INDICTMENT

The Grand Jury for the Middle District of Alabama charges:

INTRODUCTION

At all times relevant to the Indictment, unless otherwise indicated:

1. Defendant VALINOR TRADING CC ("VALINOR") was a company incorporated in South Africa, doing business as OUT OF AFRICA ADVENTUROUS SAFARIS ("OUT OF AFRICA") in South Africa and in the United States. OUT OF AFRICA was owned and controlled by defendants DAWIE GRONEWALD and JANNEMAN GROENEWALD. Through their operation of OUT OF AFRICA, the defendants provided guided hunting services on a ranch located in Mussina, Limpopo Province, South Africa, which the defendants co-owned with American investors. OUT OF AFRICA maintained a business and mailing address, bank account, business records, telephone number, and email address in Autauga County in the Middle District of Alabama.

2. Defendant DAWIE GROENEWALD (“D. GROENEWALD”), a South African national, lived and did business in Mussina, Limpopo Province, South Africa, where he was the co-owner of OUT OF AFRICA and managed the corporation’s day-to-day operations, including supervising and employing Professional Hunters to guide foreign hunters in South Africa and other countries in Africa.

3. Defendant JANNEMAN GROENEWALD (“J. GROENEWALD”), the brother of D. GROENEWALD and a South African national, lived in Autauga County, Alabama, and was a licensed Professional Hunter and co-owner of OUT OF AFRICA. J. GROENEWALD represented OUT OF AFRICA in the United States where he solicited and sold OUT OF AFRICA’s hunting and guiding services from his home and office in Autauga County, Alabama. J. GROENEWALD received payments from American hunters, deposited the funds in OUT OF AFRICA’s bank accounts in Alabama, and transferred business proceeds to OUT OF AFRICA’s bank accounts in South Africa.

4. Beginning in at least 2005 and continuing through at least January 2010, agents and employees of OUT OF AFRICA, including defendants D. GROENEWALD and J. GROENEWALD, traveled throughout the United States for the purpose of selling hunting and guiding services in Africa, including rhinoceros hunts, to American hunters.

5. The defendants and their agents and employees marketed and sold their services to American hunters primarily by attending large conventions or trade shows sponsored by various hunting organizations, including Safari Club International (SCI), an international hunting club headquartered in Tucson, Arizona, with over 50,000 members.

LEGAL BACKGROUND

The Lacey Act

6. The Lacey Act, among other things, makes it unlawful for a person to sell or purchase any fish or wildlife, including rhinoceros, and including parts thereof, taken, possessed, transported or sold in violation of or in a manner unlawful under a law or regulation of the United States or foreign law. 16 U.S.C. § 3372(a)(1). A sale of wildlife includes providing guiding and outfitting services. 16 U.S.C. § 3372(c)(1).

7. In order to protect certain species of fish and wildlife against over-exploitation, the United States became a signatory to an international treaty known as the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora, T.I.A.S. 8249, (hereinafter "CITES"). Species protected under CITES are listed in a series of appendices—Appendix I, Appendix II and Appendix III. The South Africa population of the White Rhinoceros was listed within Appendix II of CITES. Appendix II includes wildlife species that, although not necessarily threatened with extinction now, may become so unless trade in specimens of such species is strictly regulated. CITES, Art. II, § 2(a).

8. Rhinoceros are indigenous to Southern Africa, including the country of South Africa. Rhinoceros are herbivores with no natural predators. Rhinoceros horn is prized in certain cultures for its alleged medicinal or ornamental value. The international demand for rhinoceros horn, illegal hunting and poaching of protected rhinoceros in South Africa, and non-compliance with the requirements of CITES constitutes a major threat to the survival of the species. Rhinoceros horn trades on the black market at prices higher than gold.

