Supporting social/emotional development
through nature experiences

Saturday, September 27, 2014
8:30 AM—3:30 PM

University Center, The University of Wisconsin—River Falls

Nurture though Nature: Key concepts in children's social-emotional development

Our keynote speaker, Dr. Carol Siegel, is a licensed clinical psychologist who helps parents and educators guide children in coping with developmental challenges.

Dr. Siegel will help us focus on important characteristics of social/emotional development in young children. With this knowledge, we will identify and participate in some exciting nature activities that will help us support affective development in young children. These hands-on experiences for ages 2–8 will be facilitated by faculty from WITC and UWRF inspired by Claire Warden's forest school pedagogy. During the morning session participants will participate in two of the following workshops:

- Awareness of Risks: Inside, Outside and Beyond
- Infant and Toddler: Toddling into Nature
- Natural Creativity and Inquiry

Our afternoon session on Growing up Wild will be facilitated by naturalists from the Minnesota Valley National Wildlife Refuge and Minnesota Project Wild.

Books on Nature and Social/Emotional Development provided by Book Look, Stevens Point for purchase on the day.

Dress comfortably for our active journey; morning tea/coffee and lunch included!

Also save October 18, 2014 for Extend the Knowledge: Early Childhood Education Conference at WITC, New Richmond.
