The document is attached for each of us to use on our own (as I wrote in Teams chat):

Hi everyone. It seems we are super stuck and have to go back to the old way of editing because OneDrive is basically not usable for us. So, I am going to scan Fris's comments and email them out to you all. You already have Kerry's edits and comments. Now, each person is responsible for taking their section and working offline to add Fris's edits and address his comments. Each person is also responsible for adding Kerry's edits and addressing her comments in their section. We will then compile these sections into one document at the end. Not ideal, but we can't come up with another option.
