Hi Kate,

This is a just an FYI (see Paul's email below). I expect (based on my conversation today with Angela Picco) legacy R8 will be sending an email asking for our concurrence shortly.

Sue,

I read through this doc as well as the draft response to comments. I have no significant comments to make. I know we were instructed to not do minor edits and typo corrections, so I don't have a track changes version either.

I found the overall rationale for both the not-warranted NCSO and the warranted SSN DPSs to be compelling, well-written, and persuasive. This is especially impressive given the late date you had to put together the write-up and deal with last minute input. Thank you, Sue, for your efforts on this, and please pass on my appreciation for the rest of the small fisher group.

thanks,

paul

If you want to prioritize your review, I suggest the DPS analysis (rationale for changing from the 2019 rule and splitting into

2 DPS), and the NCSO (Northern California Southern Oregon) analysis section, which is the individual DPS that includes Oregon.

Within NCSO, might want to focus on the population description/condition section, toxicants, wildfire, and small population size, as those were the issues raised in the last court case.

Jesse, I forgot to have them include Marilet on the email.

I am in a Survey and Manage red tree vole meeting with the Forest Service on Wednesday and Thursday all day, but otherwise available for questions.

Subject: Fisher final rule for your expedited review

Hello all,

Attached is the fisher final rule for your review. Please note that this document does not yet include the Responses to Comments section; our small team is working on that section next, and we hope to get it to you next week (~March 4) . Under this expedited timeline, we have a single week to both complete your review and address your comments. Because of this, our small team will be responding to your concerns in real time next week (March 2-6). The document is due to Gary on March 9. Please do a big picture review of this document and leave out the small editorial issues at this point. If you are able to call me or a member of our small team to discuss any issues that come up during your big picture review, that would be best. We are not looking for track changes documents from each reviewer or even each office because we are focusing on this big picture review at this point. Sorry for the remaining highlighted sections and edits; we ran into issues with Microsoft and the document today (this is also why you are getting a pdf).

Thank you for your help and willingness to review this document in this short amount of time. Please let me or any member of our small team know if you have any questions.

Thanks again!

Angela
