali, slightly higher (29.3%) than the 2002 estimated population of 20,226 argali. (Frisina 2010).

In October of 2013, Michael Frisina conducted a survey for the Mongolian Ministry of Environment, Green Development, and Tourism (MEGDT). This was the third overall population trend study he had conducted since 2002. His population estimate for Mongolia during the fall of 2013 was 20,884 argali (Frisina 2014). It was conducted using the same protocols published by Frisina, el al. 2007(Frisina 2014).

During the October 2013 survey, 461 lambs and 877 ewes were observed for a ratio of 53 lambs:100 ewes (Frisina 2014). During the October 2013 survey, 414 rams were observed (Frisina 2016). The largest male segment, 64.5%, was Class IV rams (> 6 years) (Frisina 2014). This was followed by Class II rams (3-4 years), 13%, Class I rams (1-2 years), 11.4%, and Class III rams (5-6 years), 11.1% (Frisina 2014). The relatively high percentage of Class IV rams observed in 2013 indicated there was good survival of rams into older age classes (Frisina 2014). Frisina believes that this supported the conclusion that Mongolia's legal hunting program had little negative effect on the overall ram survival (Frisina 2014). An adjusted density was used to calculate the October 2013 estimated population of 20,884 argali for Mongolia during the fall of 2013 (Frisina 2014).

Michael Frisina also provided this office with a document titled, Mongolian Argali Population Status October 2016. In this document he states that eight of thirteen established survey sites in Mongolia were visited in October of 2016 to estimate the argali population status (Frisina 2016). He compared data collected in 2016 with data collected and reported for 2013. At seven of eight sites, more argali were observed during the 2016 survey compared to the 2013 survey (Frisina 2016). The survey conducted October 9, 2016 to October 26, 2016, resulted in a total of 2,297 argali observed compared to 1,778 argali in 2013 (Frisina 2016). While this report is preliminary, the data will be incorporated into a detailed analysis of argali long-term population trends.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Mongolia 2018 Argali hunting season will be taken in designated hunting zones. There are currently 62 hunting regions in Mongolia. Thirty-eight of these regions are considered to be argali trophy hunting areas.

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personal sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the Republic of Mongolia 2018 Argali hunting season by David Michael McNeil.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Mongolia. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, Officer of Environment and Natural Resource Department, Ministry of Environment, Green Development, and Tourism (MEGDT), stated in his June 7, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that once again MEGDT had no poaching cases for 2017 (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

The Mongolian government stated that the population of argali sheep is seen as stable to increasing slightly at around 18,000 to 20,000 animals (Altai and Gobi) (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 8/10/18). Altai argali are estimated to make up 30 percent of the population or about 5,400 to 6,000 head (attached document of personal communication Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). Gobi argali make up 70 percent of the argali population or about 12,600 to 14,000 sheep (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). The trend of the population surveys from 2001 to 2017 suggests that the population is stable to increasing (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Each year MEGDT determines the hunting quota based on monitoring data and management plan implementation status. MEGDT decides the number of hunting licenses to be issued on two factors:

- Every year, the individual companies collaborate with specialized environmental professional research companies to conduct research and monitoring on the allocated hunting areas, which is supplied to the local government office. Based on the provided report, the local environmental office provides the amount of the game to be hunted for the following year to the Ministry of Environment, Nature and Tourism.
- The ministry collates the numbers suggested by the local government and seeks approval from the Government of Mongolia. In some cases, where deemed necessary, Ministry professionals conduct their own research and count (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 24, 2018).

For the 2018 argali hunting season MEGDT has set the 2018 hunting season quota at 26 Altai argali and 42 Gobi argali for a total of 68 sheep (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Using Mongolia's conservative figure of 18,000 for an estimated population, a sustainable take of 2% of the population is 360 sheep. Sixty-eight sheep represents 0.37% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 5,400 Altai argali sheep equals 108 head. Twenty-six sheep represents 0.48% of the Altai argali sheep population. This amount of take also appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 12,600 Gobi argali sheep equals 252 head. Forty-two sheep represents 0.33% of the Gobi argali sheep population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

Therefore, we believe that the issuance of import permits for a limited number of argali trophies will not likely adversely affect the species and would serve to enhance the species survival in the wild.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 68 (26 Altai and 42 Gobi) trophies for the 2018 hunting season.

Applicant Name: Patrick William Slater, File number: 22797D

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: May 16, 2019

Species: Ovis ammon ammon (Altai) and/or Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi)

Proposed Activity:

Patrick William Slater, III of Austin, Texas has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi), argali sheep trophy taken in the Republic of Mongolia.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Mongolia is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the government of the Republic of Mongolia properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Mongolia are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi), argali sheep. The argali hunting season is set by statute and begins July 1st and ends October 1st of each year (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). Revenue collected from sport trophy hunting is used for the management and monitoring of the argali sheep (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). The hunting fee for Altai argali is $24,000 (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). The hunting fee for Gobi argali is $14,000 (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). These fees go to the local government budget (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). Twenty-six Altai argali and 39 Gobi argali hunting licenses were issued (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). This generated $1,170,000 (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018).

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Revenue collected from sport-hunting goes to the soum (county) government budgets. The soum governments are required to designate 50% of the trophy hunting revenues on implementation of the hunting management plan (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

A commission made up of representatives from the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations have set the 2018 hunting season quota at 26 Altai argali (38.24%) and 42 Gobi argali (61.76%) for a total of 68 sheep (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018). Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a population 18,000 head is 360 sheep. 68 sheep represents 0.38% of the population.

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Mongolian population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

Michael R. Frisina, PhD, CWB, MDMC, Adjunct Professor Range Sciences, Montana State University Bozeman, and Executive Director August L. Hormay Wildlands Institute, conducted a survey in 2013 for the Mongolian Ministry for Nature, Environment, and Tourism. This was the third overall population trend study that he had conducted since 2002 (Frisina 2014). The survey was conducted using the same protocols published by Frisina, et al. 2007. He observed 1,778 argali during the survey; 1,752 were classified by sex and age (Frisina 2014). Ewes made up 50% of the argali classified; Lambs were 26%, and rams made up 24% (Frisina 2014).

During the October 2013 survey, 461 lambs and 877 ewes were observed for a ratio of 53 lambs:100 ewes (Frisina 2014). During the October 2013 survey, 414 rams were observed. The largest male segment, 64.5%, was Class IV rams (> 6 years) (Frisina 2014). This was followed by Class II rams (3-4 years), 13%, Class I rams (1-2 years), 11.4%, and Class III rams (5-6 years), 11.1% (Frisina 2014). The relatively high percentage of Class IV rams observed in 2013 indicated there was good survival of rams into older age classes (Frisina 2014). Frisina believes that this supported the conclusion that Mongolia's legal hunting program had little negative effect on the overall ram survival (Frisina 2014). An adjusted density was used to calculate the October 2013 estimated population of 20,884 argali for Mongolia during the fall of 2013 (Frisina 2014).

The 2013 estimated population of 20,884 argali is lower than the 2009 population estimate of 26,155 argali, but slightly higher than the 2002 estimated population of 20,226 argali (Frisina 2014). The same protocols were used in conducting the 2002, 2009, and 2013 surveys making the population estimates appropriate for establishing a population trend (Frisina 2014). Frisina concluded that the population trend between 2002 and 2013 was stable and the result of natural population fluctuations due to changing climatic conditions (i.e., summer droughts and harsh winters during that time frame) (Frisina 2014).

Dr. Frisina has provided this office with a document titled, Mongolian Argali Population Status October 2016. In this document he stated that eight of thirteen established survey sites in Mongolia were visited in October of 2016 to estimate the argali population status. He compared data collected in 2016 with data collected and reported for 2013. At seven of eight sites, more argali were observed during the 2016 survey compared to the 2013 survey. The survey conducted October 9, 2016 to October 26, 2016, resulted in a total of 2,297 argali observed compared to 1,778 argali in 2013. While this report is preliminary, Dr. Frisina stated that the data will be incorporated into a detailed analysis of argali long-term population trends.

During 2016, 2,297 argali were observed, or 519 more than were observed for the same areas in 2013 (Frisina 2016). This is a 29% increase in observed numbers (Frisina 2016). The data indicated an overall population trend that Dr. Frisina stated is stable to slightly increasing since 2013 (Frisina 2016). A total of 1,175 ewes and 715 lambs were observed (Frisina 2016). The ratio of 61 lambs:100 ewes, is higher than the 53 lambs:100 ewes Frisina observed in 2013 (Frisina 2016). During the 2009 survey, 60 lambs:100 ewes were observed (Frisina 2016). In 2002, Frisina observed 29 lambs:100 ewes (Frisina 2016). Frisina stated that the productivity expressed by the 2016 ratio is the highest in the past seven years (Frisina 2016).

Frisina's 2016 survey found a total of 407 rams; 80 rams were Class I (1-2 years), 77 Class II (3-4 years), 110 Class III (5-6 years), and 140 Class IV (> 6 years) (Frisina 2016). Thirty-four percent of all observed rams were Class IV (> 6 years) (Frisina 2016). This is higher than Frisina reported for 2009, but lower than the 64.5% reported by him for the 2013 survey (Frisina 2016). Frisina concluded that in comparison to earlier surveys the 2016 survey indicates Mongolia's argali populations are stable to slightly increasing (Frisina 2016), production and lamb survival is good, and all male age classes (I, II, III, and IV) are well represented (Frisina 2016).

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Mongolia. The hunting season starts on July 1st and ends October 1st of each year. Patrick William Slater, III has requested a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi), argali sheep trophy taken in the Republic of Mongolia. The specimen was taken from the wild. The Republic of Mongolia has confirmed that Patrick William Slater, III is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Mongolia.