9. Commercial big-game hunting in South Africa by foreign clients is highly profitable and heavily regulated. American hunters are often solicited in the United States by professional South African outfitters who advertise their services at large regional sportsmen's shows. Clients normally book hunting trips, costing tens of thousands of dollars to hundreds of thousands of dollars, during which they are guided by licensed "Professional Hunters," to hunt different species of plains game (duiker, kudu, bushbuck, etc.) and one or more of the "Big Five" (lion, elephant, rhinoceros, cape buffalo and leopard).

South African Wildlife Law

10. South Africa regulates the hunting and taking of wild animals, including rhinoceros. Among those laws are the following specific provisions:

a. South Africa's National Environmental Management: Biodiversity Act, Act 10 of 2004, as amended, (hereinafter "NEMBA") came into operation in 2004. The purpose was, among other things, to provide for the management and conservation of South Africa's biodiversity and to protect species and ecosystems that warrant national protection, and ensure the sustainable use of indigenous biological resources.

b. Section 1 of NEMBA defines restricted activities involving threatened or protected species such as rhinoceros. The restricted activities include but are not limited to: hunting or killing any threatened or protected species; buying, selling, acquiring, or otherwise trading in any specimen of threatened or protected species; picking parts off, or cutting, chopping off or destroying any specimen of a listed threatened or protected species; possessing or exercising physical control over any specimen of a listed threatened or protected species; or exporting any specimen of a listed threatened or protected species. Section 57(1) of NEMBA prohibits any person from carrying out a restricted activity involving a specimen of a listed threatened or protected species without a permit issued under Chapter 7 of the Act. Permits may be issued with or without conditions and may be refused entirely pursuant to Section 88 of NEMBA. A Permit issued pursuant to NEMBA must specify the purpose for which it is issued. Section 97(1) of NEMBA authorizes the South African Minister of Environmental Affairs and Tourism (“Minister”) to make regulations relating to restricted activities involving a listed threatened or protected species. Pursuant to that authority, on February 23, 2007, the Minister issued Regulation 152 of Government Gazette 29657, which further restricted activities involving both the White Rhinoceros and Black Rhinoceros and the availability of permits to hunt the animals. These regulations are commonly referred to as the “TOPS” regulations.

c. Provincial governments in South Africa, including the Limpopo Province, were authorized to issue permits in compliance with NEMBA. The Limpopo Environmental Management Act, Act 7 of 2003 (hereinafter “LEMA”) came into operation in 2004. The objectives of LEMA were to, among other things, manage and protect the environment in the Limpopo Province, secure ecologically sustainable development and responsible use of natural resources, and give effect to international agreements impacting environmental management which are binding on the Province. LEMA provides that it was to be interpreted and applied in accordance with NEMBA.

(Conspiracy)

The factual allegations contained in paragraphs 1-10 are realleged and incorporated by reference into Count 1 of this Indictment as if fully set forth herein.

Beginning at an exact date unknown, but including from in or about 2005 and continuing through in or about September 2010, within Autauga County, Alabama, in the Middle District of Alabama, in South Africa and elsewhere, defendants,

DAWIE JACOBUS GROENEWALD, JANNEMAN GEORGE GROENEWALD, and VALINOR TRADING CC, d/b/a OUT OF AFRICA ADVENTUROUS SAFARIS,

and other persons known and unknown to the Grand Jury did willfully and knowingly combine, conspire, confederate and agree to violate the laws of the United States, including laws protecting wildlife, prohibiting fraud by mail, and prohibiting money laundering, namely:

a. Wildlife Crime: to knowingly sell, in interstate and foreign commerce wildlife, namely, rhinoceros, taken, possessed, transported and sold in violation of foreign law by offering for sale and providing to American hunters guiding, outfitting, and other services for the illegal taking, acquiring, receiving, transporting and possessing of such rhinoceros in South Africa in violation of the laws of the Republic of South Africa, all in violation of the Lacey Act, Title 16, United States Code, Sections 3372(a), (c) and 3373(d)(1).

b. Mail Fraud: to devise and intend to devise a scheme and artifice to defraud and for obtaining money and property by means of materially false and fraudulent pretenses, representations, and promises and to execute that scheme and artifice through the use of the United States Mail, contrary to Title 18, United States Code, Section 1343, and

c. Money Laundering: to transport, transmit, and transfer, and attempt to transport, transmit, and transfer a monetary instrument or funds from a place in the United States to and through a place outside the United States and to a place in the United States from and through a place outside the United States with the intent to promote the carrying on of a specified unlawful activity.

