Trustom Pond National Wildlife Refuge U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service

Welcome to Trustom Pond National Wildlife Refuge! This refuge is one of five national wildlife refuges in Rhode Island. In 1974, Mrs. Ann Kenyon Morse donated the first 365 acres to the Refuge. In 1982, the Audubon Society of Rhode Island donated 151 acres. Today, the Refuge includes 787 acres of various wildlife habitats including fields, shrublands, woodlands, fresh and saltwater ponds and sandy beaches and dunes. Approximately 300 bird species, more than 40 mammal species, and 20 species of reptiles and amphibians call Trustom Pond Refuge home during the year. Trustom Pond is the only undeveloped coastal salt pond in Rhode Island, making it even more valuable to wildlife. On the southern boundary is found a barrier beach which remains one of the few Rhode Island nesting sites for two species of concern, the Least Tern and Piping Plover.