A 2001 MEGDT survey resulted in an estimated population of 13,000 – 15,000 argali (attached document of personal communication, Bayasgalan Amgalan, June 10, 2016). In 2009 a MEGDT survey produced an estimated population of 18,000 – 19,000 argali (attached document of personal communication, Bayasgalan Amgalan, June 10, 2016).

Dr. Frisina's 2013 survey yielded an estimated population of 20,884 argali (Frisina 2014). Dr. Frisina compared data collected in 2016 with data collected and reported for 2013 (Frisina 2016). At seven of eight sites, more argali were observed during the 2016 survey compared to the 2013 survey (Frisina 2016). The survey conducted October 9, 2016 to October 26, 2016, resulted in a total of 2,297 argali observed compared to 1,778 argali observed in 2013 (Frisina 2016).

Frisina concluded that in comparison to earlier surveys his 2016 survey indicated Mongolia's argali populations are stable to slightly increasing, production and lamb survival is good and all male age classes (I, II, III, and IV) were well represented (Frisina 2016).

Bayasgalan Amgalan, Secretary, CITES Management Authority of Mongolia, stated in his e-mail of July 20, 2016, that the argali population for Mongolia was 18,000 – 19,000 sheep. He also stated that the Ministry of Environment, Green Development and Tourism planned to conduct a survey in September and October of 2016.

The Mongolian government stated that the population of argali sheep was seen as stable to increasing slightly at around 18,000 to 20,000 animals (Altai and Gobi) (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). Altai argali are estimated to make up 30 percent of the population or about 5,400 to 6,000 head (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). Gobi argali make up 70 percent of the argali population or about 12,600 to 14,000 sheep (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). The trend of the population surveys from 2001 to 2017 suggests that the population is stable to increasing (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Using Mongolia's conservative figure of 18,000 for an estimated population, a sustainable take of 2% of the population is 360 sheep. Sixty-eight sheep represents 0.37% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 5,400 Altai equals 108 head. Twenty-six sheep represents 0.48% of the Altai population. This amount of take also appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 12,600 Gobi equals 252 head. Forty-two sheep represents 0.33% of the Gobi population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for argali population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management. Revenue collected from sport-hunting is used for the management and monitoring of the argali sheep.

The Altai argali trophy fee is $24,000 for Altai argali sheep and $14,000 for Khangai/Gobi argali sheep (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). All 65 licenses (26 Altai and 39 Gobi) were sold in 2017. The total revenue for 2017 was $1,170,000 (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 17, 2018). Revenue collected from sport-hunting goes to the soum (county) government budgets. The local governments are to spend at least 50% on wildlife conservation projects (attached document to personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Applicant: Patrick William Slater,

Application Number: 22797D

Patrick William Slater, III of Austin, Texas, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi), argali sheep trophy taken in the Republic of Mongolia.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali [Ovis ammon ammon (Altai) and Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi)] within the Republic of Mongolia

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: 0.a. ammon, 0.a. collium, 0.a. comosa (= jubata), 0. a. darwini, 0.a. hodgsoni, 0.a. karelini, 0.a. nigrimontana, 0.a.polii, and 0.a. severizovi. Recent genetic studies (Tserenbataa 2003, Tserenbataa et al. 2004) suggest that all Argali in Mongolia represent a single subspecies (as cited in IUCN). Two subspecies have been formerly recognized as, Altai Argali, 0.a. ammon and Gobi Argali or Mongolian Argali, 0.a. darwini (IUCN 2008).

Distribution

Argali are distributed widely, in patches across a large portion of Mongolia (IUCN 2008). The current distribution includes portions of the Altai, Trans-Alai, Gobi-Altai, Khangai, Khentie, and Khovsgol Mountain ranges. They are also found in the Gobi Desert (IUCN 2008). Approximately 25% of Mongolia is potentially argali habitat.

Population Status

Michael R. Frisina, PhD, CWB, MDMC, Adjunct Professor Range Sciences, Montana State University Bozeman, and Executive Director August L. Hormay Wildlands Institute, conducted a survey in 2002 in which he estimated the argali population to be 20,226 sheep (Frisina 2007). In November of 2009, the Ministry of Nature and Environment in cooperation with the Academy of Biology conducted a survey of the argali population using the same protocols utilized in his 2002 survey, resulting in a population estimate of 26,155 argali, slightly higher (29.3%) than the 2002 estimated population of 20,226 argali. (Frisina 2010).

In October of 2013, Michael Frisina conducted a survey for the Mongolian Ministry of Environment, Green Development, and Tourism (MEGDT). This was the third overall population trend study he had conducted since 2002. His population estimate for Mongolia during the fall of 2013 was 20,884 argali (Frisina 2014). It was conducted using the same protocols published by Frisina, el al. 2007(Frisina 2014).

During the October 2013 survey, 461 lambs and 877 ewes were observed for a ratio of 53 lambs:100 ewes (Frisina 2014). During the October 2013 survey, 414 rams were observed (Frisina 2016). The largest male segment, 64.5%, was Class IV rams (> 6 years) (Frisina 2014). This was followed by Class II rams (3-4 years), 13%, Class I rams (1-2 years), 11.4%, and Class III rams (5-6 years), 11.1% (Frisina 2014). The relatively high percentage of Class IV rams observed in 2013 indicated there was good survival of rams into older age classes (Frisina 2014). Frisina believes that this supported the conclusion that Mongolia's legal hunting program had little negative effect on the overall ram survival (Frisina 2014). An adjusted density was used to calculate the October 2013 estimated population of 20,884 argali for Mongolia during the fall of 2013 (Frisina 2014).

Michael Frisina also provided this office with a document titled, Mongolian Argali Population Status October 2016. In this document he states that eight of thirteen established survey sites in Mongolia were visited in October of 2016 to estimate the argali population status (Frisina 2016). He compared data collected in 2016 with data collected and reported for 2013. At seven of eight sites, more argali were observed during the 2016 survey compared to the 2013 survey (Frisina 2016). The survey conducted October 9, 2016 to October 26, 2016, resulted in a total of 2,297 argali observed compared to 1,778 argali in 2013 (Frisina 2016). While this report is preliminary, the data will be incorporated into a detailed analysis of argali long-term population trends.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Mongolia 2018 Argali hunting season will be taken in designated hunting zones. There are currently 62 hunting regions in Mongolia. Thirty-eight of these regions are considered to be argali trophy hunting areas.

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personal sport-hunted Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi) argali trophy taken during the Republic of Mongolia 2018 Argali hunting season by Patrick William Slater, III.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Mongolia. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted Ovis ammon darwini (Gobi) trophy.

Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, Officer of Environment and Natural Resource Department, Ministry of Environment, Green Development, and Tourism (MEGDT), stated in his June 7, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that once again MEGDT had no poaching cases for 2017 (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

The Mongolian government stated that the population of argali sheep is seen as stable to increasing slightly at around 18,000 to 20,000 animals (Altai and Gobi) (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 8/10/18). Altai argali are estimated to make up 30 percent of the population or about 5,400 to 6,000 head (attached document of personal communication Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). Gobi argali make up 70 percent of the argali population or about 12,600 to 14,000 sheep (attached document of personal communication, Jeffrey Joseph, August 10, 2018). The trend of the population surveys from 2001 to 2017 suggests that the population is stable to increasing (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Each year MEGDT determines the hunting quota based on monitoring data and management plan implementation status. MEGDT decides the number of hunting licenses to be issued on two factors:

- Every year, the individual companies collaborate with specialized environmental professional research companies to conduct research and monitoring on the allocated hunting areas, which is supplied to the local government office. Based on the provided report, the local environmental office provides the amount of the game to be hunted for the following year to the Ministry of Environment, Nature and Tourism.
- The ministry collates the numbers suggested by the local government and seeks approval from the Government of Mongolia. In some cases, where deemed necessary, Ministry professionals conduct their own research and count (personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, July 24, 2018).

For the 2018 argali hunting season MEGDT has set the 2018 hunting season quota at 26 Altai argali and 42 Gobi argali for a total of 68 sheep (attached document of personal communication, Jamiyankhuu Narmandakh, June 7, 2018).

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Using Mongolia's conservative figure of 18,000 for an estimated population, a sustainable take of 2% of the population is 360 sheep. Sixty-eight sheep represents 0.37% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 5,400 Altai argali sheep equals 108 head. Twenty-six sheep represents 0.48% of the Altai argali sheep population. This amount of take also appears to be sustainable. A 2% take of 12,600 Gobi argali sheep equals 252 head. Forty-two sheep represents 0.33% of the Gobi argali sheep population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

Therefore, we believe that the issuance of import permits for a limited number of argali trophies will not likely adversely affect the species and would serve to enhance the species survival in the wild.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 68 (26 Altai and 42 Gobi) trophies for the 2018 hunting season.

V. Effect of determination and response requested:

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES (Appendix I of CITES and/or ESA)

Note 1: This form should be used to request authorization to import trophies of species listed on Appendix I of CITES and/or as threatened or endangered under the ESA (examples include elephants, lions, cheetahs, wood bison, and markhor).

PLEASE USE FORM 3-200-19 FOR SOUTHERN AFRICAN LEOPARD TROPHIES AND SOUTHERN WHITE RHINOCEROS TROPHIES TAKEN IN NAMIBIA.

