

Your Input is Needed!

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service looks forward to engaging with you, because we need you, and America's red wolf needs you too!

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is hosting in-person and virtual public informational meetings to provide information on the Red Wolf Recovery Program.

U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service

Join us to meet the Service's Red Wolf Team, learn more about the Red Wolf Recovery Program, and engage with us directly with your questions! Both meetings will feature a presentation by Service staff, followed by question-and-answer sessions. Questions may be submitted in advance at redwolf@fws.gov, online during the registration process for the virtual meeting and live at the in-person meeting. When submitting questions to the redwolf@fws.gov email address, please note in the subject line whether the questions are for the in-person or virtual meeting.

In-Person Meeting

Date: Tuesday, October 4, 2022

Time: 6-8:30 pm EST

Location: 4-H Center, 100 N Clover Way, Columbia, NC

Directions: <https://eastern4hcenter.org/directions.aspx>

Virtual Meeting

Date: Wednesday, October 5, 2022

Time: 6-8:00 pm EST

Registration Information: <https://www.fws.gov/project/red-wolf-recovery-program>

Still have questions after our meetings? Here's how you can reach us!

Contact Information

Emily Weller, Red Wolf Recovery Program Coordinator
emily_weller@fws.gov

Joe Madison, North Carolina Program Manager
Red Wolf Recovery Program
joseph_madison@fws.gov

Luke Lories, Private Lands Biologist and Prey for the Pack at 252-256-3676 or luke_lories@fws.gov

Additional Contact Information:

1-855-4WOLVES (496-5837) or redwolf@fws.gov

Credit: Woody Sandy