

California Condor (Endangered)

In 1987, the last 27 California Condors were captured to save them from being killed in the wild. In zoos, they laid eggs and had babies. A few have been returned to their natural home. Conservationists hope condors will soon fill the skies again.