- Note 2: If you hold an import permit for a trophy that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form (3-200-52) and return your original permit with that form.
- Note 3: Applications for species listed as endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act are published in the Federal Register for a 30-day public comment period. Please allow at least 90 days for the application to be processed.
- Note 4: Sport-hunted trophy is defined at 50 CFR 23.74 as follows: Sport-hunted trophy means a whole dead animal or a readily recognizable part or derivative of an animal specifically identified on the accompanying CITES document that meets the following criteria:
 - Is raw, processed, or manufactured;
 - · Was legally obtained by the hunter through hunting for his or her personal use;
 - Is being imported, exported, or re-exported by or on behalf of the hunter as part of the transfer from its country of origin ultimately to the hunter's country of usual residence; and
 - Includes worked, manufactured, or handicraft items made from the sport-hunted animal only when:
 - i. Such items are contained in the same shipment as raw or tanned parts of the sport-hunted animal and are for the personal use of the hunter;
 - ii. The quantity of such items is no more than could reasonably be expected given the number of animals taken by the hunter as shown on the license or other documentation of the authorized hunt accompanying the shipment; and
 - iii. The accompanying CITES documents (export document and, if appropriate, import permit) contain a complete itemization and description of all items included in the shipment.
- Note 5: Certain hunting trophies, including elephants, are subject to restrictions on their use after import into the United States. Please see 50 CFR 23.55 for more information or contact the Division of Management Authority.

Please provide the following information. Complete all questions on the application. Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A". If needed, use a separate sheet of paper. On all attachments or separate sheets you are submitting; please indicate the application question number you are addressing. If applying for more than one trophy, be sure to answer questions 4-6 for each trophy addressed in this application. If importing trophies from more than one country, you must submit a separate application for each shipment in order to obtain separate import permits.

Applicant Name: Gary M. Robbins File number: 29993D

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: March 28, 2019

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

Gary M. Robbins of Oxnard, California, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.
- 50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria
 - i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 – 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

vi. Whether the expertise, facilities, or other resources available to the applicant appear adequate to successfully accomplish the objectives?

This is for the importation of one personally sport-hunted argali trophy taken during the 2018-2019 hunting season. This question is not applicable.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Gary M. Robbins has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Gary M. Robbins is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Gary M. I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- 9. Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
- 10. Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by Gary M. Robbins.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of Argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season.

Applicant Name: Edward D. Yates File number: 34706D

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: April 4, 2019

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

Edward D. Yates of Wrightsville, Penssylvania, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Edward D. Yates has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Edward D. Yates is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Applicant: Edward D. Yates

Application Number: 34706D

Edward D. Yates of Erightsville, Pennsylvania, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District
- 4. Nuri Kuhiston LLC, Murgab District
- 5. Vostok LLC, Murgab District
- 6. Boy Kashika, LLC, Murgab District
- 7. Badakhshan LLC, Murgab District
- 8. Voctok, LLC, Murgab District
- Sayohat LLC, Murgab District
 Bars-2010 LLC, Shugnan District
- 11. Vahon LLC, Ishakashim District

III. Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by Edward D. Yates.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of Argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018-2019 Argali hunting season.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has Issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982.

Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties

The U.S. Customs Service has Issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the Importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February, Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982.

There is a growing body of research and information on Marco Polo Sheep and Argali hunting in Central Asia. CITES Red Book Tajikistan Marco Poli centered documentation reflects Tajikistan has received ongoing benefits after more than two decades of using of sport hunting revenues as a conservation tool.

USA based, IUCN member Wild Sheep Foundation has introduced a permanent horn plugging process to Argali and Ibex taken by licensed hunters in Central Asia and the program is expanding to other Central Asian countries. The horn plugging have been very successful in North America for the last four decades and is accepted as a legal validation of a legally hunted wild sheep and has resulted in the recording and use of enormously value data like DNA samples from drilling dust, kill site location, age and size of average wild sheep harvested overtime. The WSF horn plugging program in Central Asia will result in the gathering of valuable data on populations of Argali and ibex and serve to limit poaching and illegal trafficking.

The USFWS and others including IUCN/CITES and WSF have been coaching the Tajikistan Wildlife Department on the CITES Enhancement policy using sport hunting as a conservation incentive and underscoring the rewards of science based wildlife stewardship. CITES status down listing from Vulnerable V (1990) to Endangered EN (2008) to Near Threatened NT (2015) of Capra falconeri heptneri (Bukharan Markhor) displays understand and commitment by Tajikistan's wildlife professionals. Tajikistan for the first time in 2017, issued CITES export permits administered by Tajikistan Wildlife authorities which underscore's the Tajikistan's commitment to manage Marco Polo sheep populations.

CITES wildlife reps have been conducting regional wildlife counts including Marco Poli Sheep and subsequently producing peer reviewed journal articles, expanding the knowledge base and empowering additional science based management tools.

The Tajikistan Wildlife department issues a hunting license that is paired with the sport hunters legal name and passport number. This documentation list is sent to CITES and USFWS as proof that a paying hunter is a legally licensed Marco Polo sheep hunter and serves as a condition for USFWS to issue an import permit. A licensed Marco Polo hunter is required to use a licensed Tajikistan hunting operation and to follow the Tajikistan hunting rules. The fee paid to the native based hunting operation, which can vary, goes directly to supporting the sport hunter's effort to fund the costs of conservation of Tajikistan's wild sheep. At present it is used to fund conservation efforts such as antipoaching, habitat enhancement and protection, and training of local population on the benefits of conserving and enhancing their population of wild sheep. Tajikistan has no luxury of a well-supported and funded citizen hunter population, so sport hunting is the primary source of much needed foreign capital. Thus, not only is the license fee directed to conservation efforts, but the substantially higher cost of hiring a local licensed operation is also directed to enhancing the overall population of wild sheep.

- Note 1. If you hold an import permit for trophy/trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form, (3-200-52) http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html, and return your original permit with that form.
- Note 2. This form should be used only if you intend to hunt in Mongolia, the Kyrgyz Republic (Kyrgyzstan), and the Republic of Tajikistan (Tajikistan) that has annual quotas on the take of argali. Any permits issued will be conditioned that the permit is valid only if, at the port of entry, evidence from the conservation agency in the country of origin is presented showing that the trophy was part of that quota (e.g., copy of hunting license). If you are hunting in a different country, please use form 3-200-20 http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html.
- Note 3. Typically the Service receives more applications for permits than we are able to issue. In order to create the most equitable distribution system for issued permits, we have developed a specific procedure for accepting and ranking argali applications. Please see a discussion of this procedure on our website (http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html).
- Note 4. This permit will require a report on your hunt that must be submitted within 30 days of the import of your trophy. If you do not import a trophy you must return the unused permit. No further permits can be issued until this requirement is fulfilled.

Provide the following information. Complete all questions on the application. Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A". If needed, use a separate sheet of paper. On all attachments or separate sheets you submit, please indicate the application question number you are addressing. If applying for more than one trophy, be sure to answer questions 2 through 6 for each trophy addressed in the application.

There is a growing body of research and information on Marco Polo Sheep and Argali hunting in Central Asia. CITES Red Book Tajikistan Marco Poli centered documentation reflects Tajikistan has received ongoing benefits after more than two decades of using of sport hunting revenues as a conservation tool.

USA based, IUCN member Wild Sheep Foundation has introduced a permanent horn plugging process to Argali and Ibex taken by licensed hunters in Central Asia and the program is expanding to other Central Asian countries. The horn plugging have been very successful in North America for the last four decades and is accepted as a legal validation of a legally hunted wild sheep and has resulted in the recording and use of enormously value data like DNA samples from drilling dust, kill site location, age and size of average wild sheep harvested overtime. The WSF horn plugging program in Central Asia will result in the gathering of valuable data on populations of Argali and ibex and serve to limit poaching and illegal trafficking.

The USFWS and others including IUCN/CITES and WSF have been coaching the Tajikistan Wildlife Department on the CITES Enhancement policy using sport hunting as a conservation incentive and underscoring the rewards of science based wildlife stewardship. CITES status down listing from Vulnerable V (1990) to Endangered EN (2008) to Near Threatened NT (2015) of Capra falconeri heptneri (Bukharan Markhor) displays understand and commitment by Tajikistan's wildlife professionals. Tajikistan for the first time in 2017, issued CITES export permits administered by Tajikistan Wildlife authorities which underscore's the Tajikistan's commitment to manage Marco Polo sheep populations.

CITES wildlife reps have been conducting regional wildlife counts including Marco Poli Sheep and subsequently producing peer reviewed journal articles, expanding the knowledge base and empowering additional science based management tools.

The Tajikistan Wildlife department issues a hunting license that is paired with the sport hunters legal name and passport number. This documentation list is sent to CITES and USFWS as proof that a paying hunter is a legally licensed Marco Polo sheep hunter and serves as a condition for USFWS to issue an import permit. A licensed Marco Polo hunter is required to use a licensed Tajikistan hunting operation and to follow the Tajikistan hunting rules. The fee paid to the native based hunting operation, which can vary, goes directly to supporting the sport hunter's effort to fund the costs of conservation of Tajikistan's wild sheep. At present it is used to fund conservation efforts such as antipoaching, habitat enhancement and protection, and training of local population on the benefits of conserving and enhancing their population of wild sheep. Tajikistan has no luxury of a well-supported and funded citizen hunter population, so sport hunting is the primary source of much needed foreign capital. Thus, not only is the license fee directed to conservation efforts, but the substantially higher cost of hiring a local licensed operation is also directed to enhancing the overall population of wild sheep.

