And don't forget to add the citation to the references cited document.

Yes. I'll put the map in the references cited folder. Maybe I'll clean it up so it has a better legend if there's time. Think Service 2020 works?

Works for me. So to make sure I'm clear, the Service 2020 citation is that revised map, correct? If so, I will go back and reject my edits.

My intention was to put the map into the lit cited. Thoughts?

So was "Service 2020" referring to the map? I assumed it was the write-up I was going to do regarding the range contraction argument, which we decided to put back into the rule. If it is something else, I'm fine with that. Just need to provide a citation and put the document into the references folder on OneDrive.

Although the map in the 2016 doesn't show the new locations since.

Seems like the 2020 map would be better.

I'm presuming you were the one who responded to comment 36 regarding range expansion. You had referenced the Service 2020 memo but I'm replacing it with Service 2016, p. 34/Fig 7 (range map of reliable sightings since 1993).
