

First Sunday at the Refuge

Winter 2018 ~ 2:00 p.m. ~ Barred Owl Room

April 1

— The Red-cockaded Woodpecker with Chuck Hess

Chuck Hess is a retired biologist who spent many moments up a pine tree in close contact with this diminutive woodpecker and had ample opportunity to observe and reflect on the longleaf pine habitat. After earning his PhD from FSU, he ran and won a seat on the Wakulla County Board of Commissioners.

May 6

Farming and Processing Oysters in Wakulla County with Tim Jordan

Saucey Lady Oyster Company was founded in 2014 by Tim Jordan and Walt Dickson, charter members of an oyster growing program initiated by The TCC Wakulla Environmental Institute (WEI) to promote aquaculture and create jobs in the economically challenged coastal communities of Wakulla County, Florida. Their oyster leases are located in the waters of Oyster Bay near Panacea, Florida.

They'll bring some oysters to taste!

June 3

Fifty years of Sea Turtle Conservation with Jack Rudloe

Jack Rudloe has promoted conservation and education about marine life through the Gulf Specimen

Public Aquarium for most of his adult life. Sea turtles have become a special passion for him and his family. He is an accomplished author, speaker, and stalwart environmental protector.

St. Marks National Wildlife Refuge
1255 Lighthouse Road ~ Crawfordville, FL 32327
850-925-6121 ~ http://www.fws.gov/refuge/st_marks/
Refreshments provided by the Friends of St. Marks Wildlife Refuge