E. IMPORT OF SPORT-HUNTED TROPHIES OF ARGALI

- Note 1. If you hold an import permit for trophy trophies that you did not use, please return the unused original permit. If you are requesting reissuance of a permit because you have taken a trophy, but were unable to import it prior to the expiration of the permit, please use the renewal form, (3-200-52) http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html, and return your original permit with that form,
- Note 2. This form should be used only if you intend to hunt in Mongolia, the Kyrgyz Republic (Kyrgyzstan), and the Republic of Tajikistan (Tajikistan) that has annual quotas on the take of argali. Any permits issued will be conditioned that the permit is valid only if, at the port of entry, evidence from the conservation agency in the country of origin is presented showing that the trophy was part of that quota (e.g., copy of hunting license). If you are hunting in a different country, please use form 3-200-20 http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html.
- Note 3. Typically the Service receives more applications for permits than we are able to issue. In order to create the most equitable distribution system for issued permits, we have developed a specific procedure for accepting and ranking argali applications. Please see a discussion of this procedure on our website (http://www.fws.gov/international/permits/by-form-number/index.html).
- Note 4. This permit will require a report on your hunt that must be submitted within 30 days of the import of your trophy. If you do not import a trophy you must return the unused permit. No further permits can be issued until this requirement is fulfilled.

Provide the following information. Complete all questions on the application. Mark questions that are not applicable with "N/A". If needed, use a separate sheet of paper. On all attachments or separate sheets you submit, please indicate the application question number you are addressing. If applying for more than one trophy, be sure to answer questions 2 through 6 for each trophy addressed in the application.

1. ENTER the quantity next to the name of Argali subspecies you are applying to import;

Hi Mrs. Braxton,

Amy is on vacation for a few weeks, but I'm hoping you will be able to help me or point me in the right direction.

I need to cancel the import permits for David Arp and Carl Fleming. They have both cancelled their hunts at this time. Do you return their import paperwork to us?

Please let me know if you need anything else for this. I greatly appreciate your help!

Hi Mr. Villavicencio,

I hope this finds you well.

Mr. Paul M. Dickson would like to take 2 Marco Polo argalis. How do I change his import permit application to reflect this? His is not able to hunt this year as (b) (6) at the time they are to leave for Tajikistan. He will need his import permit pulled – the name is Jacob Dickson. Please advise how I go about doing these things.

Best,

Hi Mrs. Braxton,

Amy is on vacation for a few weeks, but I'm hoping you will be able to help me or point me in the right direction.

I need to cancel the import permits for David Arp and Carl Fleming. They have both cancelled their hunts at this time. Do you return their import paperwork to us?

Please let me know if you need anything else for this. I greatly appreciate your help!

Hi Mr. Villavicencio,

I hope this finds you well.

Mr. Paul M. Dickson would like to take 2 Marco Polo argalis. How do I change his import permit application to reflect this? His is not able to hunt this year as (b) (6) at the time they are to leave for Tajikistan. He will need his import permit pulled – the name is Jacob Dickson. Please advise how I go about doing these things.

Best,

Amy,

Michael Lewis with Coppersmith Global Logistics is the agent that I am working with and will be meeting us at the airport when we return from Krygystan. Here is his info:

We fly out of Sioux Falls, SD on October 25th and will return to Chicago on November 11. I guess if I don't have the Cites by October 22nd, we should probably just have it delivered to Michael. What are your thoughts on this? I will give your information to Michael and update him with what you and I discussed. Could you let me know that you got this email. Thank you so much!

Introduction

"Altai Nomads" NGO has been responsible for the hunting management in 7 hunting areas of Most, Tsetseg and Duut sums of Khovd aimag since 2013 in cooperation with the governor's offices of the sums and Environment and Tourism Agency of the aimag by the 22.4 and 22.5 references of Law of Animals and 2.4 of 'Regulation of hunting and catching permits of rare species' approved as Appendix 2 of resolution #93, 2013, of the Government of Mongolia.

First, it made a one-year contract (#20) from 04 May 2013 which extended for one more year from 09 May 2014. After successful execution of the contract, the NGO made a ten-year contract (#01) with the governor of Khovd aimag from 2016 till 2026.

As stated in the contract, Altai Nomads NGO takes the following responsibilities. The NGO:

- is fully responsible for hunting management of the hunting areas in Most, Tsetseg and Duut sums.
- 2. runs regular monitoring using specifically approved methodology in the areas.
- 3. develops management plan and has it approved.
- gets hunting activities conducted by professional organization. Community natural resource management is the main principle for the sustainable usage of nature resources.
- 5. cooperates with other stakeholders to get hunting areas into local protection.

- 13. has the hunting process documented/noted down.

Every year Altai Nomads NGO provides the Environment and Tourism Agency of the aimag and Ministry of Nature, Environment and Tourism with a report about the implementation of the MP and the contract execution.

In 2018, Altai Nomads NGO made three-lateral hunting contract between the head of Environment and nature resource department of MNET, the NGO and following business entities based on the Appendix I and II of A/370 decision by the minister of MET that states quota of the game species for 2018. The hunting completion is 92% /see Table 1/.

The total amount of the payment is 148274320 tugrug (see Appendix 1).

The NGO received donation of 22 million tugrug from 10 foreign hunters and additional budget of 18 million tugrug from international organizations for implementation of the HAMP in 2018 and successfully conducted related activities.

Within the scope of 1st strategy of the Hunting area management plan:

Law enforcement

Awareness activity 1.

"Altai Nomads" NGO successfully organized its annual trade exhibition titled "Бид үндэсний үйлдвэрлэгчид" in cooperation with Citizen representatives' khural and Governor's office of Tsetseg sum, ETA of Khovd aimag, Myangan Ugalzat NP and Pasture users' association of Tsetseg sum on 07 Feb 2017.

Цэцэг суманд 130 орчим иргэнд байгаль орчны хууль тогтоомжийг сурталчилав.

The aim of the event is to support local businesses that increase income generation of locals and to promote opportunities and ways for sustainable livelihood which enhances sustainable usage of nature resources and less risk during economic crisis. 10 local businesses and more than 50 household businessmen participated in the trade with their value-added products while promoting small and medium-scale and household business. During the trade, the organizers awarded the best businesses and businessmen. As the brand product of Tsetseg sum was chosen wooden products of the carpenter Enkhtaivan, the best employer of the year is director Ganzorig (Tsetseehei bakery), the best seller of the trade is Tumennasan (Bayan Ovoo bag). The best packaging award goes to businessman Buyandelger (diary products) and "Sutai tea" tea product receives the award of special product. The NGO gave monetary encouragement (total of 900000 tugrug) and a promise to support one-time product promotion to the best of bests.

Awareness activity 2.

Altai Nomads NGO participated in the organization of cultural day of Most sum organized under the aim to preserve and promote the tangible and intangible cultural heritage of the different ethnic groups. The event was held on 17 October 2018 in the aimag center. The NGO conducted awareness activity about the importance of nature conservation, conservation traditions, wildlife and environmental laws reaching more than 300 adults and children.

Awareness activity 3

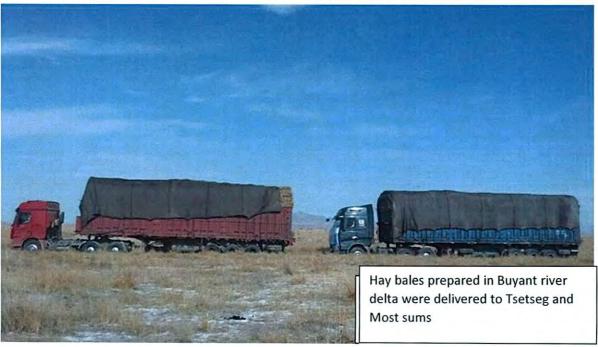

Altai Nomads NGO uses its Facebook page as a main tool to reach public. It shared 18 posts on Law of Rare animals, 25 posts on increasing public proudness of having rare natural resources, more than 80 posts (news, photo, video) on environmental information with its 531

Awareness activity 4

In 2018, summer came late in Altai mountains and there was a drought in many areas including hunting areas. Moreover, temporary thunderstorms and hails influenced negatively on the growth of the pastoral and planted plants, grains and grasses. Having a warning prognose from Food and Agriculture Agency about less hay making opportunity and harsh winter comparing past year, the NGO organized stakeholders' meeting in September, 2018, including sum governors, rangers, representatives of the community groups and ETA and discussed about the preventing measurements. From the meeting the stakeholders decided to support herders of hunting area with hay aid during winter. Then Altai Nomads NGO made a contract with Mr. Batsukh who runs hay making business in Buyant sum of Khovd aimag on purchasing 2000 hay bales for 8 million tugrug. First 1600 bales (1000 for Most sum, 700 for Tsetseg sum and 200 for Duut sum) were purchased and delivered to and kept in the hay storage of Most and Tsetseg sums in October. It will be distributed to the herders during severe period of winter and spring. As the money purchased the hay came from the hunting donation and payment budget, this activity will increase understanding of importance of the wildlife protection and encourage further participation of the locals in the nature conservation.

Although livestock increase threatens wildlife pasture, herders who lose livestock to harsh winter can cause more severe damages to the nature. For instance, when herders lose their income generation to dzud, they start to dig for minerals such as gold and such irresponsible mining damages the pasture and habitat of wildlife irreversibly. Moreover, poaching often increases. Therefore, it is important to enhance co-existence of livestock wildlife husbandry and conservation.

Patrolling

In order to prevent illegal hunting, the NGO supported the anti-trapping campaign "All the animals are happy with the mountains – 4" ("Хавх булаагүй ууланд хамаг амьтан жаргалтай - 4" and cooperated with ETA on revealing and collecting hunting traps, revealing poaching, and increasing public awareness from 15 August to 01 October 2018.

