National Wildlife Refuge Hunting and Fishing Regulations 2021–2022

Welcome

At approximately 22,000 acres, Horicon National Wildlife Refuge makes up the northern two thirds of the Horicon Marsh and was established for the protection of migratory birds. The 33,000 acre Horicon Marsh is divided into the Horicon National Wildlife Refuge (U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service) and the Horicon Marsh State Wildlife Area (Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources). The two areas have different hunting regulations and season dates. You are responsible for knowing the boundaries and abiding by the regulations. Make sure to check zones and acquire the proper tags for the areas you will be hunting. For more information visit Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources hunt page <https://dnr.wi.gov/topic/hunt/>.
