

First Sunday at the Refuge

~ ~ ~

October 4, 2015

2:00 p.m.

Barred Owl Room

St. Marks National Wildlife Refuge

1255 Lighthouse Road

St. Marks, FL 32355

850-925-6121 http://www.fws.gov/refuge/st_marks/

Sex in the Sitta – the Intriguing Life of the Brown-headed Nuthatch - with Jim Cox

The Brown-headed Nuthatch is one of a number of declining bird species found only in southern pinelands. The treetop antics and rubber ducky squeaks of these inquisitive birds make them a favorite of bird watchers and outdoor enthusiasts, but nuthatches also exhibit a number of intriguing behaviors that excite those who study animal behavior.

Photo by Tara Tanaka