Anti-trapping campaign

Activities	Most sum	Duut sum
Number of monitoring and patrolling days	8 times in 18 days	 8 times in team, 11 times separately in 22 days
Number of revealed environmental crimes	Prevented 6 cases	Revealed 16 crimes
Taken measurements	6 intended citizens were admonished	 4 citizens were fined by the Law on Infringement.
Number of checked objects	Unclear	 21 cars, 34 motorcycle, 53 households
Number of collected traps	• 47 traps	 38 traps
Number of collected fire guns	No	6 guns
Number of people included in awareness campaigns	More than 220 people	More than 100 people

Patrolling activities: Duut sum

Ch.Bayanmunkh, the environmental inspector of Duut sum organized a joint patrolling with police department of the sum.

The environmental inspector (B.Altangerel), ranger E.Altangerel, tax inspector (A.Tuya) and volunteer ranger (Boldbaatar) conducted a joint patrolling.

Patrolling activities: Tsetseg sum

Wolves and snow leopards hunt marmots more, especially in the spring. Therefore, keeping marmot population stable enhances keeping the number of prey species such as argali sheep and ibex.

On 01 March 2018, the volunteer ranger of Tsetseg sum found a bitten by a wolf (injured) argali when he was doing monitoring. Although it was a natural process/phenomenon, he tried to save the animal. He informed related people and called vet. The representatives of hunting camp of Tsetseg sum (T.Myagmarsukh and Ganpurev), the vet of Tsetseg sum (Oyunchimeg) and Dr.Enkh-Amgalan came with medicine and injection to treat the injured animal. However, the argali sheep died because of the severe scar. The corps was disinfected and buried.

Biotechnical measurements

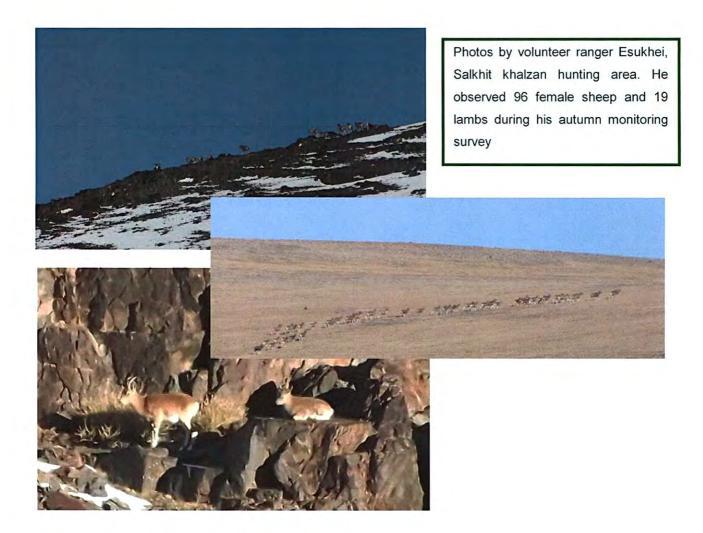

Scientific studies have proved that various minerals including salt contain calcium, natrium and phosphate and play important role in horn and bone development of animals. Therefore, scientists advise to prepare saltlick where species can get necessary minerals. An adult ibex or argali sheep has 7 gr of salt a day and 2.5 kg a year. Approximately 30-40 kg of salty minerals is put in one place for 5-10 animals. When the population number is known it is easy to calculate the necessary amount of salt and to provide the species especially in spring and autumn.

In March 2018, the NGO put 1-ton sea salt and 1 ton of salty march in 6 places ("Нүцгэн", "Цахир хамар", "Балгатай", "Дайргат", "Бага мянганы шил", "Баян-Овооны нуруу") in the territory of Bayan-Ovoo bag of Tsetseg sum. Moreover, in Dec 2018 it purchased salty minerals for 1-2 million tugrug for Tsetseg and Most sum each and stored for the spring.

Within the scope of the 2nd strategy of Hunting Area Management Plan: Establishing research-based sustainable usage Monitoring Volunteer rangers conduct monitoring survey twice a year, in Apr-May and in October, and collects first-phase information. In 2018, the volunteer rangers and the heads of hunting camps did observation on birth rate between May 20 and June 02. They observed 83 female sheep and 74 lambs which shows reproduction of 89.1%. According to the autumn monitoring, there were 268 sheep: 112 male, 112 female, 13 two-year sheep and 29 lambs. From this, it is assumed that 25.8% of the lambs can survive their first winter (25.8% reproduction). These two monitoring surveys didn't aim to identify hunting resource, but detailed survey for hunting purpose is planned for 2019.

The 2017 survey on hunting arrangement of Khovd aimag doesn't offer any new area for hunting in Most and Tsetseg sum territory. It evaluated the current hunting areas by several criteria using matrix method (Table 3). It concluded that two argali sheep can be hunted a year in two areas only – Kharnuud olon khudag and Salhit halzan where there is medium resources with good habitat, water resource and pasture condition.

Nº	Sums	Hunting area	Pasture condition	Water resource	Habitat	Human impact	Hunting resource	Total evaluation

Habitat protection of the game species

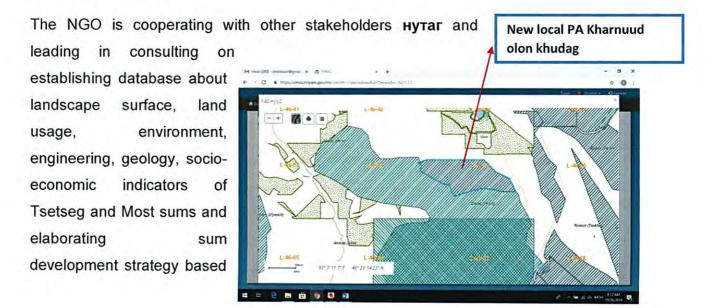

Spreading of infectious diseases, habitat fragmentation and pasture degradation are the most impactful threats on wildlife population. Therefore, prevention of the habitat degradation is more effective and less expensive management comparing to restoration.

The results of the regional ecology evaluation show that it is fully possible to prevent the ecology-important areas and habitat of rare animals from negative impacts of development activities such as mining through taking them under state and local protection. For instance, Khoshoot mining has been functioning in Tsetseg sum area since 2010 and its coal transportation increases road impact on wildlife habitat and its fragmentation.

Therefore, in terms of the prevention of habitat degradation, the NGO jointly organized three-phase activity to take ecology-important areas under local protection in conjunction with 'Khoshoot khogjil' fund, the project titled 'Introducing biodiversity offset to mitigate land degradation and negative impacts of development in Western Mongolia' and governor's offices of the sums.

- Phase I Increasing public knowledge about the issue: organized 2 forums to increase scientific and legal knowledge of the public about importance to take land under protection and to enhance local participation.
- Phase II showing scientific and methodological support in the decision-making process: Altain nuudelchid NGO developed the justification for local protection and prepared related documents based on the ecology evaluation of the region. Moreover, it showed methodological support in decision making process.
- Phase III having locally protected hunting areas registered: As a result of the activities of Phase I and II, the Citizen Representatives Khural of Tsetseg sum decided to take two hunting areas under local protection Kharnuud olon khudag and Khajinga. The NGO had the decision registered in the Cadastre system/Land information system /https://cmcs.mrpam.gov.mn/cmcs/.

Habitat prevention from the negative impacts of development activities on the evaluation of opportunities for sustainable land and nature resource use and land suitability. Currently, the process is in the preparation stage. Field work is done and the data is being elaborated.

Improvement of hunting camp services

The reference 9.1 of Law on Buffer zone of Specially Protected Areas states that businesses running hunting and camping services must have environmental impact assessment done. The NGO supported community groups on this and had EIA of their business done by a professional organization. The EIA was delivered to the administration of the Myangan Ugalzat NP for comments on 05 July 2018. However, their comments are delayed due to the change in the administration level, so that the EIA approving process is stopped.

Activities on reducing number of livestock

There are 3 animal slaughters in Tsetseg sum center that lack hygiene conditions and are in high risk of spreading infectious disease. Therefore, the NGO cooperated with sum governor's office to establish new slaughters where traditional slaughter can be done in a place that enhances requirements of hygiene, sanitary and veterinary.

Activities on improving hunting management policy

The MNET, the Ministry of Agriculture and Hunting Association of Mongolia organized a Community-based wildlife management workshop and a National forum on hunting and fishing on 07-08 December 2018. The head and the manager of Altain nuudelchid NGO and the volunteer rangers of Most sum participated in these activities and presented a presentation on 'CBHM' and 'Ways to improve policy and management of trophy hunting' to the participants of the forum.

Unfulfilled activities

- To have the EIA of the hunting camps approved by related decision-making organizations
- 2. To deliver aid hay bales to herders of Duut sum for winter

Activities for social responsibility

Altai Nomads NGO uses some budget from hunting donation to support local development and social activities. For instance, the NGO showed financial support to activities like 'Selection of best herders of Tsetseg sum' and 'Construction of Ard Ayush park'.