Manner and Means

The following manner and means were used, among others, by the defendants, to effectuate the conspiracy:

a. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants traveled to and throughout the United States where they donated hunts for auction, offered hunts for sale, and sold hunts, guiding services and accommodations to American hunters for hunts of wild animals, including rhinoceros, to be conducted in South Africa and elsewhere.

b. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants advertised and promoted hunting, guiding and outfitting services, including rhinoceros hunts, by publishing and distributing in the United States and on the internet and through annual and semi-annual "Safari Brochures" photographs showing American hunters posing with the animals that they had killed, including rhinoceros, and by attending hunting conventions and gun shows in the United States where the brochures were distributed.

c. It was part of the conspiracy that in addition to offering the opportunity to hunt and kill rhinoceros in South Africa, the defendants also offered American hunters an opportunity to conduct "green" hunts or "dart" hunts of rhinoceros, which afforded the hunter the opportunity to shoot a rhinoceros with a tranquilizer gun and then take a photograph with the animal while it was sedated.

d. It was part of the conspiracy that defendant J. GROENEWALD solicited and received payments and deposits in the Middle District of Alabama from American hunters located in other states for hunting and guiding services provided by the defendants in South Africa.

e. It was part of the conspiracy that defendant J. GROENEWALD maintained and used bank accounts in Autauga County, Alabama, and elsewhere to deposit funds received from American hunters in the United States, and to transfer, withdraw and accept funds, including wire transfers, to and from defendants D. GROENEWALD and OUT OF AFRICA at bank accounts located in South Africa in payment for the hunting and guiding services.

f. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants hired and used Professional Hunters to guide and outfit American hunters who traveled to South Africa to conduct their hunts.

g. It was part of the conspiracy that once the hunts were booked, American hunters were offered additional services, including rhinoceros hunts, from the defendants and the Professional Hunters operating at the instruction of the defendants for additional fees.

h. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants sold rhinoceros hunts to American hunters after representing that the particular animal to be hunted was a “problem” or a “nuisance” or “mean.”

i. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants represented to American hunters that because the rhinoceros killed or darted was a “problem” or “nuisance” animal, it could not be exported as a trophy but the hunters could take measurements of the rhinoceros horn, and take photographs and videos of the hunt and of themselves posed with the dead animal.

j. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants paid videographers to film rhinoceros hunts sold to American hunters.

k. It was part of the conspiracy that the Professional Hunters supervised and employed by the defendants assisted American hunters in killing and capturing rhinoceros.

l. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants did not obtain permits from either the Limpopo Provincial Government or the Republic of South Africa for American hunters to hunt and kill rhinoceros in South Africa.

m. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants concealed and did not disclose to American hunters that the rhinoceros hunts were not permitted and were being conducted in violation of South African law.

n. It was part of the conspiracy that defendant D. GROENEWALD and agents and employees of OUT OF AFRICA cut the horns off of rhinoceros with knives and chainsaws after the rhinoceros had been killed by American hunters.

o. It was part of the conspiracy that defendant D. GROENEWALD solicited and received payment for rhinoceros hunts from American hunters while they were at OUT OF AFRICA's hunting camp in South Africa.

p. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants trafficked and sold rhinoceros horns that had been cut off of rhinoceros that were killed by hunters from the United States and elsewhere.

q. It was part of the conspiracy that the defendants transferred in interstate and foreign commerce funds derived from the business activities of OUT OF AFRICA, including transfers of funds between bank accounts maintained by the defendants in the Middle District of Alabama and South Africa.
