

National Elk Refuge

Application for Photography / Filming Permit

Background

The National Elk Refuge is managed and operated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service within the Department of the Interior. It consists of 24,700 acres of intermountain valley immediately north of Jackson, Wyoming. It was established in 1912 as a result of public interest in the survival and perpetuation of the Jackson elk herd. The primary purposes of the refuge are to preserve and manage elk winter range and to protect habitat for a diversity of wildlife. Herds of elk can be observed on the refuge generally between November through April.

General Application Information

Note: This is an application only and does not serve as permission to conduct a filming project or any other use on the National Elk Refuge. If your request is approved, a permit containing applicable conditions and regulations will be sent to the person designated on the application. The permit must be signed and returned to the Refuge prior to the event.