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an Importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the Importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an Importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as of September 27, 1982

It is understood the right to revoke said waiver is continuing. Customs Rules on Discharge of Importers Liability for Duties The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an elternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the Importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires prokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. These amendments are effective as IN WITHESS WHERE OF, the said (Print name) x 14/0 (A) has caused thes (Signature) x 8-13-18 ((Date) x

The U.S. Customs Service has issued a final amendment of the regulations to provide an alternative procedure for an importer record to pay duties on imported merchandise through a licensed customhouse broker. Present rules provide for the payment of duties to Customs by a broker on behalf of the importer. Under the alternative procedure, the importer may elect to submit to the broker a separate check or bank draft for the duties payable to the "U.S. Customs Service". The broker would then deliver the importer's check or bank draft to Customs. The new rule also requires brokers to provide written notification to their clients, advising that if I the client is an importer of record, payment to the broker will not relieve the client of liability for Customs charges in the event that the charges are not paid by the broker. Brokers will be required to provide this notification to all active clients annually during the month of February. Additionally, brokers will be required to provide such information on a power of attorney executed on or after the effective date of the new rule. Report

The statistical results of Pamirian Argali population in 2018.

Introduction

The Marco Polo sheep, Pamir mountain sheep or Pamirian argali (Ovis ammon polii) is one of the subspecies of argali. Their habitat area includes south of Kyrgyz Republic, narrow strip in the west of Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region of Republic of China, small and great Pamir in northeast Afghanistan and small territory in the Northern Pakistan. The main population of Marco Polo sheep's are located in the territory of Republic of Tajikistan, at Pamir Marco Polo sheep is included to the Red Book of Tajikistan (1988, 2015) and in the International Red book MCOII as "endangered "species (VI). Since 1987, Tajikistan has been holding trophy hunting for foreign tourists on the basis of special CEP permits, based on the recommendation of the Academy of Sciences and the interdepartmental commission. The Quota for annual argali shooting according to acting legislation, that approved by the Government of the Republic, currently contains 85 heads. Tajikistan has a special responsibility for preserving this subspecies of wild sheep in the country and since 1990, large-scale surveys of this species have been conducted in the country.

The last large-scale survey of Marco polo sheep and other animal species was carried out at the end of 2009 and according to the expert assessment there were about 24597 individual. Therefore, there was a need for large scale survey that would assess the state of Marco polo sheep population and other kinds of animals, to estimate potential for their further sustainable use and to identify the necessary measures for their preservation

The Committee for Environmental Protection under the Government of the Republic of Tajikistan (CEP) has initiated regular large-scale surveys of wild mammals in Pamir. The executing organization was the Association of Hunters of Tajikistan, which provided the necessary funds for its conduct. Scientists and specialists from different organizations, departments, NGOs and other hunting companies, as well as experts from international organizations took active part in survey (see the list of participants). The statistical accounting was held from 9th till 27th January 2018. After that the data was processed and entered into the database and GIS. This report briefly describes field works and give overview assessment of ungulate mammals in Pamir for further discussion with interested agencies.

Before the beginning of field works a training was conducted and the main tasks of research were identified

1. To get initial data and to obtain reliable information on the state of Marco polo sheep population, Capricorn and other key animal species. This information should form the basis

- for further monitoring of populations and for developing recommendations on sustainable use of wildlife populations.
- 2. Development of modern and other methods of counting the number of argali's population and other animals, including GIS system.
- 3. To identify needs and opportunities for improving the state of wildlife population, primarily such as argali, snow leopard, Siberian ibex and others.
- 4. Among other things, modern statistical survey of CEP and other environmental authorities, scientific institutes, hunting companies, local NGO and international organizations contributed for developing mutual understanding and future interaction between different stakeholders in terms of establishment of "argali museum" and Pamirian scientific center in Murgab District. The statistical survey led to creating further successfully implementation of "Wildlife" law, the Strategy for preserving snow leopard in Tajikistan and obligations under the international convention.

In addition, local hunting guides and drivers with good local knowledge supported the survey.

The organizers and supervisors of statistical recording were: Head of Ecology Department of terrestrial vertebrates in Zoology and Parasitology Institute, Academy of Sciences RT, Ph.D. Muratov R.Sh. and the chairman of Tajikistan Hunters Association, Ph.D. Latifi A.O. This report was prepared by R.Sh. Muratov, and computer processed by Talbonov H.M.

Accounting/Recording Methodology

To get a full statistical data of the entire area of potential habitats of Marco Polo sheep and other species of animals in the Eastern Pamir was impossible due to the difficulties of the local orography, inaccessible areas and hard meteorological conditions. Therefor the main task was to cover as much as possible argali's habitat range at Pamir. Mountain ungulates are concentrated in the lowlands of the Pamir highland in winter and this facilitated the survey conducted and the time chosen for them. The main habitats of Pamirian argali were almost completely covered by groups that made records in planned research areas.

Each group had binoculars (10 or 15 x 42 or 50) and a telescope ("Swarovski" 20 to 60 x 60), GPS and a separate compass, folders with forms and a set of topographic maps with scale of 1: 100,000. Methodology, developed in the CEP by NM Safarov (2011), was chosen for work.

Accounting was conducted both on foot and using transport. Most of observations were made during stops. Each stop during surveying of territory was recorded with the GPS device as an observation point. At least all points with animal's observation were recorded with GPS coordinates, time and duration of animal search. The routes were either fixed directly to the GPS, drawn on maps or reconstructed in GIS using GPS points. The boundaries of surveyed areas were drawn on topographic maps based on GPS points, traffic routes, topography and maximum distance of animal visibility. The areas of the surveyed territories were identified by using GIS.

The standard forms were used to collect information (data) in the field. In form # 1 "Framework conditions", all frame conditions (terrain, time, habitat factors) were recorded, in form # 2 all data of observed group of animals were recorded (distance and direction from observer, number and sex-age composition, behavior).

The data were determined according to the following priorities

- 1. The total number of animals:
- 2. The first location (the direction to the given place from the point and distance according to the most experienced accountant and characteristic of topographic objects, in group IV with the help of a rangefinder);
- 3. The number of males;
- 4. The number of females, yearling (young in the current year) and one-year-olds (youngsters of the previous year);
- 5. The number of males older than 3 years (adult = category II, III and IV) and males 2-3 years (subadult = G category);
- 6. the number of males in the captured age (argali, over 7 years, capricorns over 9 years = category IV).

In case if two different groups surveyed the same places, then animals group that may have been accounted in places, size and composition could be excluded from the data analyze. Totally, about 25,256 sq. Km of surveyed area, which was almost 84.2% area of argali's range. (Sapozhnikov, 1976)

1. Marco Polo sheep

Marco Polo sheep were found almost in all surveyed territories of the Eastern Pamir, only in some surveyed canyons they were not found (around Alicur).

In total, about 26483 individuals of Marco Polo sheep were counted. The density of argali in surveyed areas greatly varied. The GIS analyze showed density up to 35 and in exceptional cases, up to 86 sheep of Marco Polo per km2.

The total average density in surveyed territory was 1.05 sheep of Marco Polo per km2. The highest density of argali was observed in Dzhartigumbez Region, west of Karakul lake and nearby Rangkul lake.

Vakhan	1796	207	207	686	193	310	197	193

The numbers of animal's age-gender composition considered in the table, shows that there is a natural reproduction of Marco Polo sheep population at Pamir.

Generally, in comparison with 2009, the number of argali in the surveyed territory increased by 2,000. The growth rate of Marco polo sheep is slowing down over the years, which suggests that the population is approaching its optimal, stable state.

Siberian mountain ibex

Besides getting statistical data of Pamirian argali the herbs of Siberian ibex were also taken into account. Totally, 4288 individuals were recorded. These figures cannot be objective for assessing the general state of Siberian ibex in Pamir, as the biotopes of ibex and argali are not the same. However, comparing with obtained data in 2009, their number increased by 1000 heads. Table 2 gives information on its gender-age structure for current period.

Ibex	Totally	Subadult	One year old	Female	2-3 male	>3 male	Captured	Indeterminate
	4288	607	692	1261	482	794	327	452

Recommendation: based on the result of statistic, recommended conducting statistical activities once every five years.

Existing current annual government shooting quote for trophy hunting of pamirian argali in an amount of 85 head we recommend to keep also for the next year. With increasing or decreasing amount or argali the quote could be adjusted.

Applicant Name: David E. Staub File number: 02398D

Biologist: Jorge D. Villavicencio Date: October 1, 2018

Species: Ovis ammon polii

Proposed Activity:

David E. Staub of Lakeview, Oregon, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

The Argali sheep is listed as "endangered" or "threatened," depending on the population, under the United States Endangered Species Act, and the importation of Argali sport-hunted trophies is prohibited under this Act. The population of the Republic of Tajikistan is listed as "threatened" with a special rule under Title 50 Code of Federal Regulations section 17.40(j). As a threatened species with a special rule, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is able to issue import permits for personally sport-hunted argali trophies upon receiving from the Tajikistan government properly documented and verifiable certification that:

- i) Argali populations in the Republic of Tajikistan are sufficiently large to sustain sport hunting,
- ii) Regulating authorities have the capacity to obtain sound data on these populations,
- iii) Regulating authorities recognize these populations as a valuable resource and have the legal and practical capacity to manage them as such,
- iv) The habitat of these populations is secure,
- v) Regulating authorities can ensure that the involved trophy has in fact been legally taken from the specified population, and
- vi) Funds derived from the involved sport hunting are applied primarily to argali conservation.

50 CFR 17.32(a) Issuance Criteria

i. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required is adequate to changing the status of the wildlife?

The purpose for which this permit is required is adequate to change the status of

ii. Whether there exists probable direct and indirect effects which issuing the permit would have on the wild populations?

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

Mr. Maskaev, in both the April 19, 2016, and May 22, 2017, e-mails referenced a "major survey" conducted in December 2013 in which he estimated the Argali population to be 25,000 sheep. Mr. Maskaev also referenced a survey conducted by Dr. Raul Valdez, with the Department of Fish, Wildlife and Conservation Ecology at New Mexico State University. The survey was conducted in the southeastern Pamir region of Tajikistan within the Gorno-Badkhshan Autonomous Region during the winters of 2009/2010, 2010/2011, and 2011/2012, and summer surveys during August 2010, 2012, and 2014 (Valdez, et al, 2016).

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

The quota for the 2018 - 2019 hunting season has been set at 85 argali. The quota is based on recommendations of the scientific and environmental authorities. This represents approximately 0.32% of the estimated population of 26,464 sheep. The argali hunting license fee is equivalent to $7,500 (U.S.). The revenue generated from foreign hunters is collected in accordance with article 19 and article 20 of the Environmental Protection Law. The revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

iii. Whether the permit would directly or indirectly conflict with any know program intended to enhance the survival of the population from which the wildlife was removed?

There is no known, direct or indirect, conflict with other programs to enhance the survival of the populations.

iv. Whether the purpose for which the permit is required would be likely to reduce the threat of extinction facing the species of wildlife?

Hunting is an effective conservation management tool of wildlife that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities. The population of argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 head of sheep.

The current quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Argali must be at least seven years old. The average age of a male taken in the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 7.5 years. The age of the oldest animal during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 10 years. The average horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 54 inches. The largest horn size during the 2017 - 2018 hunting season was 67 inches.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

v. Opinions or views of scientists or other persons or organizations having expertise concerning the wildlife.

Argali is listed in the Red Book of the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) in the category of "nearly threatened." Argali is listed as CITES appendix II. The Tajik population of argali is listed as threatened, with a 4(d) rule, under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

IUCN formally recognized the ethical and sustainable use of wildlife as an integral and legitimate component of conservation programs. IUCN has stated that legal, well-regulated trophy hunting programs play an important role in delivering benefits for both wildlife conservation and for the livelihoods and wellbeing of indigenous and local communities living with wildlife.

David Mallon (2013) wrote a report for Traffic entitled "Trophy Hunting of CITES-listed species in Central Asia," concludes that most of the existing operations are commercially based and that relatively few benefits reach local communities. Mallon states that community-based hunting initiatives are in their infancy and have a long way to go before community-based resource management comprises a significant component of trophy hunting in the region. Regardless, 55% of the revenue generated from foreign hunters is distributed to the local fund for nature protection.

Discussion:

This permit is not for the legal take of argali sheep. Take is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. Davis E. Staub has requested a permit to import one personally sport-hunted argali sheep trophy. The specimen is to be taken from the wild. The Republic of Tajikistan has confirmed that Davis E. Staub is authorized and will hunt in the argali sheep population Tajikistan.

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey the Tajiks estimate the argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over last year's estimate. The quota of 85 sheep is allocated by a commission with participation of representatives of the official scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations.

Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of the estimated 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the population. This amount of take appears to be sustainable.

The Republic of Tajikistan appears to have a governance structure that clearly allocates management responsibilities; accounts for revenues in a transparent manner and distributes net revenues to conservation and community beneficiaries according to properly agreed decisions; takes all necessary steps to eliminate corruption; and ensures compliance with all relevant national and international requirements and regulations by relevant bodies such as administrators, regulators and hunters.

Hunting is an effective wildlife conservation management tool that can provide a significant source of revenue for both the management of argali and local communities.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps is the primary source of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. The fees from trophy sport-hunting programs are a major source of revenue for population surveys, conservation efforts, and resource management.

The Tajiks state that revenue is "directed to protect and improve the environment, restore losses in the natural environment and to compensate for its damage." The money generated is distributed in accordance with the State Resources Law with 20% going to the State Environmental Fund, 25% to the regional environmental Protection fund, and 55% to the local conservation fund.

Applicant: David E. Staub

Application Number: 02398D

David E. Staub of Lakeview, Oregon, has submitted an application for a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit to import one personally sport-hunted Ovis ammon polii, argali sheep trophy taken in the Pamir Mountains of the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region, Republic of Tajikistan during the 2018 – 2019 hunting season.

I. Listed species and critical habitat (if any) potentially affected:

Argali (Ovis ammon polii) within the Republic of Tajikistan

General Argali background

Argali live over a vast geographic range, but are broken into separated populations, some of which are morphologically identifiable (IUCN 2008). How much of the taxon's broken distribution is natural and how much is the result of anthropogenic influence is uncertain (IUCN 2008). Likewise, how and whether various populations should be classified to the subspecies level is controversial (IUCN 2008).

Wilson and Reeder (2005) and Fedosenko and Blank (2005) recognize nine subspecies: O.a. ammon, O.a. collium, O.a. comosa (= jubata), O. a. darwini, O.a. hodgsoni, O.a. karelini, O.a. nigrimontana, O.a.polii, and O.a. severizovi (IUCN 2008)

Distribution

Argali are present through most of the eastern third of Tajikistan (Luschekina 1994, Weinberg et al. 1997, Schaller and Kang 2008), from the border with Xinjiang, China west to Langar in the south and Sarez Lake in the north (quoted in IUCN 2008). Authors agree that all Argali in Tajikistan are O. a. polii (IUCN 2008)

Population Status

A survey was conducted in January of 2018, in the Pamir Mountains of the Gomo-Badakhshan region. Based on the results of this survey, the Tajiks estimate the Argali population in Tajikistan to be 26,464 head. This number is an increase of 1,796 head over December 2015 – March 2016 survey. The Tajiks believe the census shows that the population is stable. They speculate the increase is due to fewer livestock in the Argali habitats.

Abdulkodirkhon Maskaev, Head of the Department for the Protection of Animal and Flora Committee on Environmental Protection under the Republic of Tajikistan, stated in his letter of May 22, 2017, to the Division of Management Authority, that the population of Argali in Tajikistan showed a positive dynamic and stable development of the Pamir Argali population. He stated that a survey was conducted by his committee, the Institute of Zoology and Parasitology, and hunting companies, from the end of December 2015 until the end of March 2016 on the Pamir Argali population on the private hunting concessions on the area of nine private hunting concessions (Murgab, Bomi Jahon, Badahshan, Vostok, Bars, Vahan, Nuri Kuhiston, Sayohat, and Istiklol) using off-road vehicles. The results of this survey showed 24,668 Argali over an area encompassing approximately 1,484,000 hectares.

Mr. Maskaev, in both the April 19, 2016, and May 22, 2017, e-mails referenced a "major survey" conducted in December 2013 in which he estimated the Argali population to be 25,000 sheep. Mr. Maskaev also referenced a survey conducted by Dr. Raul Valdez, with the Department of Fish, Wildlife and Conservation Ecology at New Mexico State University. The survey was conducted in the southeastern Pamir region of Tajikistan within the Gorno-Badkhshan Autonomous Region during the winters of 2009/2010, 2010/2011, and 2011/2012, and summer surveys during August 2010, 2012, and 2014 (Valdez, et al, 2016).

A total of 8649, 8392, and 7663 sheep were observed in each winter survey with densities of 5.42, 4.91, and 4.49 Argali/km2, respectively. He stated that the differences in numbers observed in different years were probably due to principally differing dates of surveys among years. The high ratios of lamb for every 100 ewe (53, 38, and 49 during the winter surveys, and 60, 45, and 58 during the summer surveys) and high percentages (45% - 50%) of mature females during winter indicate that offspring recruitment is sufficient to maintain a stable population. (Maskaev quoting Valdez, et al, 2016).

In 2009 a census recorded 23,711 Argali in the eastern Pamir (Michel & Muratov, 2010; cited in Mallon 2013). This survey did not include the Zorkel State Nature Reserve (870 km2) which was inaccessible due to snow. Argali might not have been present there at that time due to the conditions. Reserve staff and hunting concession staff state that Argali make large scale unpredictable movements in winter in response to the extent and depth of snow cover.

Conservation Actions

Argali were listed in Appendix II of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) as of July 1, 1975. However, the Tibetan Argali (0. a. hodgsonii) and Kara Tau Argali (0. a. nigrimontana) are listed on Appendix I of CITES.

Effective January 1, 1993, Argali populations throughout the species' range except the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as endangered under the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Also effective January 1, 1993, the populations in the Kyrgyz Republic, Republic of Tajikistan, and the Republic of Mongolia were classified as threatened with a special rule allowing the import of sport-hunted trophies of Argali from those countries if the Service was able to make the appropriate findings and issue an import permit pursuant to provisions of the ESA.

Argali were previously listed as Indeterminate in 1988, and Vulnerable in 1996 on the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species. On June 30, 2008, Argali were assessed by R. B. Harris and R. Reading as Near Threatened because this species was believed to be in significant decline (but probably at a rate of less than 30% over three generations, taken at 24 years) due to poaching and competition with livestock, making the species close to qualifying for Vulnerable (IUCN 2008).

II. Geographic area where action will occur:

The Argali Hunting season begins on September 1st and ends on March 1st of each year. Sport-hunted trophies for the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season will be taken in eleven designated hunting zones. Management of trophy hunting on Argali was transferred in the early 1990s to private concessions (Mallon 2013). These concessions and their regional location within the Gorno-Badakhshan Autonomous Region (GBAO) are:

- 1. Murgab LLC, Murgab District
- 2. Bomi Jahon LLC, Murgab District
- 3. Isitklol-2015 LLC, Murgab District

III.Description of the proposed action:

The issuance of a Federal Fish and Wildlife permit authorizing the importation of one personally sport-hunted Argali trophy, taken during the Republic of Tajikistan 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season by David E. Staub.

IV. Determination of effects:

A. Explanation of effects of the action on species and critical habitat on item I:

This permit is not for the legal take of Argali sheep. The authorization to hunt and lawfully take an animal is under the purview of the Republic of Tajikistan. This permit is for the importation of one lawfully taken sport-hunted trophy.

The population of Argali is seen as being stable at around 26,464 animals. The quota set for the 2018 – 2019 hunting season is 85 Argali. The quota is set by a commission with participation of representatives of scientific bodies and environmental non-governmental organizations. Wegge (1997) and Harris (1993) recommend a sustainable take of 2% of the population. Two percent take of a 26,464 population is 529 sheep. Eighty-five sheep represents 0.32% of the current estimated population.

The sale of hunting licenses, tags, and stamps are the primary sources of funding for most governmental wildlife conservation efforts. Sport-hunting can create financial incentives to promote, protect, and retain wildlife as a sustainable resource and use of land. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of July 26, 2016, stated that. "[t]he total income only from license fees" for the 2015 – 2016 Argali season was 3,198,000 TJ Somoni. This equals $ 406,430 (U.S.) at today's conversion rate (www.xe.com/currency/tjs-tajikistani-somoni, August 24, 2016). While requested, revenue generated during the 2016 – 2017 Argali hunting season was not provided by the Tajik authorities. Mr. Maskaev's e-mail of August 14, 2018, stated that the total revenue generated through hunting Argali from September 1, 2017 to March 1, 2018, was $ 425,000 (U.S.).

Mr. Maskaev stated in his May 5, 2018, letter to the Division of Management Authority that pursuant to Article 19 and 20 of the Environmental Protection Law, revenue generated from Argali trophy hunting is distributed in the following manner:

- 20% of the State Environmental Fund,
- 25% of the regional Environmental Protection Fund, and
- 55% of the local conservation fund.

This is a non-native species. There is no critical habitat designated.

B. Explanation of actions to be implemented to reduce adverse effects:

We will limit the number of permits to be issued to no more than 85 trophies for the 2018 – 2019 Argali hunting season.

Report

The statistical results of Pamirian Argali population in 2018.

Introduction

The Marco Polo sheep, Pamir mountain sheep or Pamirian argali (Ovis ammon polii) is one of the subspecies of argali. Their habitat area includes south of Kyrgyz Republic, narrow strip in the west of Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region of Republic of China, small and great Pamir in northeast Afghanistan and small territory in the Northern Pakistan. The main population of Marco Polo sheep's are located in the territory of Republic of Tajikistan, at Pamir Marco Polo sheep is included to the Red Book of Tajikistan (1988, 2015) and in the International Red book MCOII as "endangered "species (VI). Since 1987, Tajikistan has been holding trophy hunting for foreign tourists on the basis of special CEP permits, based on the recommendation of the Academy of Sciences and the interdepartmental commission. The Quota for annual argali shooting according to acting legislation, that approved by the Government of the Republic, currently contains 85 heads. Tajikistan has a special responsibility for preserving this subspecies of wild sheep in the country and since 1990, large-scale surveys of this species have been conducted in the country.

The last large-scale survey of Marco polo sheep and other animal species was carried out at the end of 2009 and according to the expert assessment there were about 24597 individual. Therefore, there was a need for large scale survey that would assess the state of Marco polo sheep population and other kinds of animals, to estimate potential for their further sustainable use and to identify the necessary measures for their preservation

The Committee for Environmental Protection under the Government of the Republic of Tajikistan (CEP) has initiated regular large-scale surveys of wild mammals in Pamir. The executing organization was the Association of Hunters of Tajikistan, which provided the necessary funds for its conduct. Scientists and specialists from different organizations, departments, NGOs and other hunting companies, as well as experts from international organizations took active part in survey (see the list of participants). The statistical accounting was held from 9th till 27th January 2018. After that the data was processed and entered into the database and GIS. This report briefly describes field works and give overview assessment of ungulate mammals in Pamir for further discussion with interested agencies.

Before the beginning of field works a training was conducted and the main tasks of research were identified

- To get initial data and to obtain reliable information on the state of Marco polo sheep population, Capricorn and other key animal species. This information should form the basis for further monitoring of populations and for developing recommendations on sustainable use of wildlife populations.
- 2. Development of modern and other methods of counting the number of argali's population and other animals, including GIS system.

- 3. To identify needs and opportunities for improving the state of wildlife population, primarily such as argali, snow leopard, Siberian ibex and others.
- 4. Among other things, modern statistical survey of CEP and other environmental authorities, scientific institutes, hunting companies, local NGO and international organizations contributed for developing mutual understanding and future interaction between different stakeholders in terms of establishment of "argali museum" and Pamirian scientific center in Murgab District. The statistical survey led to creating further successfully implementation of "Wildlife" law, the Strategy for preserving snow leopard in Tajikistan and obligations under the international convention.

This report was prepared by R.Sh. Muratov, and computer processed by Talbonov H.M.

Accounting/Recording Methodology

To get a full statistical data of the entire area of potential habitats of Marco Polo sheep and other species of animals in the Eastern Pamir was impossible due to the difficulties of the local orography, inaccessible areas and hard meteorological conditions. Therefor the main task was to cover as much as possible argali's habitat range at Pamir. Mountain ungulates are concentrated in the lowlands of the Pamir highland in winter and this facilitated the survey conducted and the time chosen for them. The main habitats of Pamirian argali were almost completely covered by groups that made records in planned research areas.

Each group had binoculars (10 or 15 x 42 or 50) and a telescope ("Swarovski" 20 to 60 x 60), GPS and a separate compass, folders with forms and a set of topographic maps with scale of 1: 100,000. Methodology, developed in the CEP by NM Safarov (2011), was chosen for work.

Accounting was conducted both on foot and using transport. Most of observations were made during stops. Each stop during surveying of territory was recorded with the GPS device as an observation point. At least all points with animal's observation were recorded with GPS coordinates, time and duration of animal search. The routes were either fixed directly to the GPS, drawn on maps or reconstructed in GIS using GPS points. The boundaries of surveyed areas were drawn on topographic maps based on GPS points, traffic routes, topography and maximum distance of animal visibility. The areas of the surveyed territories were identified by using GIS.

The standard forms were used to collect information (data) in the field. In form # 1 "Framework conditions", all frame conditions (terrain, time, habitat factors) were recorded, in form # 2 all data of observed group of animals were recorded (distance and direction from observer, number and sex-age composition, behavior).

The data were determined according to the following priorities

- 1. The total number of animals:
- 2. The first location (the direction to the given place from the point and distance according to the most experienced accountant and characteristic of topographic objects, in group IV with the help of a rangefinder);
- 3. The number of males;
- 4. The number of females, yearling (young in the current year) and one-year-olds (youngsters of the previous year);
- 5. The number of males older than 3 years (adult = category II, III and IV) and males 2-3 years (subadult = G category);
- 6. the number of males in the captured age (argali, over 7 years, capricorns over 9 years = category IV).

In case if two different groups surveyed the same places, then animals group that may have been accounted in places, size and composition could be excluded from the data analyze. Totally, about 25,256 sq. Km of surveyed area, which was almost 84.2% area of argali's range. (Sapozhnikov, 1976)

4.1 Marco Polo sheep

Marco Polo sheep were found almost in all surveyed territories of the Eastern Pamir, only in some surveyed canyons they were not found (around Alicur).

In total, about 26483 individuals of Marco Polo sheep were counted. The density of argali in surveyed areas greatly varied. The GIS analyze showed density up to 35 and in exceptional cases, up to 86 sheep of Marco Polo per km2.

The total average density in surveyed territory was 1.05 sheep of Marco Polo per km2. The highest density of argali was observed in Dzhartigumbez Region, west of Karakul lake and nearby Rangkul lake.

The numbers of animal's age-gender composition considered in the table, shows that there is a natural reproduction of Marco Polo sheep population at Pamir.

Generally, in comparison with 2009, the number of argali in the surveyed territory increased by 2,000. The growth rate of Marco polo sheep is slowing down over the years, which suggests that the population is approaching its optimal, stable state.

Siberian mountain ibex

Besides getting statistical data of Pamirian argali the herbs of Siberian ibex were also taken into account. Totally, 4288 individuals were recorded. These figures cannot be objective for assessing the general state of Siberian ibex in Pamir, as the biotopes of ibex and argali are not the same. However, comparing with obtained data in 2009, their number increased by 1000 heads. Table 2 gives information on its gender-age structure for current period.

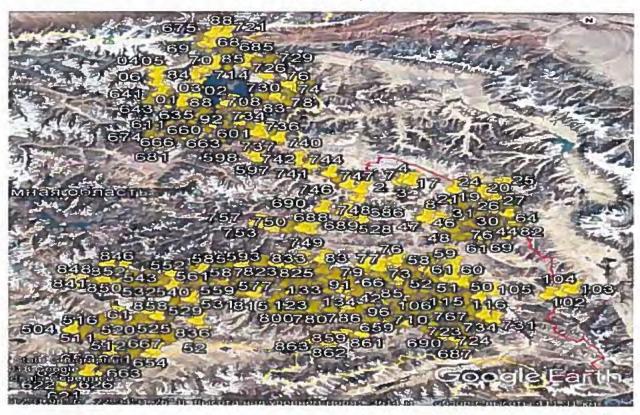

Ibex	Totally	Subadult	One	Female	2-3 male	>3	Captured	Indeterminate

Recommendation: based on the result of statistic, recommended conducting statistical activities once every five years.

Existing current annual government shooting quote for trophy hunting of pamirian argali in an amount of 85 head we recommend to keep also for the next year. With increasing or decreasing amount or argali the quote could be adjusted.
